

Frantic Fall for Dentists

By DON VIPOND
Times Staff

The 110 dentists in the Victoria area can expect a slower summer but a frantic fall because tens of thousands of their patients are on the verge of insured dental care.

Two giant dental insurance plans — one for an estimated 140,000 woodworkers and dependents and the other for about 110,000 civil servants and dependents — will be in operation soon.

The plan, covering members of the B.C. Government Employees Union, likely to be in effect by Oct. 1, will have a major impact in Victoria with its high population of civil servants.

The plan to cover members of the International Woodworkers of America, part of contracts yet to be approved, will also add to the workload of local dentists, but the real crunch will come in isolated parts of the province where there is already an acute shortage of dentists.

Meanwhile, people who know their dental bills are soon going to be largely covered by insurance, are holding off on visits to their dentist.

Spokesmen for CU and C Health Services Society and the Medical Services Association, the two major carriers for dental insurance plans in B.C., said Thursday the two pending plans are easily of record size.

Which carriers will handle them has yet to be decided.

The spokesmen estimated between 400,000 and 500,000 of B.C.'s two million plus population are now covered by dental plans. Addition of the IWA and BCGEU will jump that total by about 30 per cent.

Dental insurance plans have increased "several fold" in the past two years, one of them said.

In Victoria, Dr. Hector McDonald, an orthodontist who is president of the Victoria and District Dental Society, said Thursday local dentists are going to be "very much busier" and will have to make an all-out effort to promote preventative care.

But it is in the more remote parts of the

Hydro Raises Power Rates By 20-70%

Electricity rate increases ranging from up to 20 per cent for residential customers to about 70 per cent for bulk power-users such as pulp and paper mills were announced today by B.C. Hydro.

The power authority claims that the increase, needed to meet rising costs of providing service, will amount to less than $3 per month for 78 per cent of residential customers' bills.

The new residential rates go into effect on and after Aug. 1, though they may not be reflected on bills for most customers until Oct. 1 or later, depending on each customer's billing period.

New rates for virtually all residential customers will be 3.6 cents per kilowatt-hour for the first 300 kwh used, and 1.3 cents per kwh for all additional consumption in the month. Present rates are 3 cents and 1.1 cents respectively.

Minimum monthly cost will go to $2.40 from the present $2.

Hydro's announcement today gave these comparisons of monthly electricity bills (excluding provincial sales tax at the present and new rates):

A small apartment suite without electric space heating or electric water heating, monthly consumption 150 kwh — monthly cost will rise 90 cents from $4.50 to $5.40.

A house with electric water heating but not electric space heating, monthly consumption 1,000 kwh — monthly cost will rise $3.20 from $16.70 to $19.90.

A house with both electric water heating and electric space heating, monthly consumption 3,000 kwh — monthly cost will rise $7.20 from $38.70 to $45.90.

Rates for large industrial customers on rate schedule 1821, which include refineries, cement plants, mines and plywood mills, will be increased, by about 50 to 55 per cent in two stages effective Aug. 1, 1975, and April 1, 1976.

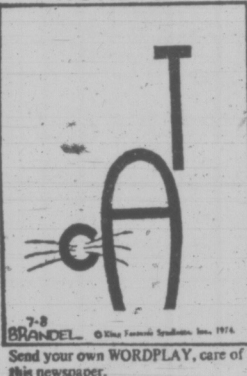

Rates for bulk power users, including pulp and paper mills and electro-chemical plants, will go up about 70 per cent, effective Aug. 1, 1976.

Power rated for Hydro's residential customers were

Food Cost Probe In Year

It will likely be at least a year before any investigation into food prices is launched in B.C., Agriculture Minister Dave Stupich said today.

The minister said he is committed to a full enquiry into food pricing in the province, but he has other plans to wants to develop in the general area of food costs before the inquiry gets underway.

He would not elaborate on those plans, except to say they would involve an expanded role for the B.C. Advisory Council, a provincial body representing food store chains and consumer groups.

"I feel that producers, generally speaking, are not getting a fair price for the food they produce and I feel that consumers generally are paying too much for the food they consume," said Stupich.

The minister said he is convinced the difference in price levels is a problem, and he doesn't "simply want to start an inquiry to confirm or deny this."

"I'm not satisfied with reports that come down and then are dumped and nothing is done with them... like the food prices and review board in Ottawa that has all kinds of information, but is not doing anything with it."

"Once I have a report, I want to move very quickly on it," he said, explaining that the machinery he will develop over the next year will enable the government to act almost immediately on the results of the enquiry.

Stupich said he did not know what form the investigation would take.

A royal commission is one possibility, he agreed, but no discussions have taken place in cabinet yet and it would involve a political decision as well as a legal one.

The selection of the Port Angeles area for possible offshore petroleum transfer has that town's mayor Vern Basom elated.

This would entail unloading of supertankers from Alaska close to Victoria.

"Of course," Basom said, "there's always the danger of oil spills, but spills are like car wrecks... life still has to go on."

The Washington State Oceanographic Commission Thursday announced the selection of three sites which are suitable for transfer—two include Port Angeles.

They are from Port Angeles east to Dungeness Bay; Port Angeles west to Clallam Bay and from Grays Harbor north to Pt. Grenville (on the outer Washington state coast.)

There was little praise for the selections in comments by Pat Coburn of the Washington State Coalition Against Oil Pollution in Seattle.

"If oil is transferred from large supertankers to small boats, it's terrible, that's what it is."

"Oil companies have always used the argument that there'll only be a few boats involved. But this is a violation of everything; it'll mean increased traffic and erases all their (oil companies) arguments."

"There'll be more boats involved and there will be more spills," she said, adding, the Coalition has stressed the use of pipe systems to transfer the oil from the tankers underwater into the sound.

The sites were chosen on the basis of a $147,000 study conducted by the Seattle engineering firm of Kumer, Chin and Mayo combined with a survey of coastal waters and sea floors by the University of Washington oceanographic department.

Roa Mayo told the commission the area around Port Angeles was particularly attractive because the city's deep water harbor is capable of sheltering supertankers and is protected from storms in the Strait of Juan de Fuca by Ediz Hook, a natural sandspit.

Lincoln Loren, a spokesman for the university study group, said the area near Pt. Grenville would be a feasible site because underwater canyons stretching seaward break up the often fierce wave action occurring along the coast.

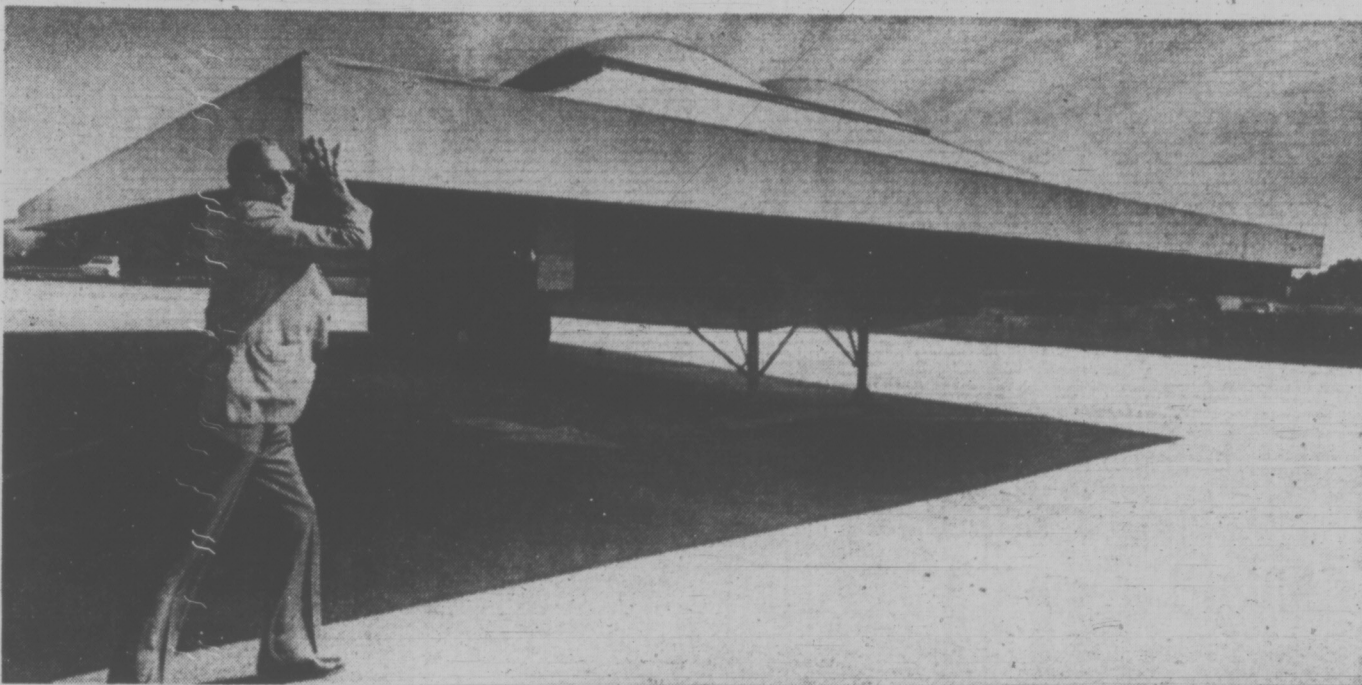

The original study included the Washington coast from the mouth of the Columbia to Port Townsend.

"We are trying to answer the question 'How do we keep oil out of Puget Sound,'" John Umlauf, a commission staff member said.

Umlauf said the commission would not make the decision on where the oil transfer site should be.

"This study is simply a prelude to future affirmative action," he said. "It requires fuel."

Nixon Committed 'Enormous Crime'

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — Special counsel John Doar today told the committee considering impeachment of President Nixon "reasonable men acting reasonably would find the president guilty."

Doar, quoted by a member who took notes, told the 38 panel members that "they must consider this enormous crime in the conduct of his office."

Without actually recommending impeachment, Doar made it clear, according to several members, that he thought the inquiry had built a case for impeachment.

He outlined five recommended articles of impeachment, according to committee members.

Representative Wiley Mayne, an Iowa Republican, said that Doar referred specifically to an obstruction of justice charge.

Besides an obstruction of justice charge based on the Watergate break-in, Doar is expected to propose articles charging Nixon with abuse of constitutional powers and contempt of Congress.

Nixon made a last-minute effort Thursday to prove his innocence by offering the committee the edited transcript of part of a taped conversation with H. R. Halde- man which he had previously refused to turn over.

This provoked sharp criticism from committee members, led by Chairman Peter Rodino, who said it showed "There has been an effort to keep from the committee evidence that it should rightfully have had" for its inquiry into whether the president should be impeached.

Rodino said the committee would give "serious consideration" to whether the president's refusal to turn over relevant material should in itself be made an impeachable offense.

The committee, meanwhile, has caught the White House in a new instance where evidence requested as part of its impeachment inquiry has been heavily edited.

The new editing job involved copies of handwritten notes former presidential aide John Ehrlichman took during meetings and conversations with Nixon between June, 1971, and April, 1973.

Both the White House and the special prosecutor's office sent the notes to the impeachment investigators, but the White House version was only about half the size of the other version, furnished by the special prosecutor.

MERSIN, Turkey — About 30 Turkish assault landing craft left here today, heading in the general direction of Cyprus.

There was no positive indication an attack was imminent.

Reuter correspondent Patrick Massey said he could see armored vehicles on some of the vessels.

Turkish authorities refused to say anything about the mission. In the past few days officials have imposed a blackout on news of military movements.

There is a possibility the landing craft may be moving further west along the coast to take up anchorage in position nearer the Cyprus shore.

There were, however, no other obvious signs of military activity in the vicinity. Troops remained camped in woods along the coast, guarded by light anti-aircraft guns near the shore.

The departure of the landing craft came as U.S. state undersecretary Joseph Sisco was preparing to fly to Ankara in efforts to find a formula to prevent Turkish intervention.

He now is in Athens holding similar talks with Greek leaders after consultations in London.

Indian Hunting Upheld

PENTICTON (CP) — A landmark decision on aboriginal rights was handed down in county court here Wednesday.

Judge A. D. C. Washington ruled that Jacob Kruger and Robert Manuel of the Pentiction Indian Band, have the aboriginal right to hunt on their traditional hunting grounds on unoccupied Crown land without a permit and during closed season.

Kruger and Manuel were charged with unlawfully killing big game out of season. They were convicted in Pentiction provincial court and the case was appealed to county court.

Judge Washington's decision was hailed by Chief Adam Eneas of the Pentiction band as marking the beginning of a new era of justice for native people. He said the case was started by two ordinary Indians who got fed up with the situation and decided to go ahead and hunt without permits. It was not politically motivated, he said.

Bill Wilson, a councillor on the Union of British Columbia Indian Chiefs, which supported the appeal to county court, said the group would back any further action in higher courts but he hoped that would not be necessary and Judge Washington's decision will be accepted.

A Very British Pub ...

By DON VIPOND
Times Staff

The Oak Bay British Pub, catering to the middle-aged group, "like an officers' mess where ladies are allowed," offering conservative music for "peaceful citizens"—and closing nightly at 11 p.m.

That's what Gaston and Rita Godbout of 203 Beechwood Ave. want to open in a former store at 2024 Oak Bay Ave. and Oak Bay council wants to know how people in the municipality feel about it.

Mrs. Godbout wrote council seeking the necessary municipal approval for a neighborhood pub and aldermen referred the request for committee study Thursday night, at the same time indicating they'd like to hear from the public.

Godbout, a former navy officer now a realtor, gave more details today on what he and his wife have in mind.

"The object is not to make money," he said, but to open "a very British" pub, with its traditional "pleasant atmosphere which I love." He just looks to break even financially.

It would be called the "Oak Bay British Pub" and would have the appropriate decor, including flags.

In her letter to council Mrs. Godbout said the intention is "to cater to a select group of citizens."

This will be achieved by allowing for a sizable dancing area with music of a conservative nature that will appeal to "peaceful citizens."

"We don't want hippy types," Godbout said today.

The music might be provided by an organ but whatever the source, it will be "nice stuff," he said.

The property has a secluded garden at the back, with a large oak tree, an area where lunches with a European flavor could be served, Mrs. Godbout's letter said.

Godbout said they are thinking in terms of businessmen who would like to meet for something like soup and a sandwich and have a beer with their lunch.

New provincial regulations limit the capacity of neighborhood pubs to no more than 100 patrons and permit up to a quarter of these to be served standing.

Among other general conditions to be met for a licence, are that hot food, wrapped sandwiches, snacks, hot beverages, soft drinks, fruit and vegetable juices shall also be available at reasonable prices.

The regulations also limit hours to between 9 a.m. and 11 p.m. with all patrons cleared by 11:30 p.m.

Ald. Douglas Watts said Thursday night he thinks the proposed site is probably the only one worth considering for a neighborhood pub in Oak Bay.

An important factor is how many people could walk to it, he suggested. The idea is not to attract patrons in cars.

INGRID BEGINS NEW FAST

VANCOUVER — A protesting teacher who fasted for two weeks in June on the legislature steps is starting a second fast today on the Vancouver Courthouse steps.

"I'll be there rain or shine," Ingrid Blanchet of West Vancouver said Thursday. "I hope to stay at least as long as I did on the legislature steps."

Mrs. Blanchet is protesting the hiring and firing practices of school boards.

One reason she is choosing Vancouver as the site for her second demonstration is to back a demand for an inquiry into an adverse report made on her when she worked in Vancouver schools, she said.

Police Probing SIU 'Terrorism'

TORONTO (CP) — Police are investigating terrorism charges involving Toronto and Thorold, Ont., members of the Seafarers' International Union (SIU) caught in a continuing leadership battle.

"I'm sitting here on my sofa with a fully-loaded .22 rifle in my hands—and I intend to use it if any union goons try to come in after me," Paul Fitzpatrick, 43, said Thursday as he sat in his Toronto apartment.

He and fellow SIU-member Ed Devereaux, 39, of Toronto, said seamen opposing the current leadership of SIU president Roman Gralewicz are subjected to beatings, intimidation, and revival of the DNS (Do Not Ship)-label of former president Hal Banks. Devereaux said he was beaten when he went to the Toronto union hall to pay his dues June 19.

The two men said seamen are also being blacklisted for Great Lakes sailing jobs for opposing Gralewicz.

The 7,000-member SIU is still caught in a legal battle involving its 1971 presidential election.

William Glasgow, 43, of St. Catharines is seeking a petition through the Quebec courts now to prevent an election this fall unless his name is on the ballot.

He had been fighting since November, 1971, when it was declared that he lost the presidency to Leonard (Red)

McLaughlin by 37 votes. Since then, McLaughlin has taken another international labor union position and Gralewicz has taken his place.

Glasgow, said Thursday that a new election should be supervised by a court-appointed commission to ensure it is fair.

"We know the goons are active because they want to scare off anyone who would dare stand up to Gralewicz and his boys," Glasgow said.

Gralewicz, reached in Montreal, blamed the election and the Glasgow dispute for the present violence. He said Glasgow is ineligible for election because he does not have enough sea time.

Cosmonauts Back Safely

MOSCOW (AP) — Two Soviet cosmonauts returned safely to earth today in their Soyuz 14 spacecraft, ending a two-week mission aboard the Salyut 3 space station.

Pavel Popovich and Yuri Artyukhin "feel well" after soft-landing their Soyuz transport ship near Dzhezhazgan in central Asia, according to the Tass news agency.

Their mission, which began July 3, has been "fully fulfilled," the agency said.

The mission's successful and safe conclusion was in sharp contrast to the tragedy of the Soviet space-station effort in June, 1971, when, after 23 days aboard Salyut 1, three cosmonauts were found dead, strapped to the seats of their Soyuz 11 craft.

A faulty valve in the Soyuz system was blamed for the disaster.

Today's landing came after the two cosmonauts undocked their craft from the Salyut 3 lab shortly after noon local time and guided the transport vehicle back to earth loaded with documentation, film cassettes and other materials on their experiments aboard the station.

Tass said the cosmonauts touched down at 3:21 p.m. local time 5:21 a.m. PDT.

ture action by the legislature and we will in no way provide anything except information.

The selections were "fine" according to Mayor Bason who attended the hearings Thursday.

"Sure, there'll be some people who oppose it but we have to have oil here — we have a natural facility (off Port Angeles) that could be developed.

He said supertankers too large to go into Puget Sound will transfer oil at a discharge point.

"Marine traffic regulations are going to be extended and it will help cut down on the danger of spills," he added.

In the past some conservationists have looked with favor on the Port Angeles area as a better alternative for transfer than the Ferndale area near Cherry Point's two major refineries.

"It would save tanker traffic through the San Juan Islands and if we have to have one it's better than the other," said Mrs. Coburn stressing none of the alternatives are acceptable if oil is transferred to smaller boats.

She said some oil regulations have been considered including the specification that any tanker with full cargo can only approach the coast at the time when the tide is ebbing out. If a spill happened at that time, the oil would go west.

"But I don't know if the coast guard (which has the authority) would have the strength to make the restriction."

If there is an oil spill, she said, "We're talking about pollution all along north Washington State and all of Vancouver Island."

"The best thing would be if our state would cut back on oil production and hold down the use of petroleum."

last increased in 1970 by about 17 per cent.

Large industrial customer levies were last increased in 1971, and those for bulk power users in 1973, in each case by about 13 per cent.

Hydro says revisions to other non-residential rates are still under review and will be announced soon. Customers on these rates include shops, offices, sports arenas, machine shops and sawmills.

Hydro chairman David Cass-Beggs said since the last residential rate increase in 1970 "tremendous inflationary pressures" have affected both capital expenditures and operating costs.

He said sharp increases in fuel costs and spending on environmental protection measures were combined with higher wages and salaries, material costs and interest rates.

Oil is needed to fuel Hydro's thermal and diesel-generating stations, he noted, and during the past four years the price of diesel oil increased nearly 80 per cent while bunker C oil went up more than 200 per cent.

from London today, met immediately with the commanders of the armed forces and then called the cabinet into two crisis sessions.

After the second meeting, Ecevit said: "We have to make a decision soon, after speedily determining whether any results can be obtained from diplomatic contacts."

Ecevit has sent United Nations Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim two letters.

One said that the only legitimate administration in Cyprus now is that of the Turkish Cypriot regime should not be recognized.

The other objected to the attempt of the new regime to replace Zenon Rossides as the Cypriot delegate to the United Nations.

Diplomatic attempts to avert warfare between Turkey and Greece over Cyprus now include the possibility that a "compromise leader" may be sought for the island, numerous sources said Thursday.

The potential compromise figure mentioned by U.S. and other diplomatic sources, Giakos Clerioes, is a leader of the Greek-Cypriot community who is on good terms with the Turkish Cypriots on the island.

Before Monday's coup, Clerioes was president of Cyprus' House of Representatives. He served as acting president in Makarios' absence, giving him a legal claim to succession if Greece would agree to such a compromise.

In Nicosia, the new rulers of Cyprus hunted for supporters of Makarios today, charging his government tortured political opponents and had to be toppled to avoid civil war.

Nicos Sampson, a newspaper publisher and former guerrilla who was installed as the new president, denounced the Makarios government Thursday as "vicious, tyrannical and oppressive."

"Look at the tools used by the Makarios regime against its political opponents," he said, brandishing whips, clubs and electric cattle prodders before photographers and television cameras.

"All this was done with the knowledge of the former president," Sampson said at his first public appearance since the coup Monday.

Ferry Skipper Exonerated

A B.C. Ferries inquiry held here Thursday has exonerated the master of the Queen of Sechart of any blame in a collision Sunday in Active Pass with a small powerboat.

Ferries general manager Charles Gallagher said today "but for the master's fast reaction there would have been a tragedy."

Morrison MacLeod of Coquitlam complained Tuesday the ferry had collided with his 19-foot pleasure craft, and failed to either stop or acknowledge the mishap. He and his three children were crossing the narrow channel separating Mayne and Galiano islands when his main engine quit.

Gallagher said MacLeod's boat was travelling on the port side of the ferry when suddenly it crossed in front of the vessel about 200 feet away and came to a stop.

"The master turned to starboard and then had to make an immediate swing to port to straighten the stern," Gallagher said.

The deck crew, which had been alerted, watched the small craft bounce along the port side of the ferry until it was sluiced out in the wake.

He said the chief officer went aft to make sure the people on board were uninjured and was satisfied they received no ill effects.

Gallagher said the ferry could have gone into "serious trouble" if it had stopped as another ferry, the Queen of Vancouver, was just entering the Pass from behind.

He said the master didn't report the mishap because "as far as he was concerned it was a near miss."

The incident was, however, reported in the ship's log.

"Notwithstanding the inquiry's findings we've now asked the master to report all such incidents," Gallagher said.

BITE ON DENTISTS

province, where there are many woodworkers but few dentists, there is going to be "a bad time," he said.

Three-quarters of the province's 1,200 dentists are concentrated in populous areas like Victoria, Vancouver and Kelowna.

Places like Prince Rupert, where two dentists serve 15,000 people, they are already inundated with work, he said.

McDonald said most dentists favor dental insurance plans. Such plans don't make dental care cheaper but they distribute the cost and enable better care without financial hardship on individuals.

Holding off on seeing the dentist is a natural tendency just prior to introduction of an employee's dental plan, he said.

And while he doesn't think people will abuse dental coverage, he said they are bound to visit the dentist more often.

Dentists are going to have to push hard with the public message that sugar "kills" teeth and fluoride programs save teeth.

And use of trained auxiliaries such as dental assistants could enable dentists to handle more work, he said.

the weather

Showery and unseasonably cool weather if finally loosening its grip over B.C. as warmer and drier air moved in bringing the promise of sunnier skies and higher temperatures. The lingering effects of the upper air disturbance which had brought dismal weather will still be felt, however as some cloud cover and isolated showers are expected to remain over coastal sections for at least another 24 hours. The southern interior will experience mainly sunny skies along with warmer temperatures today while the central sections of the province remain under the effects of the disturbance. Afternoon showers with isolated thundershowers can be expected over those areas.

Choppers Hunt Sasquatch

A team of U.S. scientists will be using helicopters and the most modern technical devices this summer in the mountains surrounding Harrison Hot Springs in an attempt to track down the legendary Sasquatch.

Bill Ward, editor of Wildlife Review, a B.C. government publication, said today the scientific team headed by Robert Morgan of Miami, Fla., will conduct its search on both sides of the international border.

The Morgan party will consist of a number of University specialists from several institutions as well as a couple of interested lay students of this subject from the Pacific Northwest.

Ward said the study was made possible when the family of Louisa D. Carpenter, of Lauderdale, Fla., donated $29,000 to launch a proper expedition in search of the hairy beast.

The National Wildlife Federation has agreed to monitor the inquiry to satisfy its curiosity, he said.

"They won't say what specific areas they have chosen to search for Sasquatch," Ward said. "They don't want any publicity and people interfering with the search."

LUCKY FAMILY

TORONTO (CP) — Three members of a Toronto family got lucky in the Olympic lottery — on three separate tickets.

Hilda Cane won $100. Her son Gordon split a $100 prize with a friend and daughter Audrey Patterson won a third of $3,000 on a ticket she shared with two others.

City STOL Site Seen Doubtful

A short take-off and landing (STOL) air service between downtown Victoria and downtown Vancouver, proposed by Air West Airlines Ltd., has generated skeptical thoughts over locations from Victoria aldermen.

Even if the STOL aircraft need only a 2,000-foot airstrip, city aldermen appear doubtful that a suitable site could be made available within city limits.

Summing up the general feeling of aldermen polled today, acting mayor Alf Hood said: "Quite frankly, I am very, very skeptical over the availability of sites."

"Offhand I can't think of a single piece of property within city boundaries that would meet the requirements that is, even assuming we would want to go along with this."

Air West announced Thursday it has ordered two STOL aircraft to be built by the Toronto de Havilland aircraft company, which in partnership with the federal government is developing the aircraft for a world-wide market.

Company officials said the ultra-quiet planes — "the noise at take-off is no more than a truck going down the highway" — will be able to land on 2,000-foot runways, less than a third of the distance required for conventional aircraft of the same size.

Costing $2½ to $3 million each, the 48-passenger planes are expected to go into operation some time in 1977.

Jim Sullivan, Air West vice-president responsible for marketing, told the Times today the company has no specific sites in mind for its Victoria runway, but in the near future it is likely to seek discussions both with the federal transport authorities and municipal officials.

"It isn't really a physical kind of closeness that's required, although we would like to be within, say, 15 minutes of where people would want to go," he said.

Sullivan agreed this broad criterion could place the runway just across the border in Saanich or Esquimalt, and said one location studied in a tentative, preliminary way was the McKenzie Avenue area of Saanich.

On a noise basis alone, company officials aren't worried about being able to convince residents of the de Havilland's whispering qualities.

Referring to a recording made by the manufacturers, Air West general manager Mike Warwick said no one could dispute the DHC-7 is the quietest airplane ever designed.

"Unless they saw it I doubt if anyone would be aware there was an aircraft taking off or landing," he said.

But Hood said noise isn't the only factor to consider, pointing out that concern had been voiced over the years as to the safety aspects of float planes using the Inner Harbor.

The fact that STOL planes would be using land facilities was of equal concern, he said, adding: "Would we want aircraft coming into the built-up area of the community?"

Air West says one big advantage of the STOL service, beside the close-to-downtown convenience, would be the fact that they could operate around the clock.

The present service, with its seven flights in each direction between Victoria and Vancouver daily by Twin Otter float plane, is restricted to daylight hours.

Israel Strikes Over Border

SIDON, Lebanon (Reuter) — More than 50 Israeli troops blew up three houses and kidnapped two men in the southern Lebanese village of Al-Bustan early today, sources said.

In Tel Aviv, Israeli military authorities said Israeli commandos destroyed three houses which were refuges for Arab guerrillas.

The village raided is about two miles from the Israeli border, in the Tyre area.

Both reports from Lebanon and from Israel said there were no casualties.

The Lebanese sources said the Israelis pulled back across the border taking with them a farmer and a shepherd.

The Lebanese also said Israeli artillery shelled another southern village, Jouaya, early today, but there were no casualties.

The Israeli military authorities said the Israeli commando raid was conducted just across the Israeli border from the settlement of Adamit.

This area of Israel has been the site of several Arab guerrilla incursions in the past, the Israelis said, and Tel Aviv believes that the guerrillas who attacked the settlement of Maalot May 15 infiltrated into Israel in the Adamit locality.

Tower Blast: Trio Sought

Times News Services LONDON — Scotland Yard has identified three Belfast men as suspects in the bombing of the tourist-jammed Tower of London and ordered a nation-wide search for them, British newspapers said today.

Scotland Yard declined to comment on the reports.

The government, meanwhile, is resisting pressure to bring back the death penalty for crimes of terrorism.

"They should be shot," said Labor MP Arthur Lewis, formerly an opponent of capital punishment.

Several members of Parliament Thursday sought emergency legislation to bring back the death penalty, but Home Secretary Roy Jenkins refused, cautioning against such decisions "in the heat of the moment."

The Sun newspaper said the three suspects may have arrived recently from Eire. Two were aged 27 and the third 41, it added.

The newspaper said police sources gave no indication whether the men actually planted the bomb or provided a hideout for the bombers.

The Daily Mirror said "security chiefs" now believed the bombing was not the work of the Irish Republican Army, although the IRA might have been involved.

"Detectives believe that direct responsibility for carrying out the attack probably lies with an anarchist or international militant movement," The Mirror said.

Meanwhile, record compensation payments are anticipated for the victims of the bombing.

Since many of the victims were foreigners, the British Injuries Compensation Board is informing embassies how the compensation can be claimed.

Although no estimate of claims is possible, the board said it anticipates paying out more than the $75,000 it has paid to date to victims of the March, 1973, car bombing at the Old Bailey courthouse in London.

Language Bill Changed

QUEBEC (CP) — Education Minister Francois Cloutier has tabled amendments to his official language bill which meet many of the objections of those opposed to it.

Cloutier gave nearly 50 amendments Thursday to the national assembly's education committee which is considering the bill to make French the sole official language in Quebec and require children to pass language proficiency tests before entering French or English-language schools.

Cloutier also tabled guidelines for regulations that will apply the law to four major areas — education, signs and labels, and francization programs in industry.

The amendments say school boards will continue to provide education in English where the first draft said only that English education "may" be provided.

But the same amendment says no school board can begin or cease English-language instruction or increase or decrease the size of its English sector without permission of the minister. This would ensure that the English education system does not grow to the detriment of the French system.

The bill repeals 1969 legislation guaranteeing parents freedom of choice for the language of education and requires students to pass language proficiency tests supplied by the education department — before students switch from one system to the other or register for the first time with a school board.

Manure Spread

PARIS (UPI) — French farmers protesting sagging farm produce prices disrupted inauguration ceremonies for a new highway Thursday by dumping tons of manure on the road and then making off with the lavish official buffet.

The disturbance was part of a new wave of protests organized by farm organizations throughout France against a sharp drop in prices for fruit, vegetables and meat.

Shouting hostile slogans, a crowd of farmers estimated by police at 3,000 dumped manure from trucks on the new highway linking Paris to Tours. They sprayed liquid manure on fire engines called in to put out intentionally set fires in piles of old car tires and splashed a toll gate with manure.

Setting a Welcome Pace

It is excellent news that City Council and the Advisory Design Panel are taking a tough attitude toward the Nordal building proposed for the area north of the old post office between Government and Wharf Streets. For several years there has been one false alarm after another in connection with the planned mall complex, and now that blueprints have been presented and found sadly wanting, the aldermen and other officials are to be congratulated on their refusal to accept anything but the best.

The site itself is much too prominent a one to be marred by a shoddy concept. Promoters, particularly out-of-town interests, should learn that Victoria is no place to try to dump poorly designed projects. This community has come through several years of almost continuous controversy and hassle in regard to building promotions of one kind or another, and only now is breaking free of unwanted entanglements and establishing its rightful standards.

Council and the Advisory Board should be assured that they will receive the wholehearted backing of a majority of Victorians in demanding high standards of appearance and utility from all proposed constructions. Enforcement of high standards will not deter any projects of a kind we would wish to welcome; it will, on the contrary, encourage quality proposals and sound business propositions. Good buildings invite good buildings around them. The city's spokesmen cannot go wrong by demanding the best.

Plowing the Wrong Furrow

A bit of the bulldog resides in the psyche of federal Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan. When he gets his teeth into an issue he's unwilling to let go. But when a cabinet minister who has just fought a federal election largely brought on by inflation and the cost of living says food prices are not high enough, he is either trying to make a point through hyperbole or is sheltering behind the fence built by the new majority in the House of Commons.

If it is the former Mr. Whelan has a point. Supermarket prices soar — statistics Canada says the consumer price index is at the highest annual rate of increase since the Korean war in 1950 — but some farmers are still receiving a relatively small return for their labor. And as Mr. Whelan said, developers can still offer farmers up to four times as much for their land as they make from their produce. This is especially significant in British Columbia as suburban development oozes up the Fraser Valley. It is also true that the average Canadian family spends $45 per week on food, according to a recent Gallup poll. But that is up from $26 per week in 1958, a 73 per cent increase in less than 15 years.

The latest figures show that the consumer price index has risen 11.4 cent this year. In other words Canada is on the edge of what economists call hyperinflation: prices increasing in leaps and bounds as inflation gathers speed.

Rather than suggesting that food prices are not high enough, Mr. Whelan might concentrate his considerable talents on persuading his government to put some teeth in anti-profiteering legislation. The cosmetic of Beryl Plumptre's Food Prices Review Board is not good enough for farmers or consumers as prices mount even faster than the Liberal majority did on July 8.

JAMES RESTON

Tragedy of a Nation Confused

WASHINGTON — In his first inaugural address, Woodrow Wilson said that "the firm basis of government is justice, not pity," and he appealed to "every man's conscience and vision of the right." This did not prove to be a very contagious suggestion, but Wilson said some things that day that are relevant to our present political and public confusions.

"The nation has been deeply stirred," he said, "stirred by a solemn passion, stirred by the knowledge of wrong, of ideals lost, of government too often debauched and made an instrument of evil ... We know our task to be no mere task of politics but a task which shall search us through and through, whether we be able to understand our time and the need of our people, whether we be indeed their spokesmen and interpreters, whether we have the pure heart to comprehend and the rectified will to choose our high course of action."

Wilson was concerned that the people and the Congress, confronted by the difficult and ambiguous problems of that day, should approach their duty from the interests of the nation as a whole and of the future.

"It is inconceivable," he said, "that we should do this as partisans; it is inconceivable that we should do it in ignorance of the facts as they are, or in blind haste ... men's hopes call upon us to say what we will do. Who shall live up to the great trust? Who dares fail to try?"

In Comparison

Compare this with the rhetoric and arguments of the White House, the Congress, and the country today. Again the nation has been confronted by "the knowledge of wrong, of ideals lost, of government too often debauched and made an instrument of evil." The evidence is clear before us on the White House tapes, but the reaction is quite different.

It is no longer "inconceivable" that we should seek "justice" without knowledge of the facts, and telling the Supreme Court to stay out of the case, and refusing to say even whether it will abide by the judgment of the highest court of the land.

It is no longer "inconceivable" that this great constitutional crisis of today should be approached in partisan terms: the White House legal strategy is to provoke a partisan split and thereby, if successful, assure enough votes to avoid conviction of the President on the evidence.

The Congress is not exactly motivated these days by "every man's conscience and vision of the right," but is seething with partisan sentiments, and the public opinion polls reflect similar confusion between politics and principle.

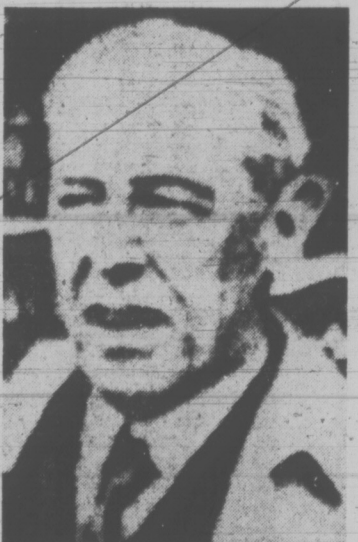

The latest Gallup poll, for example, reports that "despite the revelations of recent months regarding the Watergate scandal, the American people remain closely divided on the issue of whether Watergate is a 'serious matter,' or 'just politics' — the kind of thing both parties engage in." — 48 per cent saying it is "serious" and 43 per cent dismissing it as "just politics."

Gallup also reports, despite the continuing confusion over the facts, that "a majority of Americans, 53 percent, now believe the mass media — newspapers, television and radio — are providing 'too much' coverage of Watergate."

This is the most interesting and probably the most decisive question about the impeachment process: whether the people and the Congress want the disturbing facts, or whether they are bored and frightened by the facts and want to evade them.

The evidence seems to be that a very large percentage of the people are already stunned by the facts they already have and that the daily disclosures of wrongdoing, even when expressed in locker room language in the President's own voice, no longer produce a comparable response.

WOODROW WILSON
Justice, not pity

In the last few days, the White House has gone into the Supreme Court and argued that the President alone should decide what evidence ought to be made available, even evidence of criminal misconduct.

Also the House Judiciary Committee has issued its recordings of the President's White House conversations, which differ from the President's versions of the same tapes and demonstrate that somebody eliminated critical information and even changed words and meanings in the original White House presentation of the "facts."

On May 2, the White House deputy press secretary, Gerald L. Warren, announced that the White House transcripts represented "the complete story as it relates to the President and Watergate."

But the Judiciary Committee version includes one statement censored by the White House, in which the President, eliminating his gutter language, says: "I want you all to stonewall it, let them (his aides) plead the Fifth Amendment, cover-up or anything else, if it'll save the plan. That's the whole point."

Later, he said he might prefer to do it another way, by giving the Congress a partial report of the evidence, but his personal involvement in the discussion of covering up and obstructing justice is clear, yet the White House says this and other discrepancies are meaningless.

In fact, James St. Clair, the President's lawyer, is turning out to be the shiftest broken-field runner to come out of the University of Illinois since Red Grange. Asked why the White House had omitted one 16-page portion of the President's March 22, 1973 conversation, he replied that he saw "nothing sinister" in the deletion. "I still don't think it's relevant," he added.

More Shameless

Ron Ziegler, the President's propaganda chief, is even more shameless in his denials and charges, but he has been so discredited for so long now that it no longer matters what he says. What does matter is that even documentary evidence of White House evasions, deletions and misrepresentations no longer seem to surprise or even impress a great many people.

Even members of the Congress seem to be a little numb after two years of controversy and contradiction since the Watergate break-in. They seem to be waiting for a clear response from the people and the people seem to be waiting for a clear response from the Congress. Meanwhile, even the definition of what is an impeachable offence is still the subject of endless debate.

These, then, are the threshold questions: How is the mountain of evidence to be judged? On Nixon's terms or the court's? With all the facts or without them? On the whole shoddy record of misconduct or on the narrow ground of some clear violation of criminal law? On the basis of justice, conscience, and the right, as Woodrow Wilson proposed that we should approach our problems, or on the basis of pity and politics?

Daniel J. Boorstin, in "Democracy and Its Discontents," quotes Claude Hopkins on the art of advertising: "In fishing for buyers, as in fishing for bass, one should not reveal the hook. But the astonishing thing is that the President and his men, fishing for votes, keep on revealing the hook and landing the suckers." It is quite a performance, but it wasn't exactly what Woodrow Wilson had in mind.

Dragging a Ministerial Foot

OTTAWA — Justice Minister Otto Lang suffers the misfortune of being able to convey too easily the impression that he views the return to Liberal majority government much as a colonial governor in a different era would have looked on the return of the gunboats after a period of deplorable administrative laxity.

There was a time when anyone alarmed by this quality in the minister of justice could console himself with the thought that, at least, the man had no coattails. He might get elected in Saskatchewan but no other Liberals did. That seemed an automatic brake on the power he might eventually exercise over the lives of the Canadian people.

That is no longer the case. Mr. Lang has political coattails now. They are longer than they look and there are signs that they will grow longer still.

The Liberal who took Battleford-Kindersley from the Conservatives, Dr. Cliff McIsaac, might have done it on his own. He is a former provincial cabinet minister who survived the collapse of the Liberal party provincially and was a member of the Saskatchewan legislature when he resigned to become a federal candidate. It is not likely, however, that Mr. Lang's former administrative assistant, Ralph Goodale, would have won Assiniboia except for his connection with the justice minister.

Impressive Majority

On top of that, Mr. Lang ran up an impressive majority in his own riding and presided over the Liberal effort that trimmed opposition leads in two Regina seats so drastically that they will be obvious Liberal fighting ground in the next election.

The justice minister is not, therefore, a man to take lightly. No one would be likely to suspect Otto Lang of laxity in the performance of any of his duties.

The minister of justice is confident that he knows the mood of the country on the question of abortion but he should remind himself of two important facts. There was nothing in the election just completed which could be construed as a popular judgment, either way, on the question of abortion. It simply was not one of the issues on which the Canadian people were pronouncing themselves when they went to the polls.

In one of his recent statements on abortion, Mr. Lang seems to recognize that, if rather reluctantly, the Canadian people have, however, pronounced themselves on this issue, with some clarity, although not in the way in which the minister of justice would prefer.

The proposed omnibus bill of criminal code reforms, which he had introduced in the Commons a bit earlier, was an issue in Prime Minister Trudeau's first appeal to the Canadian people in 1968.

The clarification of the law on abortion and the proposals to liberalize some laws on sexual matters were the basis of a tough, and at times very distasteful, campaign against Mr. Trudeau both personally and as leader of the Liberal party. By electing a party headed by him, the public quite obviously was ap-committee of doctors disassociated from hospitals, would have been more liberal.

The government did, however, leave the decision to medical committees and Lang is pleading when he argues that only the narrowest interpretations of the word "health" were intended by Parliament. There were ministers at the time who insisted, to critics of the narrowness of the change, that the committees would in fact come to interpret health very broadly, including its mental and social as well as its physical implications. It is this which the minister of justice now opposes so fervently.

Both the prime minister, who originally sponsored the legislation, and John Turner, who as justice minister, carried it through the House of Commons, are Catholics. I think it is fair to say that the attitude of each of them on this subject, which is difficult for them because of the position of the church, was simply that abortion is forbidden to Catholics, but that the Catholic position cannot be forced on the rest of the population. No one wishes to be unfair to a minister on matters of religion, but the present minister of justice has on occasions left the impression that it is his religious feelings that dominate his view of appropriate law on the subject.

Sensitive Spot

More often than not in recent times the minister of justice has been a Catholic, although there does not seem to have been any policy involved. It is bound to be a sensitive spot for a Catholic who takes his religion seriously because the church insists on a variety of positions that are not accepted by non-Catholics or even, for that matter, by all Catholics. The only appropriate position to be taken in the circumstances, therefore, is the one adopted by the present minister's two predecessors, Turner and Trudeau.

There is another aspect to this problem: Not all young girls who become pregnant fall into the hands of a hospital committee or a Dr. Morgentaler. There is still a knitting needle trade at work in the field and neither Trudeau, Turner nor Lang has ever shown much concern about it or the tragedies it can still cause.

The minister of justice maintains that he will have some "very interesting" legal reforms to present to Parliament. That may be so. But the fact is that so far, although he has carried forward one project which was too far advanced and too well-publicized to abandon, Otto Lang has no track record as a reformer of the law. He has initiated no changes to carry on the work that Trudeau and Turner got so well under way. One may have an open hand about his promise but he cannot ask to be taken on faith.

proving the legal changes with which he was so closely associated at that time. That remains the last electoral word on the subject of abortion.

When the time for further action came, the Trudeau government took the most conservative course open to it, leaving to medical committees in hospitals the decision on applications for abortions. The reason for the choice was obvious — the medical establishments of the hospitals are usually dominated by older doctors, when the hospital itself is not dominated by religious orders. Hospital committees could be counted on to interpret the new law conservatively. The alternatives, to have left the decision to a woman and her doctor or to a

Deposits Lost

It is the common practice of politicians to attack the opposition party to hide their own failures. Immediately after the recent election, William Bennett followed this practice by demanding that David Barrett call an election on the grounds that the NDP had lost the confidence of the electorate. In so doing, did he wish to hide the dismal showing of Social Credit which ran ten candidates, all of whom lost their deposits and received a total of only 12,037 votes or an average of 1,203.7 votes per candidate.

If, as Mr. Bennett avers, the electorate has lost confidence in the NDP, it is clear that it has not found Social Credit worthy of its trust. The number of votes cast for his party is clear and precise evidence that Mr. Bennett and Social Credit have not impressed the voters.

These are some facts of the election related to B.C. Mr. Bennett could muster only ten candidates out of a possible 23 to run for office. All his candidates lost their deposits. The Communists, Marxist-Leninists and independents got 5,326 votes. Social Credit got only a little more than twice as many votes as the Communists, Marxist-Leninists and independents.

In view of these facts perhaps Mr. Bennett should examine his leadership of Social Credit to see why his party made such a dismal showing in the federal election. E. L. Abbott, 1041 Chamberlain St.

A Truism Indeed

I read Richard Gwyn's column on "a truism" in Friday's edition, (explaining the election results).

What drives a man to write in such a fashion; unless, of course, the writer is a hired public relations man?

The column mentioned nothing of Alberta's resounding repudiation of the government or the fact that the government in power had the great advantage in preparing the way by the strategic distribution of treasury funds and patronage. All the writer really needed to have said was, that we escaped a minority government by only nine seats. (Ed. note: we make it 18).

Truism indeed. Is that what is called journalism? —Philip M. Saville, 515 Foul Bay Road.

60 YEARS AGO

From the Times of July 19, 1914

Two disturbances were recorded on the seismograph at the observatory on Gonzales Hill last evening. At 7:46 p.m. a tremor was felt, the origin of which Mr. Denison says, must not have been far distant. At 11:18 p.m. there was a well-defined quake recorded. The origin seemed to be about 800 miles distant, and Mr. Denison thinks it was probably on the Northwest coast of Alaska. A rumbling noise preceded the disturbances, which seemed to come from the south, crossing the strait. These tremors were not recorded on the seismograph, and may have been due to heavy gunfire on the other side.

Latin America Turns Its Back On Castro . . .

By MARK GAYN
The Toronto Star

CARACAS—Soon the Cuban capital of Havana will be decked with red flags, a million people will go out into the streets to chant slogans and sing, and Fidel Castro, still fiery and youthful, will deliver one of his passionate and overlong speeches. Back in 1959, he came down from the mountains with his band of guerrillas and took power, and now his regime will be marking 15 years of survival.

It is true that his regime's survival to this day depends on a daily, million-dollar gift of supplies from the Soviet Union, but this hardly detracts from Castro's glory.

Here, 1,200 miles towards the tropics from Havana, the anniversary will be noted as a landmark. In Venezuela as in most of this troubled hemisphere, Castro's name is known at least as well as those of its own rulers. He is all they are not—a romantic hero, a man of charismatic appeal, machismo (masculinity) and that rare spark which fires men's spirits.

But the anniversary is also likely to revive the debate on Castro's greatest failure. This hemisphere is ripe for upheaval. It is being robbed by dictators and oppressed by military juntas; it has millions living in bleak poverty matched only in the poorest corners of Africa and Asia; and it is poisoned by social injustice. But this unhappy continent has in effect rejected Castro.

In a research institute here, one of his former fellow-guerrillas explains how Castro let his romantic notions of revolution obscure his good sense in Venezuela:

"Fidel was too impatient, too eager to make an impact on Latin America. At just about the time he came to power in Cuba, the army dictatorship here was driven out, and the nation was floating on cloud nine. The people were ecstatic about the return of democracy. And Castro chose this very moment to urge us to rise up in arms. There was a sense of outrage here. He said he would free us from the Americans. But the people asked if he would deliver us into the hands of the Russians."

Another witness is Teodoro Petkoff, a former leader of the Venezuelan communist party. The son of a Bulgarian Communist, Petkoff could match Castro for both charisma and machismo. A compact, handsome man with a black Balkan moustache, he speaks well and writes beautifully. He is also a revolutionary pro. He has led urban guerrillas in bloody street battles in Caracas; like Fidel he has gone into the mountains and seen his guerrillas slaughtered; he has served two terms in the harsh jail at the San Carlos fortress and made two sensational escapes.

Today he leads a small revolutionary party of his own,

Castro at 1971 rally in Chile before military takeover sits in the lower House and tries to analyze the failure and prospects of revolution in Latin America.

In a remarkable story of his life dictated to the distinguished American journalist Norman Gall, Petkoff argues that Castro is not the answer. In the mid-60s, he reveals, the Cubans made a secret proposal to the Venezuelan Communists to send "Che" Guevara, Castro's lieutenant, to this country to revive the languishing guerrilla war.

The Communist leaders here turned the idea down. Petkoff, at the time behind bars, agreed. They all felt that Castro was an interloper, trying to export his revolution to this country.

But as important in Petkoff's mind was the use to which the Cuban intervention could be put by the anti-Communists. It would have been enough for Guevara to appear in the mountains for all the Venezuelan revolutionaries to be branded as Soviet tools.

Castro did not give up. He found allies among the Venezuelan militants and tried to land agents on the Venezuelan coast. This did not help. And when the Communist party here finally dissolved its battered guerrilla units, Fidel bitterly attacked them as cowards and traitors.

"Che" looked like a movie idol, displayed the fervor of a messiah and was driven by the instincts of a revolutionary adventurer. To this day he is adored by countless young people in Europe and North America. But with his own blood, "Che" proved the Venezuelan Communists right.

He appeared in the Bolivian jungle in late 1966. Others in his pathetically small band included at least three members of the Cuban central committee. "Che" was able to survive for 11 months but the peasants whom he had come to free of their chains were not interested. They listened stonily to Communist speeches and refused to join up. In the end they apparently betrayed him to the army. "Che's" band was ambushed and he was wounded and captured. It is likely that he was tortured. After he died he was buried secretly, with two of his fingers removed for fingerprint records.

Many of the countries in this hemisphere are ready for violent upheaval. Five of them are ruled by brutal army juntas. Tens of thousands of people are in prisons where torture is being practised. Millions go hungry. In Argentina after Juan Peron's death the soil is waiting for blood from a civil war, a military coup, perhaps a revolution.

But what Fidel Castro, the romantic rebel, will not understand is that his brand of revolution has somehow become tainted in the people's eye. He is barely acceptable as an ally and wholly unwanted as the gun slinger of revolution. Moscow and Peking have long said (but not always behaved accordingly) that revolutions cannot be exported. This unhappy and violent hemisphere, still trying to find its own ways to a changed and better life, is proving them right.

Define the Rules Of Life and Death

THE GLOBE AND MAIL
An Editorial

It is too simplistic, too easy, for doctors to say their sole obligation is to preserve life regardless of how meaningless that life is. To insist that as long as the organs can be made to function, it matters not that the spark of humanity has long since fled.

To their credit a majority of doctors voting at the general council meeting of the Canadian Medical Association realized this and were prepared to grapple with the awesome issue of wilfully permitting death. Nevertheless, their first tentative resolution needs much greater definition and the caution they showed was thoroughly justified.

'Ethically Acceptable'

They voted 75 to 66 to approve a resolution that said: "Be it resolved that the CMA recognize that there are conditions of ill health and impending inevitable death where an order on the order sheet by the attending doctor of 'no resuscitation' is appropriate and ethically acceptable."

We agree that there are cases where a refusal to resuscitate would be appropriate. But medical associations will have to outline what those cases are. People have a right to know what the rules of life and death are going to be.

Perhaps sensing this, the doctors returned to the subject later and passed another resolution saying that, "In view of the decision related to no resuscitation, that council's decision be referred to the Canadian Medical Association-Canadian Bar Association joint committee for its comment."

They then passed a further resolution that: "Whereas there could be legal implications to a physician carrying out such an action, therefore be it resolved that the CMA obtain legal advice on this matter and carry it to the medical profession when this decision of general council is published to the physicians of Canada."

The decision of whether to sustain life cannot be left entirely to the attending doctor. At the very least there must be strict guidelines as to what circumstances have to exist and what consents, if any, from next of kin have to be obtained before support systems are withheld. And, of course, legislation will have to be enacted so that doctors and next of kin do not have to make their decisions under the threat of criminal prosecution.

In the United States, substantial support has been generated for what is called the Living Will, proposed by the Euthanasia Education Council. More than 300,000 copies of model Living Wills have been distributed by churches, doctors and schools.

The wills are addressed to "My family, my physician, my clergyman, my lawyer" and they ask that, "if there is no reasonable expectation of my recovery from physical or mental disability, I be allowed to die and not be kept alive by artificial means or heroic measures . . . I ask that drugs be mercifully administered to me for terminal suffering even if they hasten the moment of death."

The wills are suggested as a way of getting around the problem posed by the terminally ill patient who no longer is capable of expressing his wishes. However, some opposition to the wills is growing among those who argue that the wills don't take account of the person who changes his mind at the last moment. Counter-suggestions of up-dating the will every year do not fully satisfy the skeptics.

Open to Abuse

Doctors at the CMA meeting unanimously rejected the idea of using Living Wills as being too open to abuse.

In Canada, since 1972, it is no longer a crime to attempt suicide. So theoretically a patient could refuse treatment that would prolong his life (although the law still makes it a crime for anyone to counsel or assist in a suicide). But what of those patients whose minds are irretrievably lost? Or who are driven nearly to insanity by pain? Or who simply are totally senile? Those who cannot make a decision—even to confirm a Living Will? Who should make the awesome decision for them? And how?

The doctors could be criticized for the vagueness of their resolution, but that would be unfair. The issue is monumental and they deserve credit for taking it on, however stumbling their first steps may be.

. . . While the U.S. Blockade Is Crumbling

By DAVID BINDER
New York Times

The Nixon administration has lost control of the U.S. policy of maintaining a political and economic quarantine against Cuba, in the opinion of government officials specializing in Latin American affairs.

Pat Holt, staff director of the U.S. Senate foreign relations committee, who met with Premier Fidel Castro in Havana recently, is also understood to believe that Castro and others in Latin America have begun to determine the pace and direction of Cuba's breakout from hemisphere isolation. This view is reportedly shared by a growing number of Latin American governments.

Holt, who began his Cuba trip June 28, had been trying to get U.S. State Department authorization for the visit since 1966. He finally received it last Dec. 7 from Secretary of State Henry Kissinger.

The meetings Holt had with Castro and other Cuban leaders—including Blas Roca, a member of the governing Communist Party's secretariat, and Dr. Carlos Rafael Rodriguez, first deputy premier—are being viewed in Washington and in Latin America as an important signal, perhaps even a breakthrough.

The course of U.S. policy isolating Cuba began in January, 1961, when the Eisenhower administration broke diplomatic ties with Havana over what it considered provocations by the Castro government.

A year later the Organization of American States voted to "exclude Cuba from the inter-American system."

Washington followed up in February, 1962, with a trade embargo against Cuba, and then in March denied entry to products of Cuban origin.

In July, 1964, the Organization of American States, following Washington's policy, voted that member states should break diplomatic and trade ties with Cuba. All but Mexico complied.

As for recent developments, "all kinds of things are happening on the Cuban front," one U.S. administration official observed, "and the administration is on the defensive."

Among the "things happening," the Nixon administration official noted, was the inclusion of Cuba among the Latin American countries attending the International Law of the Sea Conference in Caracas.

In addition, Mexico's president, Luis Echeverria Alvarez, has begun a tour of seven Latin American countries, partly with the idea of pleading Cuba's cause.

Mexico has always maintained diplomatic relations with Cuba. Lately Peru, Argentina and four Caribbean countries have opened embassies in Cuba.

Among other countries, Echeverria is visiting Costa Rica, Ecuador and Venezuela, which are believed to be poised to open full-scale relations with Cuba. Panama and Colombia are in that group, too, officials believe, and are soon to be joined by Guatemala and Honduras.

"There is a stampede effect at the moment," one Washington official said. "Even Chile is reconsidering its stance toward Cuba. The Latins are petrified at not being on the bandwagon. Now, instead of being the bad boy on the block as in the sixties, there is a turnabout and they are coming to Castro."

Echeverria has stated in recent news conferences that one of the aims of his Latin American tour is to persuade other hemisphere governments to "lift the blockade against Cuba" that the OAS adopted in 1964.

Administration policy toward Cuba remains "unchanged," according to the latest official statements.

That policy was made clear also in a letter Kissinger wrote in December to Sen. J. W. Fulbright, chairman of the foreign relations committee, concerning Holt's request for permission to go to Havana.

Kissinger said that the state department agreed "reluc-

ECHEVERRIA . . . gathers support

tantly" to validate Holt's passport after setting out "our continuing assessment that it is important to our national interest and the security of the hemisphere to seek the isolation of Cuba in cooperation with other American republics."

In the opinion of several U.S. officials specializing in Cuban affairs, the turnabout in hemisphere politics has resulted from factors entirely outside Washington's influence.

These, they said, included:

● Castro's apparent desire to be less dependent on the Soviet Union, which provides Cuba with over $1 million a day in assistance and has some 7,000 civilian advisers on the island, in addition to military advisers.

● What appears to be the virtual cessation of efforts by Cubans to help overthrow right-wing Latin American governments, except in Chile.

● The determination of a growing number of Latin American governments to decide their own foreign policies, particularly with regard to Cuba. In this connection Argentina's decision to export motor vehicles manufactured by U.S. automobile company subsidiaries to Cuba, forced the Nixon administration last spring to licence those sales, undercutting the embargo policy.

● The Castro government's decision to conduct its hemispheric relations in traditional diplomatic channels rather than by encouraging revolution.

"Castro is in the catbird seat at last," said a U.S. analyst of Cuban affairs. "He says he'll talk to Holt and he does. He says he'll talk to Kissinger if the blockade is lifted and it makes us look naked."

Fear and Loathing in Winnipeg

Toronto, July 3

By R. LAIRD O'BRIEN

Dear Ralph:

At the end of the conference last month in Winnipeg, you asked us all to send in our comments. Sorry to be so slow but I've been in hospital (which I'll explain in a minute or two) and, besides, my comments aren't too cheerful.

First off, somebody pinched my wallet. Not only do I miss the $150 inside, but the wallet was given to me by the mayor of our town when I managed to clear his drain on a Sunday just before his big dinner party. You can see why it would be a heartbreaker to lose.

I'm sure it happened during the opening wine-and-cheese party when the leader — that Therapeutic Recreation Consultant — got us into the sensitivity stuff. Remember how we were all moving around and talking to strangers, and then he asked us to shut our eyes and feel the face and hair of the person next to us?

Well, there we were, 75 of us, patting and petting and groping at each other. That's when it happened. Somebody lifted the wallet right out of my jacket. A Mrs. Anderson from Moncton also lost a brooch with a real pearl in it. Somebody was feeling a lot more than faces, eh?

To be honest, Ralph, the whole thing was disappointing. Four years ago I went to a conference in San Francisco and sat through a three-hour speech on accounting. At the time it seemed dull, but I went home with a lot of ideas and redesigned my whole bookkeeping system. Saved me a lot of money. Maybe I was expecting too much this time. Even the title was weird: A Self-realization Teach-in. Funny stuff for a bunch of plumbing and electrical contractors.

Doesn't anybody make a speech anymore? Everything was an encounter session, multi-media exposure or group dynamics workshop. The program said "information plus involvement equals awareness." For me, it equals crap!

I had never even heard the word "synetics" until I walked into that session on Thursday morning (and I still don't know what it means). The guy they called Rosewater was down on the floor, crawling around pretending he was a grasshopper. The rest of the group—seven of us—were sitting in a circle on the floor trying to figure out ways for a poor little grasshopper to get across the highway without getting squashed.

No kidding! And all the time I kept thinking what the hell has this got to do with the subject which was how to keep inventory costs down in a depot-warehouse system.

No doubt you're wondering why I've been in hospital, and since it has a lot to do with the conference, I'm going to tell you. Remember the role-playing session—the one that was supposed to release hidden potential and help us improve staff relations? It turned out that I was to play a young apprentice plumber working for a penny-pinching old fool. The leader told the two of us to "find a way to relate . . . confront each other . . . get all the hostility out in the open."

So I really let fly. Told him what I thought of him, his business, his crummy job. It was terrific, until he suddenly belted me in the mouth. When I got home the X-rays showed a cracked jaw and I've been wired for soup for a few weeks.

Personally I would have preferred a conference with a little more expert information and a little less personal involvement (especially with my jaw and my wallet). If you're planning another get-together like this one, don't tell me about it.

Cheers

Jack

P.S. Do you happen to know the answer to that grasshopper problem?

VICTORIA: A Potpourri Of House Designs

Houses.

Some are grand, settled sedately among coiffured trees and manicured lawns. Still others are built boldly of stone or softly of wood, on bluffs above the water or in shade below the branches.

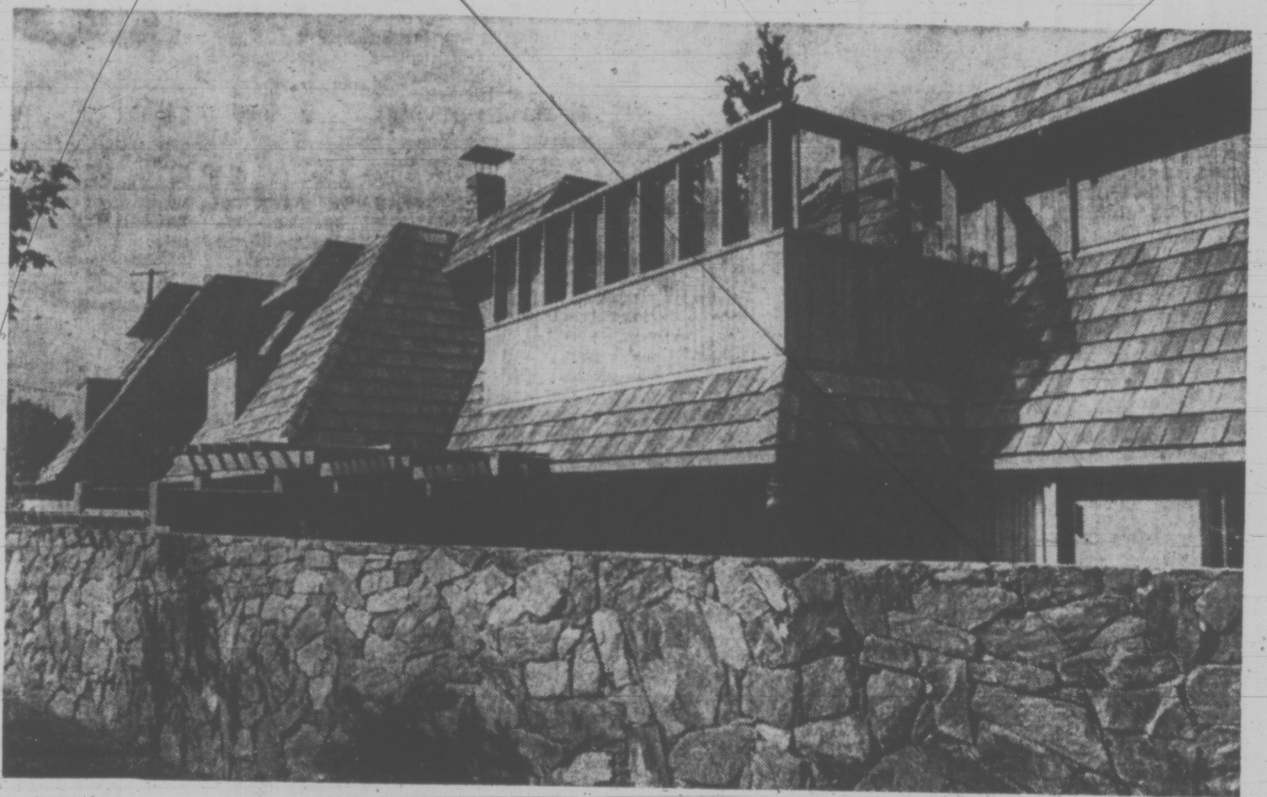

Some have the straight stark lines and glass glitter of the new, others the smudges and crooked ways of the old.

Houses, like people, come in all shapes and sizes and while they stand mute, they speak volumes about their builders or the owners who came later and liked what they saw.

Victoria is old enough to offer some history through its houses. Most of them speak of people who came from other places, liked what they found and built to stay.

Land Revisions Planned

MANSON'S LANDING (CP) — Land commission maps designating agricultural reserves will be completely redrawn in some areas of B.C. Municipal Affairs Jim Lorimer said here Wednesday.

He did not specify which areas can expect revision, but said Cortes Island residents will have a good chance to correct injustices they say now exist in the map of their island.

Lorimer was speaking at a meeting of the Legislative Municipal Matters and Housing Committee which is touring upcoast islands in an attempt to determine whether they require different forms of local government.

Wilfred Freeman, chairman of the Ratepayers' Association for Cortes Island, told the committee island residents have been disappointed that the B.C. government did not consult them when drawing up agricultural reserve maps, and added that the residents now are drawing up their own. He said islanders do not need legislation such as the Island Trust Act, designed to ensure Gulf Islands are not ravished by speculation and development, because they have formed their own organization to control development. Extension of the act to Cortes Island will destroy residents' initiative, he said.

Lorimer's policies were criticized by Don Campbell, an island ratepayer and municipal affairs minister for eight years in the former Social Credit government.

Campbell said the inter-departmental environment and land use committee is growing steadily but not aiding local decision making.

WOMAN DIES IN CUSTOMS

BLAINE, Wash. (AP) — A Los Angeles woman died Thursday after she swallowed a small bottle of white powder in U.S. customs headquarters on the U.S.-Canada border, said customs authorities.

Dr. Robert Rood, Whatcom County coroner, said Thursday an autopsy performed at the request of customs officials was inconclusive. He said he forwarded microscopic slides to the Federal Bureau of Investigation lab in Washington, D.C., for toxicology studies to determine a cause of death.

Edward Winsor, acting district director for the U.S. Customs Service in Seattle, said the dead woman apparently was returning to the U.S. from Vancouver.

Polygraph Clears Suspect

COQUITLAM (CP) — RCMP said Thursday a lie detector test has exonerated the driver of a green camper truck sought in connection with the sex murder of a 15-year-old girl.

Sgt. Wilf Petkau said the man came forward Wednesday night and confirmed that he picked up Robin Gates at 9:30 p.m. July 7 in Coquitlam. The man, about 40 and residing in the greater Vancouver area, positively identified Robin as the girl he picked up hitch-hiking.

Sgt. Petkau said the man told them he drove Robin about 2½ miles to the corner of Austin Ave. and North Road in Coquitlam where she left the car on her way to Sasamat Lake.

To get to the lake, about 10 miles north of the intersection where she was last seen alive, Robin would likely have had to hitch-hike north on North Road.

"We're hoping anyone who might have picked her up at the intersection will come forward and we will trace her from there," Sgt. Petkau said.

The girl's body was found July 9 on Burke Mountain in Coquitlam. She had been raped and murdered.

B.C. Paper Holdings 'Impressive'

Resources Minister Bob Williams is back from a brief visit to Europe and said Thursday B.C. holdings in Belgium are "most impressive."

The minister made his first visit to Haseldonckx and Gastuche paper companies near Brussels, companies the province holds shares in through Canadian Cellulose.

The government bought 79 per cent controlling interest in Canadian Cellulose last year and in the purchase acquired 50 per cent share of Haseldonckx and a 43 per cent share in Castuche.

Williams said the profit picture of the two companies this year "is very good, the best in their history." Haseldonckx sells 25 per cent of all the paper bought in Belgium.

"It's just another indication that the Canadian Cellulose share acquisition by the government was probably one of the most successful ventures by any government in the history of Canada," he said.

Elevator Strife Going Up Again

VANCOUVER (CP)—Fears of another major tieup for the British Columbia construction industry were expressed Thursday amid reports of renewed labor unrest among the province's elevator installers.

At least two companies have fired workers for low productivity and "sitting around."

At the root of the problem appeared to be widespread worker dissatisfaction with terms of an Ontario arbitration settlement handed down some time ago.

The workers, members of the International Union of Elevator Constructors were on strike for seven months in 1972 and 1973 before provincial Labor Minister Bill King ordered both sides to accept the Ontario arbitration.

The workers appear to be unwilling to do this and the construction industry fears another labor stoppage could do serious harm.

Charles Connaghan of Construction Labor Relations said Thursday: "We are very concerned with the possibility of a work stoppage in the industry. We are just recovering from our own problems and any further stoppage would only cause hardship for our contractors, tradesmen, the public and the provincial economy."

The union could not be contacted for comment. But an industry source said trouble seems near. Five elevator companies, Westinghouse, Armor, Otis, Turnbull and Montgomery are involved in the dispute.

Westinghouse says it fired five men July 5 and only a handful of elevator constructors are working. The company says it is doing only maintenance and minor work. Other companies are said to be in the same position.

Negotiators for the companies met with the union two weeks ago to discuss adoption of the Ontario award to B.C. but failed to reach agreement.

R. D. Suddard, spokesman for the company negotiators, said in Hamilton, Ont. "We recognize Mr. King is extremely busy and we are awaiting his further guidance."

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The makers of Lysol disinfectant have agreed to stop claiming that using the product around the house will kill germs that cause flu, colds or sore throat, the U.S. Federal Trade commission announced today.

In addition, Sterling Drug Inc. of New York City agreed to stop advertising the "environmental surfaces" around the home — sinks, counter tops, bathroom floors and so on — are a significant source of germs associated with colds and other common maladies.

The agreement grew out of a complaint issued against Sterling in 1972 by the FTC.

Sterling issued a statement saying the agreement does not question Lysol's overall germ-killing ability, only its effectiveness against cold and flu germs.

Under the settlement Lysol may not be advertised for use against germs associated with disease unless the kind of disease is specifically mentioned, and there is reliable scientific evidence to back up the claim.

Driving Spree Warning

WASHINGTON (UPI)

The 10-gallon limits and "no gas today" signs of last summer will be back next month if American motorists decide to go on an unrestrained summer driving spree, according to a Congressional report.

The Senate interior committee released a report Wednesday looking at the rest of the year's gasoline availability.

"Demand remains the key to the situation," the report said. "In spite of the increased supplies available as a result of the lifting of the (Arab oil) embargo, there will not be sufficient gasoline on hand to satisfy all of the potential demand for gasoline. Because of the continued tightness in supply, although much improved over the first quarter of 1973, the situation will require continuation of conservation measures adopted last winter. If the public returns to unrestrained driving, shortages could recur."

The report said conservation during January through March amounted to 10 per cent of demand but that drivers didn't do as well in April, saving only 3.4 per cent of normal demand.

"The west coast will probably experience the tightest situation because most gasoline imports arrive on the east coast and very little of that is distributed that far west," it said. If shortages occur, it said, the upper midwest, New England, Florida, and Hawaii would also be among the most likely problem areas because of distribution patterns.

The report said "some tightness of supply" can be expected, even under good conditions, the rest of this year "and possibly for the two succeeding years."

Bonner Back In the Chair

VANCOUVER — Social Credit leader Bill Bennett said Thursday that Robert Bonner, former British Columbia attorney-general, will chair September's Social Credit resolution workshop, a prelude to the party's provincial convention.

Bonner, 53, was attorney-general in the Social Credit government for 16 years before joining MacMillan Bloedel in 1968. He resigned from the chairmanship of the forest products company in April.

Asked if he had discussed with Bonner the possibility of the former attorney-general running for office, Bennett said "I don't make private conversations public."

"But anyway, I don't give out nominations. That's done at the constituency level."

LAS VEGAS — It has been 20 years, two husbands and seven children since Rochelle Robley had seen her old high school boyfriend, Tommy Smothers.

Since their teen-age romance at Verdugo Hills high school, Smothers and his brother, Dick, had become a well known entertainment team.

While in Reno, earlier this year, Rochelle went to see the Smothers Brothers' at Harrah's club. She and Tommy got to talking and then they got to dating. Whatever it was that made sparks in high school in 1952 was still there.

Smothers, 37, and Rochelle, 36, were married this week.

WEATHERFORD, Okla. — Businessmen in this western Oklahoma city of 8,000 decided Thursday to meet the penny shortage by issuing paper pennies.

These will be sold to local business establishments for use as change.

The scrip can be redeemed for cash at either the chamber of commerce or at city banks.

Marion Davidson, a local auto dealer, illustrated the penny shortage at a chamber meeting by offering to sell a car to any member for 15 cents — if he could pay for it with 15 pennies from his pocket. There were no takers.

OTTAWA — Five Ukrainian Canadians entered the fourth day of their hunger strike outside the Soviet embassy Thursday to protest the imprisonment in Russia of dissident Ukrainian writer Valentyn Moroz.

John Woychyszyn, a physician who visits the demonstrators each day, said all are in good condition.

On their diet of water, salt tablets and vitamins A, C, and D, he said they can last at least a week — "maybe two weeks and more."

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. — Dr. Tolbert Hill has treated his last patient and let his medical licence expire. He is 100. Hill tried to end his practice in 1955, the year his wife died. But since no other doctor practised in Athens, a central Illinois community of 1,000, he continued to see some patients until earlier this year.

Hill says he is enjoying his retirement. But he mused: "Old age is no fun. You lose your hearing and can't appreciate the rustle of a silk skirt anymore."

LONDON — Paulene Stone, widow of film star Laurence Harvey, and Justin de Villen-euve, the former hairdresser who launched Twiggy on a glittering modelling and stage career, are to marry next month.

Justin, 35, met Paulene, 33, at a dinner party 12 days ago.

Paulene married Harvey in January last year, 10 months before he died of cancer. She has two daughters, one from her marriage to Harvey and another from her first marriage to society photographer Tony Norris.

Justin and his wife Pamela were divorced in 1968 and have a 14-year-old daughter.

OTTAWA — Olive Diefenbaker, wife of former prime minister John Diefenbaker, was reported resting comfortably in hospital Thursday, after undergoing major abdominal surgery earlier. Diefenbaker said doctors were satisfied with his wife's progress and that his wife would probably remain in hospital for several weeks.

FROM WINGS to wheels for Paul and Linda McCartney winding up a taping session in Nashville for a follow-up album to their chart-topping Band on the Run with a motorcycle spin.

Ed: One of the New Breed

OTTAWA (CP) — Ed Broadbent is one of a new breed of politician who veterans of the social-democratic movement hope can breathe new life into the New Democratic Party.

And with his appointment as interim parliamentary leader, he must be considered a leading contender to replace David Lewis, 65.

Broadbent (right) has received praise from the veterans.

Lewis called him young, vigorous and dynamic and said "the time has come for the Douglas-Lewis generation to give way to younger people."

T. C. Douglas, 70, who led the NDP and the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation from which it sprang, called him outstanding, intelligent, competent and articulate.

Unsuccessful in seeking the party leadership at a convention in 1971, Broadbent burst into the political limelight in 1968 with a 15-vote election victory over Michael Starr, former Progressive Conservative labor minister.

For two years he has been chairman of the party caucus and people such as Douglas says he did an outstanding job.

Broadbent promised there would be "some new kinds of emphasis" from the NDP in the next Parliament, but there would be no departure from the basic policies on which the party fought the July 8 election and lost half its seats.

Broadbent, apparently so unprepared for the leadership that he had to borrow a jacket for TV interviews, brushed off questions about the future party leadership race as being a "spurious point."

Crucial task at present is providing effective party leadership in the Commons, he said.

Mr. Lewis said that being parliamentary leader could hinder rather than help Mr. Broadbent in a leadership race, since the man up front is always a ready target.

But Mr. Douglas was more sanguine. He said Mr. Broadbent is young enough to relate to contemporary society.

"Ah, he'll do well," Douglas said.

ESTATE RECEIVED

A Victoria man has left his entire $63,000 estate to the Victoria branch of the Canadian Mental Health Association, says director Egon Baumann.

Baumann said the directors of the association had decided not to release the man's name. He said he was informed of the bequest, made in the man's will, last week. The money will be used for general projects.

BRAIN TEST FOR SUSAN

ATLANTA (UPI) — Actress Susan Hayward has undergone a biopsy for a brain tumor and her physician says he is still awaiting tests to determine whether the tumor was malignant.

Dr. George Tindall confirmed Thursday he had performed "a brain biopsy" but said Miss Hayward was in good condition.

In Los Angeles, Miss Hayward's son, Tim Barker, confirmed his mother was in the hospital "for a few tests," but said he did not know their purpose.

Miss Hayward, who won the Academy award for best actress in 1959 for I Want to Live, came to Georgia to make I'd Climb the Highest Mountain.

Miss Hayward has starred in 32 major Hollywood films.

BIG WHEELS of Edmonton give the impetus to this entry in the Edmonton Klondike Days' bathtub race. Mayor Ivor Dent, in the striped trunks and Ray Jaunt, coach of the Edmonton Eskimos, take the port and starboard respectively, while general manager of the Edmonton Oilers, Bill Hunter, gives an added boost from the inside with a long-handled plumber's plunger.

Health Adviser to Revamp Dept.

Assistant deputy of hospital insurance, Jim Mainguy, has been appointed special consultant to implement re-organization of the health department.

It will involve setting up two main branches in the department — community health and institutions — to replace the four branches which exist now.

After re-organization Mainguy will be appointed senior deputy of health with deputies from the two new branches under him and with an increase in salary to $39,000.

Health Minister Dennis Cocke said the re-organization will follow the lines of recommendations in the Foulkes report on health care in B.C.

but will not go as far as to combine the departments of health and human resources.

Cocke said he expects the re-organization to take about six to nine months and legislation to be brought in during the fall session to allow Mainguy, not a medical doctor, to take the deputy post.

Legislation now allows only doctors to hold the top health department post.

The point of the re-organization, he said, is to make a more fully co-ordinated department, with branches not operating on such a separate basis.

Asked what would happen to the deputies of the existing health department branches, Cocke said there will be "all sorts of jobs for them to do."

Secret Police Nab Korean Politician

Washington Post

SEOUL — A leading national assemblyman was hauled away by secret police Thursday as he prepared to denounce growing repression in South Korea and appeal for a restoration of political liberties.

Kim Young-San, vice president of the opposition New Democratic Party and a candidate for its now-vacant presidency, was seized by plainclothes agents at the time of a news conference he had scheduled to air his views.

"I'm being taken to the KCIA (The Korea Central Intelligence Agency, the government's secret police agency)," Kim shouted through window of a moving sedan to reporters who had been waiting outside his house Thursday morning.

A fellow opposition parliamentarian, Choi Hyung-Woo, and Kim's secretary were taken into custody at the political leader's downtown office, and copies of his prepared press conference statement were confiscated. Thursday night, nearly 12 hours later, Kim's family received a telephone call saying that he and the two others were being released. There was no immediate explanation for their detention. No report of these arrests was printed in the controlled Korean press, but word quickly spread through the capital city.

The 46-year-old opposition politician returned a month ago from a trip to the United States where he received an honorary doctorate in literature at Towson State College in Maryland. While in Washington, he met Sen. Edward Kennedy and other U.S. political figures.

According to those who spoke to him in recent days, Kim had planned to speak out Thursday morning against the special presidential decrees under which death sentences have been meted out to Korea's best known contemporary poet, Kim Chi Ha, and other leaders of anti-government student demonstrations, he was said to be planning to propose a return to democratic rule as a means of repairing relations with the United States and Japan.

CITY WIDOWS CON MEN'S PREY

Con men posing as odd-job repairmen are again preying on widows living alone in James Bay and Fairfield, Better Business Bureau manager Bill Tindall said today.

Tindall said he has had three complaints from James Bay and two from the Fairfield area in the last 10 days.

He said he thinks the availability of voters' lists tacked up on telephone poles before the July 8 election may have had "a great deal of influence" on the rash of incidents.

Con men can always search out in the B.C. directory names of women living alone in houses, he said, but the voters' list made the information even more available.

A typical case is a James Bay widow who hired a man to paint her house at an estimated cost of $750. She naively paid him with blank cheques and discovered later she had paid the "painter" about $2,000.

"People should just have nothing to do with people who knock on their door and offer to do work for them," Tindall warned.

Historic Church Ravaged

PRINCE GEORGE (CP)—Souvenir hunters have picked clean an historic Indian church at Shelly, eight miles east of here, forcing the Shelly Band to board up the doors and stained glass windows for the first time in 60 years.

In the past four months scavengers have removed 16 religious paintings, a Bible stand and its old Bible, a carved wooden table, several statuettes of the nativity, altar cloths, priests' vestments and two pews.

They also pried off and removed the crown of thorns from a five-foot plaster statue of Christ.

Many of the religious objects were obtained over the years in trade for moccasins and handicrafts made by the Shelly Indians, former band chief Ron Seymour said Thursday.

He said his people are disgusted with the souvenir hunters whom he believes are whites.

"We've heard about robbing old people, but you're getting pretty far down when you rob a church," said Seymour. "The doors of the church were never locked because old people liked to wander in at any time and pray."

He said the church has not held regular services for several years and the last formal use was a funeral in 1973.

Until this year the church interior attracted sketches and sightseers, Seymour said. Now only the altar and the stained glass windows remain.

Seymour and his wife, who lived within sight of the church, said the thefts took place so suddenly that the Indians were not aware of what was happening. On a recent Sunday they saw someone load something into the back of a pickup truck and drive away from the church.

They found that 16 80-year-old paintings of the way of the cross had been removed from the walls and the statue of Christ had been shifted out the front door. The thief broke a hand of the statue and abandoned it, but took the crown of thorns. Statuettes and the other objects were taken at other times this spring.

Seymour now is worried about the elaborate stained glass windows which were imported from France and depict various saints and the Virgin Mary. Someone has already pried out several of the panels.

Seymour is convinced none of the Indians is guilty of the damage.

"You'd never find an Indian boy or girl doing something like this. These people come out at weekend and nights."

Parole Board Called Lawless

TORONTO (CP) — A Queen's University law professor says the National Parole Board is "lawless," and riddled with "systematic weaknesses" in its current parole decision-making process.

Writing in the current issue of the Canadian Journal of Criminology and Corrections, Prof. Ronald Price says some safeguards should be built into prison disciplinary hearings to ensure that prisoners are not dealt with arbitrarily.

Terming his approach "avowedly reformist," Prof. Price writes that both parole granting and revocation proceedings "lend themselves to the traditional model of legal protection — the formal hearing with appropriate representation."

However, he says, prisoners applying for parole, or those who have had their parole revoked, have little idea about the criteria used by parole board members in deciding their fate.

The parole board can release a convict on parole, revoke that parole — which means the prisoner loses all earned "good time" and must serve again the time he successfully completed outside — and never be required by law to give the prisoner any form of hearing.

This power creates "systematic weaknesses" in attempts to understand or control board actions.

Vendor's Arrest Queried

VANCOUVER (CP) — Chief Constable Den Winterton Thursday ordered a full investigation into the arrest of Robert Kennedy, 46, an Okanagan orchardist from Oliver.

Kennedy was charged Wednesday with obstructing and assaulting a police officer. He was freed on $5 bail Thursday after spending Wednesday night in jail. He is to appear for trial Oct. 23.

Police said he was arrested after refusing to move his truck from a city-owned traffic island where he had set up a fruit stand and was selling fruit. Police said he moved his car in front of the truck to prevent it from being towed.

Acting deputy chief constable Rex Cray said Thursday it is his understanding that a police officer "went to the scene, saw a situation and called his supervisor."

He said Kennedy's car and truck were towed from his fruit stand and impounded under the hazard and obstruction section of the Motor Vehicle Act.

Cray said Kennedy was held in custody overnight "on say-so of the justice department, that is the prosecutor's office."

Senior prosecutor Mac Norris said the order to hold Kennedy did not come from his office.

Kennedy said Thursday he will continue selling cherries from his fruit stand today despite a summons to appear in court next Wednesday for operating his stand without a licence.

"The hostility of many penitentiary staff to the board is scarcely disguised," he says. "The frustration of the inmates is open — and the results in terms of increased tension in penitentiary institutions should hardly occasion surprise."

Last year, Solicitor-General Warren Allmand appointed Vancouver lawyer Inger Hansen to the post of correctional investigator for federal penitentiaries to look into prisoner complaints. In August, the Canadian Penitentiary Service began a new grievance procedure for prisoners.

Prof. Price is preparing a report for Allmand on the effectiveness of the two innovations.

Mozambique Pact Near

LOURENÇO MARQUES, Mozambique (WP) — The Portuguese military and African nationalist guerrillas fighting for the independence of Mozambique are close to reaching a cease-fire agreement, well informed Portuguese military sources disclosed Thursday night.

The sources said that a cease-fire would come probably within "a few weeks" and that guerrillas and Portuguese military representatives were already in contact in northern Mozambique working out local accommodations to end the fighting there.

A cease-fire in Mozambique where fighting has been the heaviest of Portugal's three African territories, would be a major breakthrough in Lisbon's current efforts to extricate itself from its costly colonial wars.

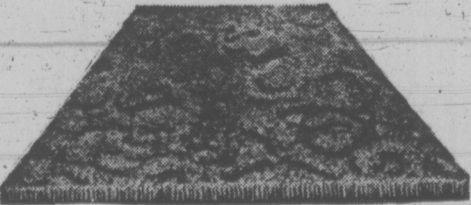

The guerrillas here are members of the Front for the Liberation of Mozambique (Frelimo), which has been waging a liberation war against Portugal for the past 14 years.

The military sources also said that Frelimo has asked the Portuguese army to remain after independence to help it maintain law and order in this sprawling Indian Ocean coastal country of 9 million people while the front establishes a government.

Talks between Frelimo representatives and Portuguese Foreign Minister Mario Soares are scheduled to resume late this month in the Zambian capital of Lusaka, where the first round of negotiations took place in early June.

Last Link Uncovered

NEW YORK (AP) — British and American scientists, drilling into the floor of the South Atlantic, say they have found the last piece of a great continental jigsaw puzzle.

It is the final piece of evidence that South America and Africa were once part of the vast, supercontinent Gondwanaland, along with Australia, New Zealand and Antarctica.

Scientists of Columbia University and Peter Barker of the University of Birmingham found a finger-shaped extension of the Falkland Plateau, under two miles of water and sediment, reaching 750 miles eastward from the Falkland Islands to a point 1,600 miles from the South American mainland.

"Some 150 million years ago, it was cupped snugly along what is now the southeastern coast of South Africa," the scientists said Thursday.

Rocks raised from the sunken continent are believed to be more than 600 million years old — the oldest ever brought up from the bottom of any ocean.

"It completes the puzzle," said Prof. Dalziel. "All the other points along the Atlantic contours of the two continents had been proven by various scientific means to have been joined long ago.

"Now, with deep sea drilling, we've identified a large area of founded continent, and the last piece is in place."

The two made their discovery as co-chief scientists aboard the research ship Glamour Challenger on its 36th leg of the deep sea drilling project, which ended in Rio de Janeiro May 22.

The project is being run by the Scripps Institution of Oceanography of the University of California at San Diego for the U.S. National Science Foundation.

The Falkland Plateau extension fills in what had been an unknown gap in the reconstruction of Gondwanaland, which began breaking up 200 million years ago.

It remained dry land for 50 million years as the continents gradually spread apart. Then it began to sink.

Alaska Hwy. Repairs Delayed by Washout

WHITEHORSE (CP) — The Alaska Highway will be open to traffic in seven to 10 days, according to Merv Miller, assistant commissioner of the Yukon Territories.

Bridge engineers, inspecting damage to the crucial Racing River Bridge at mile 418 of the highway, have not yet reported their findings, however.

Don Sawatsky, information officer with the department of tourism and information here, said how long it will take to repair the bridge depends on the extent of the damage — whether a temporary span can be thrown across or whether a temporary bridge will have to be built.

There will be no through road via the Alaska Highway to Whitehorse until the bridge is repaired, says Keith Bryman, project manager for the highway.

Sawatsky noted that there are many tourists stranded in the area with heavy trailers and camping equipment who will be unable to get home by road.

Meanwhile, the B.C. Emergency Organization at Prince George was preparing a food-lift program to fly emergency food supplies to highway communities cut off by the washouts.

Officials said foodlifts would be made to other communities in the North Peace region of B.C. and the Yukon as required.

In Alaska, where a strike against the state's largest ocean-freight service ended its fourth day Thursday, no serious shortages of food or other commodities were reported, except at Valdez.

The only grocery store operating in the town of 2,000 persons told governor William A. Egan's office that its supplies were nearly exhausted.

When the strike by the teamsters union was called

Monday, the Valdez store operator immediately ordered supplies shipped by truck up the highway.

An executive of Carr's food stores in Anchorage was arranging an emergency shipment of groceries to Valdez by way of the Richardson highway, Egan said.

The state had offered British Columbia any manpower it might need to repair the road, he added.

Southbound traffic could be diverted to Haines, a port of the Alaska Marine Highway system.

"We haven't had any backlog at Haines, but we are going to evaluate it as the traffic increases," said Doug Burton, a marine highway official.

"At the present time, our vessels are going to continue regular runs."

The Alaska State ferry system is fully booked until Aug. 6, and tour operations were starting to fly people in and out of the Yukon.

A spokesman for the Yukon-White Pass railway, which operates between Alaska and the Yukon, said the railway is booked solid until the end of the month.

Tourists trapped by impassable roads between Fort Nelson, at mile 300 of the highway, and Watson Lake, at mile 635, are expected to be escorted out by RCMP.

Those stranded between Fort Nelson and Mile 408 will be taken back to Fort Nelson when the road is passable.

On the other side of the Racing River bridge, approximately 150 people stranded at Muncho Lake, 150 miles northwest of Fort Nelson, will be escorted to Watson Lake.

The other access route to the Yukon, the Stewart-Cassiar road in B.C., which links up to the Alaska Highway, will be open in four to five days, said Sawatsky.

Oak Bay Recycling Carries On

Oak Bay council decided Thursday night to turn a temporary blind eye to a zoning infraction so a recycling project could continue for the summer.

Aldermen agreed to let the project continue operating from a garage at 1606 Monterey after gaining assurance the site would be left tidy and council would be given details on its effectiveness.

The project is financed by a $7,000 Opportunities for Youth grant and is employing seven students until September. It gathered four truckloads of debris for recycling in its first five days.

Council was told that after weeks of searching, the students finally found someone ready to loan their garage, only to be shut down by police earlier this week for a zoning infraction.

A survey of neighbors showed 14 of 15 had no objection to the temporary location of the depot.

NO IWA SETTLEMENT BUT NO STRIKE CALL

KAMLOOPS (CP) — The provincial mediator in the contract dispute between British Columbia Southern Interior forest companies and the International Woodworkers of America is returning to Victoria, without finding a settlement.

However, union business agent Sonny Alexander said the companies' final position did not come up to the union's expectations, while the union has made every effort to try to resolve the situation.

He said he expects that sometime today the labor minister or someone in his department will be in touch with the IWA to let it know "where they go from here."

Contracts for approximately 8,000 southern interior woodworkers expire at the end of the month. The majority of the workers have remained on the job during negotiations although there have been sporadic work stoppages and slowdowns.

Acupuncture Soon?

Health Minister Dennis Cocke said Thursday he hopes an agreement will be reached soon to provide acupuncture on a supervised basis in B.C.

The minister is meeting today with members of the acupuncture committee of the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society and the B.C. Medical Association in Vancouver.

Any use of acupuncture would have to be supervised by the medical profession, he said, but the province owes it to people in pain to provide some sort of relief.

Coroner to Eye Cyclist's Death

A coroner's inquiry will be held into the death of Viggo Borg, 77, of 724 Yates, who died Tuesday in hospital two months and three days after he was hit by a car as he rode his bicycle at Yates and Douglas.

He expects that group to present him with a report on their controlled medical studies of the effects of acupuncture on patients with arthritis and rheumatism and he hopes some accord on its use will come out of the meeting.

BLOOD GOAL SURPASSED

A solid turnout by ships' crews and dockyard personnel Wednesday pushed the Red Cross blood donor campaign this week well past its minimum goal.

Builders' Incentives Urged

OTTAWA (CP) — The Economic Council of Canada has proposed a novel system of levies and incentives and better government investment planning to level out the ups and downs of the construction business.

In a report issued Thursday after 2½ years of study, the council also recommends abolition of the 11-per-cent federal tax on building materials, and continued efforts to protect low-cost housing construction from swings in the economy.

As one of 11 recommendations aimed at more stable construction growths, it suggests that the federal government grant a bonus for businesses investing in construction during slow periods, and a corresponding levy on construction in boom times to deter building.

The levy and incentive would apply to customers, not builders, and would apply only to non-residential construction.

The council leaves open the amount the special tax and bonus would take, but suggests between five and 10 per cent of the value of a project, depending on inflation.

For residential construction, the council says it approves "of the increased emphasis on public financing of low-income housing — both new and existing — and believes, both for social and stabilization reasons, that there should be virtually complete stability in the flow of such housing."

It says housing programs should be financed to ensure steady growth unimpeded by swings in other forms of construction.

The study, requested by Prime Minister Trudeau in January, 1972, found that the federal government itself is largely responsible for instability in construction.

The council says all levels of government and government agencies should coordinate their plans to avoid bringing a number of large projects — pipelines and the James Bay project, for example — to a head at the same time.

It found the total value of construction — about $17 billion in 1972 — about evenly divided among residential, private non-residential and government.

Instability also was about evenly divided among the three sectors. But within the government sphere, federal spending "creates more than its share of instability," the report says.

Instability also was caused by the changing level of demand in the economy, and associated movements in interest rates.

The result of instability was a costly waste of men and material — unemployed in slumps and jammed into bottlenecks during booms.

The problem was aggravated by seasonal variations, fragmented labor patterns and the diffusion of an industry that includes about 80,000 firms.

The 1950s and 1960s each saw a boom and bust, the council says.

"Over the same two decades, not only was growth in profit insignificant for the average construction corporation, but profits were volatile, being approximately four times as unstable as labor income."

Wallace's 'Unity' Backed

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Conservative Party members here reaffirmed their faith in provincial Tory leader Dr. Scott Wallace and passed a resolution Wednesday while he was in Prince George supporting his efforts in trying to create a united opposition party.

The Prince George Conservative Riding Association unanimously passed the motion of confidence, reaffirming a position taken in March. The resolution will be taken to a party board of directors meeting scheduled for July 27 in Vancouver.

Lee Acott, association vice-president, said there was no opposition expressed to Dr. Wallace's stand on the so-called Unity Party.

No Social Credit party members met with Dr. Wallace during his visit.

Police Can Train at Naden

The RCMP in-service training centre at Naden will be offered to members of the province's municipal police forces until the planned provincial Police Academy in Vancouver opens.

The B.C. Police Commission said it will sponsor municipal police officers attending courses at either Naden or Ottawa.

The commission said it would pay transportation costs as well as the $2.10 per day mess fee for persons boarding at the Canadian Forces Base in Esquimalt. Dr. John Hogarth, chairman of the commission, estimated costs at "less than $10,000."

The RCMP leases office and classroom space at Naden from the armed forces and uses the facilities to give its 2,700-man contingent in the province basic in-service training.

Inspector Bob Heywood, head of the North Vancouver RCMP detachment, now seconded to the commission, said Thursday he expected about 200 of the province's 1,400 municipal policemen will attend courses over the next year.

Last year about 900 RCMP officers received in-service training at Naden.

Heywood said the use of Naden for municipal police officers would only be temporary.

A task force is presently setting up a syllabus and curriculum for a provincial police academy in Vancouver. It would train not only raw recruits but provide in-service courses for experienced officers.

The academy, part of a planned justice education centre, is scheduled to open

Jan. 6, 1975, but as yet no suitable accommodation has been found and the date may have to be extended.

Heywood said several locations are being considered and that he hoped a decision would be made within the next two weeks.

Meanwhile, the RCMP is hoping to relocate its training centre from Naden to Vancouver, but that move isn't expected for at least a year-and-a-half.

RCMP Assistant Commissioner Gordon Cunningham said this week such a move is dependent on a new subdivision headquarters being built in Vancouver and the school located in the building now being used.

U.S. Telephone System Faces Strike Votes

WASHINGTON (UPI)

Bargaining between the Bell System and unions representing its 750,000 workers has broken off, but a union leader says even if there is a strike, it would not immediately affect phone service.

The Communications Workers of America, the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, and independent unions involved in the first nationwide bargaining on the more than 100 contracts affected, asked their members to take a strike vote Thursday.

"It is the intention of the parties to try to reach amicable settlement prior to the strike deadline," said Robert Nickey, director of the BEW telephone department.

Mentally-Ill Accused Now Get Day in Court

Mentally ill persons will now have their day in court before being declared unfit to stand trial and being committed to a mental hospital.

Prior to a recent B.C. Supreme Court decision, a person who might be unfit to stand trial could be sent by a judge to a mental hospital for a 30-day observation period.

The provincial cabinet, acting on advice from doctors, could issue an order keeping him indefinitely in custody.

But now the judge, after hearing evidence from the prosecution as well as the person being judged, will issue the order to commit a person to an institution.

The new procedure was used in provincial court twice Thursday.

A 29-year-old Duncan man was declared by Judge William Ostler to be unfit to stand trial on a charge of criminal negligence in operating a motor vehicle.

Psychiatrist Dr. Gordon Stephenson testified that the man suffered from a form of schizophrenia and had probably been mentally ill about a year.

The man had a chance to give evidence, but did not.

In the other hearing, Ostler said a 39-year-old Victoria man was unfit to be tried on a charge of mischief, laid after a man threw two rocks through a glass door of the human resources department building, 965 Alston, June 12.

Stephenson said the man suffered from paranoid delusions.

The man also did not give any evidence on his own behalf.

An official of the attorney general's department, Bob Simson, said the procedure is being used to "let people have their day in court."

Simson said the change follows comments in a judgment by Mr. Justice Frederick Munroe which questioned the legality of using the cabinet order.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

A 28-year-old man who pulled a motel fire alarm to bring police to end a fight in which he was involved found himself Thursday in provincial court answering charges of setting off a false alarm.

John Howard McGee of 409 Quebec, pleaded guilty and was fined $250.

Prosecutor Gordon MacDonald said both police and firemen responded early Thursday to an alarm triggered in a motel on Menzies, but there was no fire.

Police later spoke to McGee who admitted pulling the alarm.

The prosecutor said McGee told police he set the alarm because he was in a fight with a man and needed assistance.

McGee told the court: "At the time it seemed a pretty good thing to do, but it wasn't."

A person in the prisoner's box had something he wanted to tell Judge William Ostler about Wilkinson Road jail, but Ostler said he was not the person who should hear the complaints.

David Michael Henderson, 21, of 4219 Carey, said, after being sentenced to an eight-month jail term and a year's probation for attempted break and entry, and eight months concurrent for being unlawfully in a dwelling house: "I must say a few things about the situation in Wilkinson Road."

Ostler told Henderson court was not the place to deal with the matter.

The charge of attempted break and entry arose after police found him May 10 near a medical clinic on Cook.

Police discovered a screwdriver, pry-bar and flashlight and found pry-marks on one of the clinic's windows.

Henderson was found guilty July 8 and three days later was found guilty of being unlawfully in a dwelling house.

The latter charge resulted from Henderson being identified as the person who was in a room in the Craigflower Motel, 101 Island Highway June 28 when the room's proper occupant returned.

Jeffrey Daniel Nash, 18, of 1705 Feltham, pleaded guilty to theft under $200 for stealing three recording tapes worth $7.21 from K-Mart, 3986 Shelbourne July 3.

He was fined $200.

In traffic court, John Turner Edwards, 43, of 1701 Cedar Hill, was given an 18-day jail term to be served on weekends, was placed on probation for the period of his sentence, and was prohibited from driving for seven months after pleading guilty to impaired driving. Edwards admitted having a previous impaired driving conviction.

Gordon Lewis Hunter, 38, of 3353 Salsbury Way, was fined $315 for driving with more than .08 per cent alcohol, and Richard Eiland Charles Johnston 17, of 2931 Queenston, was fined $225 and banned from driving for 21 days for the same offence. Victor Carl Hodges, 24, of 1840 Fairburn was fined $425 for impaired driving, and, for the same offence, Walter Seginowich, 49, of 3114 Steele, was given a 14-day sentence and banned from driving for eight months.

Two persons pleaded guilty to possessing marijuana and were fined $75: Frederick Albert Wright, 18, of Toronto, and Elton William Beach, 21, of 317 Simcoe.

IN HIGHLANDS

Swim, Fish, Gaze

By HUMPHRY DAVY
Times Staff

A new 1,058-acre park has been created in the highland district by the Capital Regional District.

It is the region's second largest park — surpassed only in size by the 4,000-acre East Sooke Park.

It takes in three highland lakes — Fork, Pease and the city-owned Durrance Lake — and a beach area at McKenzie Bight on Saanich Inlet. The 1,400-foot Mount Work, highest mountain on the Saanich Peninsula, is also included.

The park was completed with the acquisition earlier this month of 33 acres of land on the northwestern side of Fork Lake, near Munns Road.

The remaining lands making up the park were acquired over the past three years.

A 4½-mile trail running the entire length of the park and taking in the lakes was completed earlier in July.

No name has yet been given the park and suggestions are welcomed, park committee chairman Roy Pallister said.

He said an Indian name was suggested in a report by Tony Roberts when he was serving as the board's chief planner. Roberts is now with the B.C. Land Commission.

Pallister hopes the park can be expanded to take in other areas in the highland district.

If you are looking for a park with a wide variety of scenery, plus swimming in fresh or salt water and fishing, this is it.

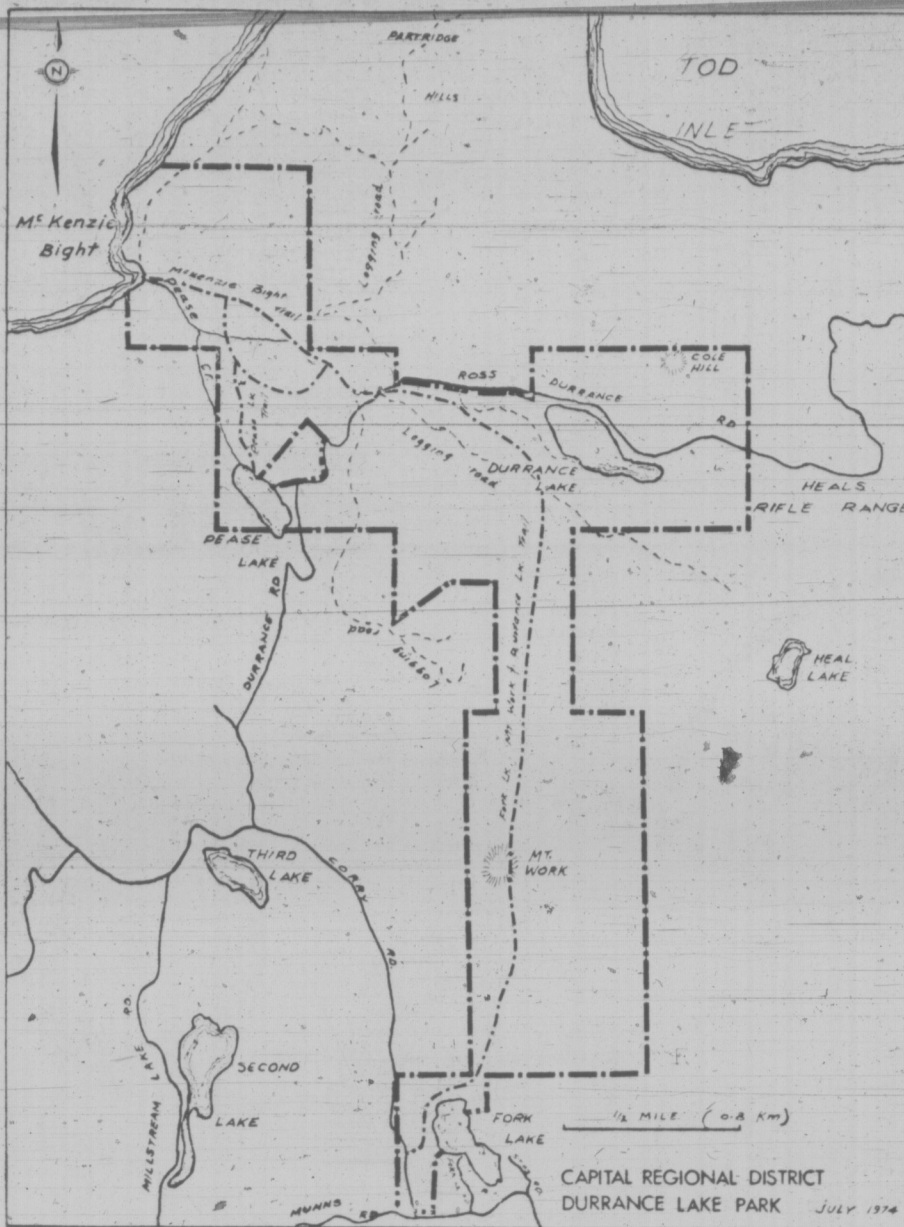

A starting point for a walk along the picturesque trail is on Corry Road, just off Munns Road. Parking space has been developed there.

This will take you to Mount Work, along a ridge, to Durrance Lake, McKenzie Bight and Pease Lake.

Another entrance point is just past Durrance Lake. It is marked with a directional sign. This either takes you to Mount Work or in the opposite direction to McKenzie Bight — an attractive beach and picnic area — and around to Pease.

You will have to wade through some mud to swim in Pease. But don't let that deter you. The water is pure and clear.

A map of the new park with its trails is available from the regional district.

Thetis Land Buy Near

The Capital Region Board has almost completed negotiations to buy about 415 acres of land adjacent to Thetis Lake Park at $1,500 per acre, parks committee chairman Earl Pallister said today.

About 225 acres is slated for use as protection for the Thetis Lake watershed and the remaining 200 acres will be put into the housing and bank system in the Highlands area.

The board has recommended that the provincial government buy the land from Thetis Lake Estates Ltd., which owns 505 acres on the park border.

The company will retain 50 acres, probably for future subdivision development.

Under the board's letters patent, the region can only make recommendations to the provincial government that it buy desirable land. The board cannot enter into those purchase agreements on its own.

The board, with the government, has already completed negotiations for about 3,000 acres of land in the Highlands for the land bank system.

Soccer Club Gets Field

By KIT COLLINS
Times Staff

The measuring tape was stretched a bit Thursday to allow the "Cinderellas" of the Greater Victoria soccer world their own minimum size playing field at Braefoot Park.

At a "measure-in" Thursday the Lakehill Soccer Association huddled with the Vampire Football Club to designate 100 yards by 55 yards of playing field — formerly Vampire's-only turf — to the association's 22 soccer teams.

The compromise was a kickback from two years of discussion between Lakehill and the Saanich parks committee in attempts to get more playing space for the association's 350 soccer players.

Lakehill claimed its "Cinderella" sport had been bypassed again and again during considerations for sports facilities.

But a meeting Wednesday with Ald. Les Passmore proved, said soccer spokesman Bob Gillespie, that Saanich couldn't give them the park space used by the Vampires.

"They'd promised us the space twice in the last two years and then Saanich reneged," Gillespie said.

Passmore was at a loss to understand what all the hassle was about.

"I don't feel they (soccer) should have the practice field (in Braefoot Park); the football club spent money to put lights in over the field, and naturally they want to use it," said Passmore.

But a meeting was scheduled Thursday at the park with both the football and soccer reps and in the end good sportsmanship won out.

The Vampires agreed to stay on their section for practice and the Lakehill boys won't cross their side of field lines.

Saanich parks superintendent Frank Andrews promised to prepare in conjunction with the school board two additional soccer fields at Braefoot school and next year the soccer association plans to work on plans for a sports complex for their area.

The deal was clinched by a good-old-fashioned soccer football handshake Thursday, and Gillespie admitted the Lakehill soccer boys were satisfied for this year.

SECOND SECTION

Four Offering Free Courses In Lifesaving

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

The best things in life are free.

And a group of four young people in Victoria is aiming to prove that this summer.

They are professional lifeguards offering a clinic on advanced lifeguarding techniques at various Vancouver Island centres during July and August.

"And it's free," says Stan Anderson, 27, a National Lifeguard Services instructor.

The clinic, a project funded by the provincial department of health, is sanctioned by the Victoria Medical Society, the Canadian Association of Professional Lifeguards, and the Thetis Lake Lifeguards Association.

Anderson and the others, Lucy Hewitt, 20, Terry Ackerman, 22, and Pat Jorgensen, 25, all of the Victoria area — feel there is a big need for such training on the Island.

Not all, but most of the people they have approached, agree.

"We've been disappointed with Nanaimo — they rejected us outright," Anderson says.

But that reaction is not typical.

They have just completed a four-day clinic at Thetis Lake and term it a complete success.

Next week they are off to Chemainus (July 22 and 23), Crofton (July 24), then to Campbell River (July 27), Courtenay (July 28 and 29), Powell River (July 30 and 31), and back to Victoria for afternoon sessions at the YMCA (August 6 to 8) and morning sessions over the same period at Beaver Lake.

The program they give runs the gamut of lifesaving techniques with courses in cardiopulmonary resuscitation, first aid, oxygen therapy equipment use, and even the psychology of lifeguarding. There are lectures, demonstrations and films on the subjects.

Like "latter-day" Pallidors they have course — and will travel.

"We're prepared to go anywhere," Anderson says.

Though the main focus is to upgrade working lifeguards, anyone may enrol.

Anderson sees a real need for the training and his argument is convincing.

He says, except for pools which must comply with department of health regulations, most public swimming areas are staffed by people without either the equipment or, in some cases, the training to handle emergency situations.

He cites Saanich as a prime example and says neither the Elk Lake nor Beaver Lake lifeguarding teams have oxygen therapy equipment readily available which he considers a must.

"Without the equipment it places the lifeguard in the same position as a fireman trying to fight a fire with a garden hose."

In most lake and ocean front beaches there is often nothing in the way of lifesaving equipment — and that's just what the people get," he says.

Lifeguarding in those areas comes strictly under municipal control — it's up to the municipal councils to set standards, he says.

"In places like Saanich they are understaffed and under-equipped," he maintains.

On the other hand, he says, Thetis Lake, which comes under City of Victoria control, has the necessary equipment as well as an adequate body of lifeguards — four to five on one beach alone, the number rising to eight on busy weekends.

Anyone interested in the clinic is invited to contact Stan Anderson at 598-5342 or Terry Ackerman at 385-5891.

Tot Drowns In Boat Basin

A 3½-year-old child drowned Thursday when he became separated from his parents and fell into the water at French Creek boat basin, five miles north of Parksville.

A police spokesman said the body of Troy Coates was found floating in the basin an hour after he had been reported missing.

'Thrown in Dungeon:' Prisoner

A prisoner at Wilkinson Road jail complained in Victoria provincial court this morning he had been "thrown into a dungeon" and had been deprived of his rights to see a lawyer and a doctor.

Dennis Lavery, 23, who is awaiting trial on a charge of possession of a restricted drug, made the charges as he appeared before Judge William Ostler on statutory remand.

He was the fourth person this week to complain of conditions in the jail.

He said he and others like him who were waiting trial should be considered innocent until proven guilty but had been deprived of their freedom as surely as if they had been convicted.

Prison director S. A. L. Hamblin denied the charges and said Lavery was one of eight prisoners who refused to go back into his cell Wednesday night.

"He and the others had to be removed to a segregated area for the night," Hamblin said in an interview today.

The director rejected that anyone had been deprived of either use of telephone or chance to see a doctor.

"There is a phone jack in their wing and they are allowed to use it anytime," he said.

"Similarly no prisoner is denied a chance to see the doctor who comes twice a week."

Hamblin said men awaiting trial are kept in a separate wing, newly renovated, and are given added amenities not enjoyed by the prison population as a whole. They have television.

They have recreation and, according to demands from the prisoners, Hamblin said he extended lock-up time to 11 p.m. from 10.

He said the men's principle grievance is a contentious one: That as they are innocent until proven guilty authorities have no right to hold them at all.

"They feel also they are being held far too long waiting for their trials to come up... and I agree with them on that point," Hamblin said.

Earlier this week three other men awaiting trial voiced complaints when they appeared in provincial court. One protested the food was "lousy."

Ostler said he would ask the prosecutor to bring all the complaints to the attention of corrections officials.

Body Identified

RCMP have now released the name of a man whose decomposed body was discovered Tuesday by passersby near Musgrave Landing on the west side of Salt Spring Island.

He was Samuel McBeath, 53, of no fixed address. McBeath, a prospector, apparently died of natural causes, an RCMP spokesman said.

He had been seen last on May 26.

New Traffic Head Named

James Lindsay Smith, quartermaster in the Victoria police department, has been named an inspector, replacing Insp. Brooke Douglass, who is retiring this month.

Smith, 47, who joined the force 25 years ago, will replace Douglass Aug. 1 as head of the traffic division for a month, then assist Chief J. F. Gregory in department administration.

Deputy Chief Ray Maitland, now in charge of administration, will move to operations Sept. 1 and will work out of the detectives division.

Insp. Richard Ward, now head of detectives, will head the traffic section after Sept. 1.

Prisoner Dies From Cancer

Clifford Earle Clark only served nine months of a life sentence for murdering a Saanich woman last fall.

On Thursday the 66-year-old man died in B.C. Penitentiary of cancer.

Clark, of 121 Kamloops, was sentenced Jan. 2 after being found guilty of killing Mrs. Freda Helen Eveleigh, 56, of 3755 Seaton.

French Open Drop-In Spot

An outpost of French-Canadian language and culture is operating this summer from a third-storey office at 1318 Broad.

The 10-month-old Centre Socio-Culturel Français de Victoria has opened a drop-in centre, with the help of a $9,000 federal government grant.

The drop-in centre, open from 9:30 a.m. to 9:30 p.m. daily, is a place for French-speaking tourists and Victoria's francophone community to meet, read or listen to music.

Co-ordinator Jocelyne Gagnon, an ex-Montrealer, said she's had everyone from young backpackers to newly-arrived families at the centre, looking for information or a place to live or even a job.

The centre opened the end of May and will be financed by the grant till Sept. 1, and Gagnon said the society hopes to keep it open after that.

Gagnon is one of seven students hired with the grant money.

One helps her at the drop-in centre, one works at the local tourist bureau helping French-speaking visitors, and four run a program for anglophone children called Adventures in French.

Les Troubadours, as the four call themselves, entertain and teach children from age 5 to 13 songs, hobbies and crafts, all in the French language.

Les Troubadours have two two-week programs operating right now, one out of Deep Cove school in North Saanich and another from Cedar Hill Community Centre.

On July 29 another program begins out of Kinsmen Gorge Park for Esquimalt children.

Le Centre Socio-Culturel, sponsoring group for the drop-in centre and children's program, was formed last fall and now has 300 members.

Activities such as dances and beach parties are being organized to bring them together, Gagnon said.

The drop-in centre can be reached at 383-5335.

Signal Led To Unreported Plane Crash

A Voodoo jet, a Buffalo aircraft, and a Labrador helicopter all were involved in an overnight search for the source of a distress signal picked up by the Rescue Centre in Victoria.

After four hours the signal, from an emergency locator transmitter, was traced to Sonora Island, near Campbell River, where searchers this morning found a small float plane crashed in the bush.

A spokesman said the plane had crash-landed Wednesday and that all six people aboard had walked away... and didn't tell anyone about the accident.

The signal was apparently activated sometime Thursday.

Falling Limb Grazes Youth

A 17-year-old youth escaped with minor scrapes when a two-foot-diameter branch fell on him at a construction site at Cook and Park Blvd. shortly before noon today.

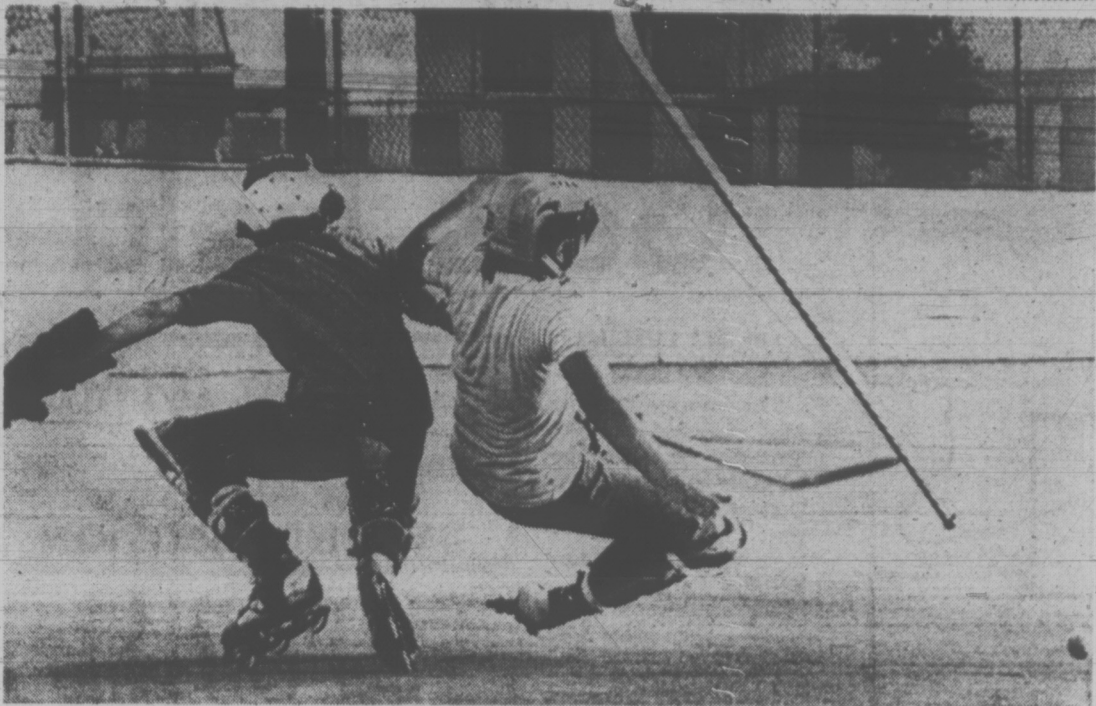

Victoria police said a crane working at the site clipped a tree, knocking off the large branch which fell 14 feet and grazed Rand Sangha, 1110 Tepaz, on the side of the head.

SPLIT CEMENT covered Mayfair Shopping Centre parking lot when a truck working on $4 million centre expansion tipped over Thursday. Second Woodward's store is being built north of present store, plus a three-tier parking lot and 10 new stores. Mall will be enclosed and air-conditioned.

Skeeling—a combination of roller and ice hockey

Calling All 'Skeelers' Or What's New in Sport

A short-order day, and now maybe it's "skeeling" that will take the country by storm.

Skeeling, eh? Sure, it's something new. But that's the trend nowadays. There's always something different in sports, or recreation, or keeping loose. A few years back, skateboards were all the craze. Try it, you'll like it. So why not? It was just a board on roller skate wheels, wasn't it? Well, be my guest. Don't. You'll never know what you've missed.

Now "skeelers". The word has a ring to it. But oh, oh. Here's the catch. Skeelers belong to the rollerskate family too. With a difference.

Skeelers are like ice skates in design, except there are three wheels where the blade should be, and they are in tandem, and not in pairs, as roller skates are. And they are very popular as well, especially in Europe. Actually they are an English invention which has caught on with great success in the Soviet Union and other European countries. Now they are in Canada.

They can be used, as roller skates, on normal surfaces such as asphalt, tile or wood, and obviously are designed with hockey in mind. Apparently there's no trick to being able to manoeuvre and shift as with regular ice skates, or roller skates and if — how do you stop? — is a good question, the answer doesn't come with a puff of skeelers. You have to find out for yourself.

Some have, obviously, because a "skeeler hockey league" has already been formed in Toronto.

It's under the jurisdiction of the "Big Brothers", and everyone knows what a Big Brother is. No? Well, Big Brothers are men who devote several hours a week to fatherless boys, and make themselves responsible for getting boys to sports, or games, and supply the ancillary benefits of coaching, officiating and direction as well.

The overall plan, of course, is to have a Skeeler League right across the country. For a start, however, I suppose basements, garages and curbed streets will suffice. And the equipment hang-up for this new sport isn't much of a problem either.

Any old hockey gear will do. But forget the puck. All that's needed is a tennis ball, and that should save wear and tear on the walls, eh dad? Is there any skeeling here? I don't know. But it sounds like fun. After all, street roller hockey used to be a barrel of laughs. And this is just another form of the old razzamataz, isn't it

Sorry about that SNAFU earlier in the week, but the gremilins sneaked into the type in that paragraph relating to

Riders Ride High; Stamps Swing Low

By The Canadian Press
Ottawa Rough Riders and Calgary Stampeders of the Canadian Football League went in opposite directions Thursday night.

While the Rough Riders, Gray Cup defending champions, rolled to their fifth consecutive victory, the Stampeders dropped their fourth decision in a row.

The Eastern Football Conference Riders defeated Winnipeg Blue Bombers 27-16 before 12,424 fans in Ottawa, while the Stampeders were edged 15-14 by Edmonton Eskimos in a Western Football Conference exhibition game in Calgary.

Quarterback Rick Cassata of Ottawa threw touchdown passes to Tim Foley, Art Green and Hugh Oldham. Kicker Gerry Organ chipped tie-breaks in the North American Soccer League. And the part where it said that after five penalty goals in a tie-break situation, that was it game over. It wasn't really. A dropped line carried the info that after those five shots, the shootout became one-on-one, the first out being the loser. Oh yes, the Russians tried the same type shootout, but detested it so much that the players got together in one game and prolonged the final result for days. That's when the rules were changed to have shootoffs on scoreless draws only.

There will probably be a move here next year to put professional baseball back into Athletic Park, but before anyone does perhaps they should hearken to the following figures. The New Westminster Frasers put 2,130 people into the stands on opening night, until a week ago were averaging 690 fans, and then this week hit rock bottom with only 116 paid in the park. Money apparently is not the problem in New West. It's a losing club and a lack of fans, which go together, plus a clash between team management and the parks department over the facilities which are most kindly described as "not good".

Still the people who might be involved in moving here are Frasers' team general manager Dean Taylor, and assistant Mike Manning, who were in town a week ago, asking questions and shopping for a deal, as indicated in the news story. They were advised to stay put for the time being, and also to take a good long look before they leaped across the strait and into an extra travel expense situation and no guarantee of added support either. So there.

In complete fairness, however, things wouldn't be all bad here. At least the park would be in better shape and management wouldn't have to run out and buy spray paint on opening night.

What for?
To paint the infield grass green, silly.
Honest.

Nordal Leads Way

Bob Nordal supported his own pitching by blasting out a home run and a double to drive in five runs and lead Pitt and Holt to a 13-7 Commercial Men's Softball League victory over James Bay Athletic Association at Macdonald Park. In the only other game, Butler Brothers tripped London Boxing Club, 14-2.

Edmonton's only touchdown, midway through the fourth quarter, came on a 27-yard pass from Tom Wilkinson to rookie Canadian flanker Stuart Lang. Dave Cutler produced Edmonton's other points on two field goals, a convert and two singles. Gene Thomas and Gerry Shaw scored touchdowns for the Stampeders and Larry Robinson converted both.

The Lions also announced the retirement of veteran place-kicker specialist Ted Gerela. Gerela, a Canadian from Powell River, and the Lions' all-time leading scorer, will remain in Vancouver to work in his sporting goods business. Ivan Macmillan replaced Gerela as the team's place kicker midway through the 1973 season.

Leos Lose Musso

VANCOUVER — B.C. Lions' hopes for the 1974 football season suffered a blow Thursday, just one week before the start of the season, when it was learned that star running back Johnny Musso would have to undergo surgery on his injured knee. He has a torn cartilage. Musso will be out of action for the Lions' first six games at least.

Friendly rivals Dale Shaw of Glen Meadows and Marilyn Palmer of the host club face each other again today in the 36-hole final of the B.C. Women's Close golf championship at Marine Drive Golf Club after recording two victories each on Thursday. Miss Palmer, the defending champion, has beaten Miss Shaw in the semi-final round of the last two Close tournaments. Miss Shaw won her quarter-final match with a final-nine comeback to top Gail Moore of Vancouver, 2-up, and went on to record an easier 5 and 3 win over Lorraine MacKenzie of Vancouver in the semi-finals. Mrs. Moore had Miss Shaw down by four holes after the first few holes but birdies on the 11th and 13th and a par on the 12th left the Victoria women's champion only one down. They halved the 14th, Miss Shaw tied the match on the 15th and took the lead on the next hole. The two, who will be teammates in interprovincial play, halved the 17th and Miss Shaw closed the match out on the 18th. Miss Palmer downed Valerie White of Vancouver, 3 and 2, before going on to top Carolyn Larsen of Vancouver, 1-up, in the semi.

Third Time Lucky for Dale?

VANCOUVER — At least, this time, they both made it to the final. Friendly rivals Dale Shaw of Glen Meadows and Marilyn Palmer of the host club face each other again today in the 36-hole final of the B.C. Women's Close golf championship at Marine Drive Golf

Dispute Continues

Times Staff

Reg Midgley, manager of Western Speedway, desperately needed a new script Thursday night after Gary Kershaw won the fourth race in the International Drivers Challenge series for unlimited stock cars.

Terry Forsyth provided it, but by then all of the 2,468 fans had gone home. Forsyth finished second to Kershaw for the second night in a row and after the race lodged a protest.

Why, he wanted to know, was Kershaw permitted to extract himself from a multi-car pileup on lap 10 of the 100-lap "A" main event, then pull into the pits under a yellow caution flag without being placed at the back of the 18-car pack on the restart?

It was an excellent question because Forsyth was the only man in the field of 18 that Kershaw didn't lap. If the protest was upheld, Forsyth would be declared winner of the race and receive $800 instead of $400 in second-place money.

Then there were all that lap money — $5 for the leader of each lap. Kershaw collected $440 of it by taking the lead on lap 13 after officials placed him sixth on the restart.

Forsyth risked $50 in protest fees to get the right answer.

He didn't. Officials ruled that Kershaw was entitled to hold his position because he did not stop in the pits for repairs, a no-no under a caution flag.

In that case, Forsyth countered, why was he placed at the back of the pack on a restart following a third-lap spin-out by Louie York of Tacoma? Forsyth and Randy Cheadle of Burlington, Wash., also spun, Forsyth completing the lap rear-end first. By then, Forsyth claimed, the yellow and red flags had gone tinues tonight at Skagit Speedway in Mount Vernon, Wash., and Sunday at Portland Speedway.

The victory was Kershaw's ninth main event in a row at Western and if he can survive the protest, he will have picked up just over $2,000 in two nights of IDC racing here. He pocketed $800 Wednesday and could end up collecting more than $1,200 for Thursday's drive.

A third Victoria driver, Ross Surgenor, finished third Thursday and maintained his top Racing Association series. Two Island drivers, Roy Smith of Victoria and Ray Pottinger of Nanaimo, have entered. They'll be up against Ross Fontes of Bothell, Wash., Strawberry Cup winner the last two years; Don McLeod of Tacoma, who knocked Smith out of the points lead last weekend, and Cliff Spalding of Seattle, third behind Smith in the points derby. Time trials are at 7 p.m., racing at 8.

IDC Points Leaders

1. Ross Surgenor, Victoria, 471; 2. Terry Forsyth, Victoria, 439; 3. Roy Haslam, Victoria, 410; 4. Lonnie Stark, Port Angeles, 399; 5. Leon Fox, Bremerton, Wash., 368; 6. up and he should have been given back his original position.

Officials didn't give him a satisfactory answer to that one, but by then it was nearly 1 o'clock this morning so they simply disallowed the protest.

Forsyth plans to continue his argument, however, and purse money has been held up pending the final outcome. Hopefully, the issue will be resolved by the conclusion of the IDC series, which continues tonight at Skagit Speedway in Mount Vernon, Wash., and Sunday at Portland Speedway.

He now has 471 with Forsyth second at 439. Roy Haslam of Victoria, fifth Thursday, is third in points with 410.

Kershaw moved into a seventh-place tie in the IDC driver standings with York. Both have 268 points but Kershaw does not plan to run at Skagit or Portland.

Panasiuk Aims High

CALGARY — Bob Panasiuk of Windsor, Ont., tore apart the par-71 Willow Park golf course Thursday in the first round of the 1974 Canadian Professional Golfers Association championship and admitted he is looking ahead to the Canadian Open next week.

"For the first time I feel I am capable of winning the open," said Panasiuk, 32, Canada's golfer of the year in 1973.

He shot a record 64, seven under par, and came within an inch of sinking two other putts that would have made the course record he set even more astonishing.

He collected six birdies on the front nine and three coming home. He gave credit to his control from the tee. "I drove super."

Panasiuk's performance erased a course record of 65

set in 1966 by Wilf Homenuik of Winnipeg and equaled Wednesday by Ben Kern of London, Ont.

But while Panasiuk was looking ahead to the open, there were some sidelong glances cast at West Coast challengers here.

Despite his brilliant round, Panasiuk enjoyed only a two-stroke lead over Victoria's John Morgan and Al Kennedy of Richmond. Both came in with five-under-par 65s and were among the 25 players who broke par under perfect weather conditions.

Another Victorian, Dick Silverberg of Glen Meadows also broke par, scoring 35-34-69.

Morgan told reporters he achieved his strong 66 despite a feeling of weariness that he says could be caused by mononucleosis.

The young Victoria pro, representing Uplands, had mononucleosis previously.

"I feel the same way now but... I want to keep playing."

Four players were bunched at 67, including Bob Hogarth, former assistant pro at Victoria's Colwood course now working in Montreal.

Toros Do It Again —Sign Second Czech

By The Canadian Press

Toronto Toros of the World Hockey Association are reported to have recruited a second member of the Czechoslovakian national hockey team.

Toros' general manager Buck Houle said Thursday that Richard Farda, a 28-year-old centre, has agreed to terms but may not arrive in Toronto until September.

It was reported earlier Thursday that Vaelav Nedomansky, 30, had agreed to join the WHA team. Houle confirmed Nedomansky was in Toronto and that he was "very interested" in having the Czech star join the Toros.

In addition to Nedomansky, one of Europe's leading hockey players, the Toros recently obtained Frank Mahovlich of Montreal Canadiens and Paul Henderson of Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League.

In Toronto, The Globe and Mail says Farda has agreed to a salary offer from the Toros of $50,000 a year for three years.

The paper says Nedomansky has been guaranteed a five-year contract for about $125,000 a year, plus a signing bonus between $50,000 and $75,000.

The immigration department in Ottawa said Nedomansky and his family — including his wife, Vera, and 3½-year-old son Vaelav, have sufficient credentials to live in Canada and were given a visa in Berne, Switzerland. They were accorded landed-immigrant status on arrival in Montreal.

The defection of the two Czech stars was apparently arranged by an underground route — involving a Toronto agent, Edward Svoboda.

Harold Ballard, owner of Toronto Maple Leafs of the NHL, said:

"Two weeks ago Svoboda phoned me and told me Nedomansky and Farda were available. He asked me if I was interested. I said yes. Svoboda said he would phone me when he got back from Switzerland. I was still waiting for him to call when I heard the Toros had Nedomansky locked up."

Ballard said Svoboda's interest in Nedomansky hinged on a large fee from the Toros. "I hear he got $70,000 as the recruiter."

Owners Offer $12.5M Package

WASHINGTON (AP)

Representatives of the National Football League owners and striking players meet again at the bargaining table today.

The owners Thursday offered a total contract proposal, which John Thompson, executive director of the NFL Management Council, called the "largest money package ever offered in sports."

Bill Curry, union president, then issued a statement in which he said the council's proposal "is not a serious response to our demands."

Thompson said the owners' offer, which would run to Sept. 15, 1978, would be worth almost $12.5 million in the areas of preseason salaries, pensions, insurance and Pro Bowl pay.

Under the proposal, players choosing to play out their options will do so at full salary, compared to the present level of 90 per cent. It also calls for an additional sum per year equal to 10 per cent of a players' base salary to be paid during the preseason period in equal weekly installments beginning the day on which a club's veterans are scheduled to report. This is subject to a minimum increase of $3,000 for veterans and a maximum salary of $10,000.

Minimum salary of $16,000 including preseason for veterans and $14,000 for rookies also is offered.

Salmon Catches Decline Through Poor Conditions

Assorted adverse conditions — wind, rain, killer whales and just a plain lack of fish — have put a damper on salmon fishing in many spots around Vancouver Island this past week.

Brighter spots in an otherwise bleak picture have been Becher Bay, Pedder Bay, Oak Bay, Alberni Inlet and some areas off Nanaimo and Campbell River.

Action near Secretary Island has tapered off although a few chinooks in the six to 16-pound range and fewer coho up to nine pounds have been boated.

Bepcey Head, Bedford Island and to a lesser extent, waters right in Becher Bay, have been yielding chinooks to 40 pounds along with a few coho nudging five pounds and sockeye up to eight pounds. Best method has been to troll with strip about 70 to 80 feet down.

Buzz-bombs (still the four-inch white variety), minnows and herring are being used to land chinooks weighing as much as 27 pounds and the odd coho up to nine pounds along the Bentinck Island kelp bed. These coho have just recently started to show up.

Trial Island is the hot spot off Oak Bay. Just before dusk and around 6 a.m., fishermen have been landing chinooks up to 21 pounds on super-strip and (for the first time in this area) buzz-bombs.

With the exception of Bamberton and Coles Bay, where a limited number of chinooks are coming in, Saanich Inlet remains spotty.

Killer whales started romping through Sansum Narrows earlier this week and salmon catches fell off drastically.

Near Nanaimo, chinooks from 15 to 32 pounds are being taken by strip-casting around Piper's Lagoon, Page's Point, the White Marker and Five Fingers. The latter spot, Entrance Island and Snake Island waters are producing excellent catches of small coho.

Luck means reaching down to at least 120 feet at the mouth of Alberni Inlet, where fishermen are boating chinooks up to 30 pounds along with a few coho.

Southeasterly winds since Monday have kept most fishermen off the water around Comox and Parksville. When this hampering influence is gone, coho up to 10 pounds should start to come in from the vicinity of Bates Beach, Kitty Coleman, Chrome Island, Yellow Rock as well as the south end of Denman and Hornby islands.

Across the Strait of Georgia, Toba Inlet has started to yield a few chinooks.

Large chinooks averaging 32 pounds and sometimes reaching 42 pounds have been caught in Menzies Bay and Brown's Bay by fishermen using herring, medium-sized Tom Mack spoons or large plugs. Some of the chinooks now being taken in Frenchman's and Tye pools are dark.

Dune-Marshall and party found good fishing off the Bell Buoy, where they connected with a total of 14 coho on strip.

Trout anglers are still managing to find a few fish in larger lakes and streams as well as bodies of water fed by melting snow.

Fifteen-year-old Bill Myles of Duncan landed one of those ever-rarer brown trout (3.07 pounds) while fishing with a worm-laden fly in the Cowichan River.

Panther Lake near Nanaimo has been productive and other good catches were noted from Dixon, Oshinow, Upper Campbell and Buttle lakes.

Adanacs Keep Pressing Rocks

NEW WESTMINSTER

Cocquiltam Adanacs moved into a tie for third place with Victoria Shamrocks, in the Western Lacrosse Association Thursday night with a 12-10 upset victory over New Westminster Salmonbellies.

It was the fifth win of the season for Cocquiltam and Adanacs' first in six meetings with the Salmonbellies.

It was only the second loss in 18 games for first-place New Westminster.

Goalkeeper Greg Thomas played his best game of the season for Cocquiltam, and was helped by goalposts which the Salmonbellies hit eight times.

Girls' Softball Finals Here On Weekend

View Royal joins seven other teams in the hunt for the B.C. juvenile girls' softball championship this weekend at Bullen Park.

The tournament begins at 11 a.m. Saturday and winds up with the championship final Sunday at 3 p.m.

In first-round games Saturday, Comox meets North Vancouver and New Westminster plays Richmond, both at 11 a.m., followed by 1 p.m. encounters in which View Royal plays Kamloops and Vancouver goes against Castlegar.

One Shot Separates Top Ten

ENDICOTT, N.Y. (AP) — Mark Hayes birdied the first five holes he played, romped home with a 66 and paced a five-man tie for the lead Thursday in first round of the $150,000 B.C. open golf tournament.

Also at that figure, five-under-par on the 6,804-yard En Joie Golf Club course, were Don Iverson, Forrest Fezler, Jim Ferriell and Bruce Fleisher, the runner-up in last week's Quad Cities open.

One shot off the pace at 67 was a group composed of Lee Elder, Andy North, Bob Payne, Richard Crawford and Jim Masserio.

With 10 men locked within one stroke of each other at the top, it was one of the tightest logjams on the tour this season.

Ahern's 68 Provides Solid Lead

LA GRANGE, Ill. (AP) — Kathy Ahern fired a record-matching four-under-par 68 Thursday for a three-stroke lead in the first round of the United States' women's open golf tournament.

Miss Ahern, who last won a tournament in 1972, scored five birdies and was over par once.

An early misty rain and tricky greens conspired to allow only two others in the field of 109 pros and 41 amateurs to break par, the runner-up pair at 71 of Donna Caponi Young and amateur Deborah Massey.

Deadlocked at even-par 72 were Carol Mann and amateur Cynthia Hill. Tied at 73 were defending champion Susie Berning, Sandra Haynie and amateur Peggy Conley.

Jocelyne Bourassa of Shawinigan, Que., had a 79 and Sandra Post, formerly of Oakville, Ont., shot an 81.

Dodgers Lose Their No. 1

Times News Services

Los Angeles Dodgers, leaders in the National League West, found out Thursday night they may have lost one of their best pitching arms going into a frenetic pennant chase.

But they gave themselves a shot in the arm by beating Montreal Expos 7-5 to get a bit more breathing room.

Tommy John, at 12-3 the winningest pitcher in the league this year, is going on the 21-day disabled list, the Dodgers said. And the ruptured ligament in his left elbow might knock the ace left-hander out for the rest of the season, especially if he needs surgery. John was hurt in Wednesday night's loss to Montreal.

In other National League games, Philadelphia Phillies beat San Diego Padres 8-5, Cincinnati Reds slipped 6 1/2 games back of Los Angeles Dodgers by losing to Chicago Cubs 3-2, Pittsburgh Pirates silenced Atlanta Braves 4-0 and Houston Astros belted St. Louis Cardinals 8-3.

Cosmos Face Kelowna Hosts

KELOWNA — Victoria Gordon Head Cosmopolitans and host Kelowna, the only unbeaten teams left in the B.C. 13-year-old Babe Ruth baseball championship tournament, are scheduled to clash tonight.

Both Victoria and Kelowna won their second-round games Thursday in the eight-team, double-elimination tournament.

Victoria topped Vancouver Fraserview 5-3 while Kelowna nipped Port Alberni, 4-3.

In other games, Trail eliminated Prince George 8-3 and defending-champion Coquitlam sidelined Mount Seymour of North Vancouver, 3-2.

Brian Martin (relieved) Victoria starting pitcher Doug Thompson in the third inning and kept the club out of trouble the rest of the game.

Huarte's Passes Stop Portland

MEMPHIS (AP) — Memphis Southern hadn't planned on much of a passing attack Thursday night, but veteran quarterback John Huarte gave them one anyway in a 16-8 World Football League victory over Portland Storm.

"The game plan didn't call for any more passes than last week, but the Portland defense just dictated pass," Huarte said.

So, Huarte, who had completed seven of 13 a week ago against Detroit, hit 15 of 24 for 197 yards and the two touchdowns against Portland.

His touchdown passes were for 42 yards to rookie wide receiver Jack Ettinger and for 14 yards to receiver Ed Marshall late in the third quarter. Marshall's touchdown, set up by defensive back Dave Thomas' interception and 20-yard return to the Portland 17, broke an 8-8 tie.

Motor Branch Post Filled

The post of Deputy superintendent of motor vehicles has been filled by Robert G. Whitlock, 49, a long-time member of the branch.

Whitlock will take the place of Stan Jackson, who died in January.

Whitlock joined the branch in 1946 as a clerk and in 1966 took on responsibility for development of the motor vehicle inspection program.

CHURCH CONCERT SET

A program of orchestral music by students of the Victoria Summer School of Music will precede the 11 a.m. service at Centennial United Church, Sunday. They will also participate in the service. Under school director, Clayton Hard, the 30-piece string orchestra will play Bach's Brandenburg Concerto No. 3.

Arioso by Bach, Moment Musical by Rachmaninoff and Norwegian Melody by Greig. The 50 students and faculty of the school which is being held at St. Michael's University School through Aug. 3, are also performing at the Country Fair sponsored by the Anglican Parish Church at Ganges on Saturday.

Climaxing five weeks of study under string teacher and conductor Hare and his wife, pianist Dorothy Sweetnam, a pair of concerts will be given. The first will be at Newcombe Auditorium at 8:15 p.m. August 1 and the second at 8 p.m. Aug. 2 at Sidney's Royal Canadian Legion Hall.

BARGES RETRIEVED

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Vancouver tug Sudbury II has picked up two deep-sea barges which she abandoned in mid-Pacific after an injury to her master, captain Buster Fransvaag, forced her to race back to Japan to take him to hospital.

The barges were retrieved by the tug Wednesday night, and despite heavy weather, the two was underway eight hours after contact was made.

The tug is bound to Prudhoe Bay, Alaska, with two steel barges loaded with oil pipe.

After the barges were abandoned, Seaplan International Ltd. hired a Japanese salvage tug to stand by them until the Sudbury II could return from her mercy mission.

Captain Tim Cary was flown to Japan to replace Captain Fransvaag, who is recovering in hospital.

FOLLOW THIS VICTORIA ENTERTAINMENT GUIDE

Allotment Gardens: Shade Gives Early Crop

This passing week, as another sign of the advancing season we find flowers on squash and pumpkin plants. Marrows may be in flower too though not personally observed.

The three vegetables belong to the family of cucurbits, which includes the type plant cucumber.

In our climate, the cucumber is the one most difficult to grow outdoors in average seasons, though easy enough in an unheated greenhouse in summer.

This year it seems doubtful whether many fruits will result on outdoor cucumber plants on allotment plots. However, another year may be different, though it would still be necessary to set out well started and well acclimatized plants grown in containers. Of all the cucurbits, cucumbers resent root disturbance most, and they also need the warmest soil and the warmest air before they will grow.

Squash, pumpkin, marrow and cucumber like to grow where the plants get a little shade on sunny days as they come to flowering stage. This can be from either sweet corn or the frames set up for climbing beans.

Sweet corn will be the right height by that time, and the frames for beans or peas will be covered with plant growth by early July.

In 1935, Edward Salisbury, then Professor of Botany at University College, London, England, wrote that growing cucumbers in bright light produces a high proportion of male flowers. The plants are induced to increase female flowers by reducing light intensity.

Since it is only the female flowers of these plants which give us the fruits (or vegetables if you like), any means we use to help the plants produce them will be justified.

Farmers and gardeners too, in warmer summer areas across Canada and the northern States have for years planted their pumpkin and squash between alternate rows of corn, thus allowing every other row more or less free as access for harvesting the corn. Experience was the teacher no doubt, and the practice was passed along to others.

Left to nature, our squash, pumpkin and cucumber normally begin to produce abundant female flowers later in summer as daylight hours are less and high moisture cloud lowers light intensity.

This is the reason we suddenly have so many fruits forming by the end of July and throughout August.

A few words as to appearance of the separate kinds of flowers on all these plants.

The male flower grows on a long stem; the female has a shorter stem, with an embryo fruit behind it at the junction with the plant stem. Hand pollination can be successful if you find female flowers open when no male flowers are open on your own plants. A male blossom begged from a friend on another plot will do the job if the pollen is dry and day reasonably warm. One male blossom can be used to pollinate several female blossoms open at the same time while the pollen is still fresh.

Cross pollination occurring within the cucurbit group from squash to pumpkin to marrow to cucumber from one allotment to another will not affect the fruit of this season, but it will affect the seeds of the fruit, so don't keep the seeds for planting.

Summer squash, marrows and pumpkins should all be showing flowers by this weekend if the plants had a good start before being put into the plot in early June.

It goes without saying that games and slams made via deceptive tactics count exactly as much as games and slams made by brilliant technical execution. In today's deal, we have an example of a game contract that was fulfilled by "putting one over" on the East defender. In all fairness to East, however, it should be stated that no matter how good a player had been sitting in his seat, he would probably have become a victim of South's stratagem.

Neither side vulnerable. North deals.

Dummy's eight of spades was played on West's opening lead, and it won the trick. A count of declarer's sure winners revealed that he had just eight tricks. As he viewed the set-up, a finesse in hearts offered the best hope of making the game-going trick.

I imagine that many players would next have entered the South hand via a top diamond, and then led a heart, finessing dummy's queen against West's hoped-for king. As is evident, this finesse would have lost to East, who would then have returned a spade, establishing West's suit after South had taken his ace. Declarer would now have had his problems.

But our declarer did not take the heart finesse. Instead, at trick two, he led the three of hearts off the board.

ORDER BY MAIL ONLY FOR HOCKEY TICKETS

OTTAWA (CP) — To be eligible for the Team Canada 74-Russia hockey series ticket draw this fall, the public must send a self-addressed envelope to Hockey Canada, Box 9105, Ottawa, Ont., K1G 3H9. Hockey Canada has announced.

Tickets will not be sold any other way, a spokesman for the association said.

While no deadline has been set, the spokesman said there is only a limited number of tickets available and each self-addressed envelope must state on the outside which game a person wishes to see.

The first is in Quebec City, Sept. 17, followed by games in Toronto Sept. 19, Winnipeg Sept. 21, and Vancouver Sept. 25.

The price will be $10 each in all centres except Toronto where they will cost $12.

Meanwhile, officials have announced television coverage of the series, including games in Moscow, Oct. 1, 3, 5 and 6, will be shared by the CBC and CTV networks.

Jim Pattison, chairman of the Team Canada television committee, said the networks will alternate with CTV covering the opening game in Quebec City.

Television rights have been retained by Team Canada and it is expected over $1 million in revenue will be generated.

Exhibitions Meaningful

Teams from the Victoria Senior Women's Softball League have decided to put some meaning into exhibitions.

It all came about because the New Zealand national team, en route to the world women's softball championships at Stratford, Conn., in August, decided to play three games in Victoria.

CJVI Vicettes, the unbeaten league-leaders, were awarded one game — the first of two Sunday at Royal Athletic Park. An all-star team selected from eight other league entries will play the second game.

The third game, scheduled Monday, will go to the team making the best showing against the New Zealand team.

Sunday's games start at 2:30 and 7 p.m. The all-stars, coached by Jim Hickman of Stockers, North Americans and Shane Hayden of CAV Electronics, are:

Audra Sinclair, Terry McKinnon, Laurie Atkinson,

Lorna McHattie and Marilyn Hickman of Stockers; Mavis Turner and Vivian Hermison of MacDonald's Furniture; Marilyn Sluggitt, Diane Sluggitt, Sally Polsen, Lindy Birtwhistle and Paddy Wilson of Esquimalt; Karen Thompson, Kathy Newell, Maxine Stovel, Kay Kaminski and Louise Cramer of CAV; Cathy Wilkinson, Rene Zarelli and Karen Blyth of Hygrade Radio; Joe Grimson of Seaboard Construction; Shirley Gee of View Royal, and Carol Newcomb of Ingraham Hotel.

Meanwhile, in league games Thursday at Hyacinth, Rosemary Fuller warmed up for the exhibition by hurling a one-hitter to lead Vicettes to an 11-0 shutout over Electronics while Seaboard topped Hygrade, 12-9.

Miss Fuller also helped from the plate by bashing out a triple while clubmates Donna Blackstock and Jan Crook also tagged three-baggers.

Victory moved Vicettes three points ahead of Stockers.

Sooke Scores Sixth Straight

Labatts couldn't stand prosperity.

Winners of only their second game on Tuesday, the Stuff McGinnis Men's Softball League cellar-dwellers couldn't make it two in a row Thursday.

And it was the free passes — walks — that proved their undoing as Labatts dropped a 5-4 decision to the charging Sooke Merchants at Central Park.

Losing pitcher Joe Mathieson allowed four walks and all four helped figure in the scoring as the Merchants rang up their sixth straight victory and climbed into a share of third place.

Labs out-hit Sooke 7-4, including a home run by Mathieson that tied the game 4-4 in the bottom of the sixth. Mathieson hurt his own cause in the seventh, however, by walking Dick Barwis to force in the winning run.

At Heywood, Bates of the Northwest International League counted home runs by Wayne Forland, Bob Burrows and Ron Lancaster among 14 hits as they crushed Royal Oak 12-1 in an exhibition game.

Huggins' Catch Saves the Day

With the relief help of Terry Karpiuk and a great defensive play in the field, Derek Drinkwater picked up his sixth victory out of 10 decisions this season as Greaves Movers nipped Al's Home Service 5-4 in a Victoria Senior Amateur Baseball League game Thursday night at Lambrick Park.

Drinkwater hurled five scoreless innings before running into problems in the sixth frame.

Brent Huggins helped preserve the win by making a sparkling shoe-string catch in the seventh inning with two men on and two out.

Huggins also tagged two hits and drove in two runs while clubmate Phil Pimlott connected for a double and a single, scored once and drove in two runs — including the winner.

Cablevision Tops Langley

LANGLEY (CP) — First-place Burnaby Cablevision defeated last-place Langley (formerly Coquitlam J-Hawks) 26-14 in a Pacific Junior "A" Lacrosse League game here Wednesday night.

Mike Holden led Burnaby with six goals. Mike McLennan scored four, Roy Semlacher, three and Dave Matheson, Kelly McLennan, Joe Jamison and Roy Mattinson scored two each. Singles were scored by Eric Cowieson, Dan Wilson, Ken Crompton, Steve Shipley and Dave Perreault.

High scorers for Langley were Harry Powless with four goals, George Musseau with three, and Gilles Bezeau and Rick Powless with two each. Rob Broomfield, Bob Collier and Gary Holte each scored once.

Locally, West Bay Marina has been chosen as the site for a pilot project of the B.C. Sailing Association.

The BCSA with the help of a provincial grant, has for several years organized mobile sailing schools throughout the province.

Normally their stops are of a few days' duration but this year one of the five schools will be at the marina from Monday to Aug. 31.

Using five Sabots, 15-hour courses will be given by Ian Whitehouse and Sheena Smith with graduates qualifying for the Canadian Yachting Association's White Sail degree (basic sailing).

The courses are available to anyone from 10 years up who wants to take a crack at one of the fastest growing sports in this area.

Sailing will be taught, Mondays through to Fridays and you can take your pick from three time periods — 9 a.m. to noon, 1 to 4 p.m. or 6 to 9 p.m.

The cost is minimal — $7 for the 10-18 age group and $19 for adults.

This is a good buy and a fair way of insuring you'll know how to handle her when the boat of your dreams becomes more than a twinkle in your banker's eye.

If you're interested, give John Sharpe, director of BCSA's school system a ring.

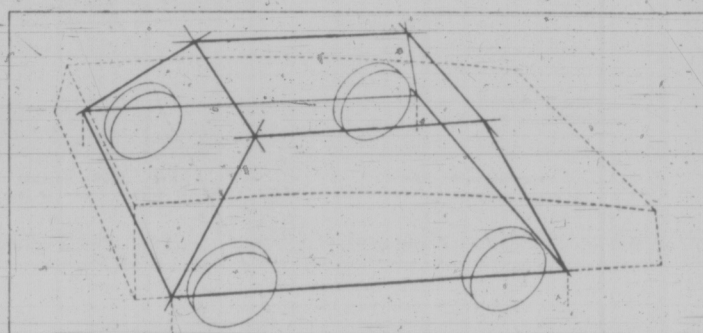

You can reach him at 652-2017.

SHORT TACKS: The spiralling costs of fuel and marina wharfage is bringing owners of fuel-gobbling power cruisers much closer to nature than they've ever been before. There was a time when sailboats were left in almost isolation at anchorages that were closer to home and more rapidly available to those of us who feel we're going one heck of a speed if we hit six knots! No longer so, it's a pleasure to welcome the other half of the boating fraternity to those nooks and crannies so often passed by before.

THE AUTOMOBILE RETHOUGHT.

When the Honda Motor Company decided to make a car for the demanding North American market, they decided the car would reflect the realities facing today's driver. And would be moderately priced. And would still incorporate the latest design and mechanical features.

An economy automobile today must incorporate the latest thinking. About body style. About engines. About performance. About comfort. And even about economy.

Honda engineers had the task of creating an automobile from scratch. An automobile that would be:

Stingy with ever-more-expensive gasoline.

Small enough for tight urban spaces, yet stable enough to hold its own at the high speeds North Americans travel on expressways and superhighways.

Comfortable, because nobody wants an uncomfortable car, no matter what other virtues it has.

Within the financial reach of the average family.

The solution: a new kind of car. The Honda Civic. Incredibly stingy with gasoline. Of all 1974 cars tested for gas mileage by the US Environmental Protection Agency, the 4-speed Honda Civic came in first at 29.1 miles per US gallon. That's 34.9 miles per Imperial gallon.

But Honda's mission was not simply to build a low-priced automobile that delivers startling mileage. It was also to offer the latest automotive thinking available.

For strength and stability, the sedan body is monocoque construction. An ingenious new machine at the factory makes 130 welds all at once. Structural integrity means greater rigidity, fewer squeaks and rattles.

A number of significant benefits flow from Honda's front wheel drive. The engine weight over the drive wheels improves traction. Front wheel drive is more efficient use of engine power, without any wasteful linkage to rear wheels. And it eliminates the large hump running through the bottom of the passenger space.

Self-adjusting, power-assisted front disc brakes are standard. Rear brakes are drums. Civic braking is diagonally connected. Should one brake line fail (this is highly unlikely) you still have one front disc and rear drum braking together.

Suspension is completely MacPherson struts, independent on all four wheels. This suspension is expensive, and rare, on an inexpensive automobile. But Honda thinks it's worth every penny for a firm, yet cushioning ride.

Steering is rack and pinion. So responsive, you can make a 90° turn without repositioning your hands on the steering wheel. The engine is largely aluminum alloy, for strength combined with lightness. And it's mounted sideways to free up precious room for passengers.

Instead of the traditional box automobile shape, Honda designers created the trapezoid shape. It is aerodynamically sound. It is stable. Most of all, it maximizes interior space while minimizing exterior space.

Consider this situation. While you are snapping up a tight parking space, your passenger has plenty of room to stretch his legs.

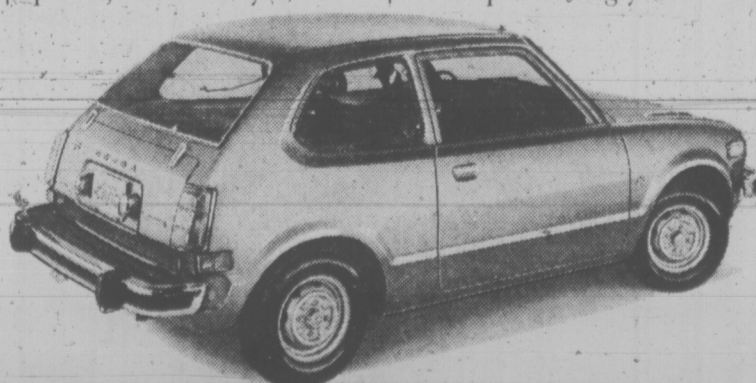

You expect to get high-price features along with a high-price name.

For less than $3,000* you might be surprised how many performance and comfort features Honda has incorporated into the Civic.

Roomy inside. Tidy outside. Stable. Comfortable. Responsive. And inexpensive.

The logical result of fresh automotive thinking.

Green Thumbs Turned Out On Balconies

By LON WOOD
Times Staff

Kay Ransom doesn't want to hear a lot of baloney about James Bay being run down and needing to be rehabilitated.

"You hear this all too often — litter on the roads, sprawling apartments, and so on. There's more to it than that," she says.

Ransom is chairman of the 35-member Green Thumb Club, made up mostly of James Bay residents who have cultivated gardens on their apartment balconies.

"We spread the idea of balcony gardens throughout James Bay — to add to the beauty of the area and to our own pleasure," she says.

Ransom said the club was formed because of the high number of retired people from across Canada living in the area.

"You move here from Montreal, the Prairies or the Maritimes," she says. "You're not working, not meeting people. You've moved into an apartment after having a house and garden..."

To provide a social and horticultural outlet for newcomers — or any prospective member, retired or not — the club pursues a triple goal:

"Friendship, flowers and fun," says Ransom. Friendship first and flowers second."

The first step to a balcony garden is not to worry too much about the weather, she says.

"People think they can't grow things because of the wind — this isn't so. I live on the 14th floor of the Lord Simcoe, facing the water. I have quite a number of evergreens and I put the flowers amongst them."

Landlords, she said, usually encourage balcony horticulture because of the improvement to a building's appearance.

"With wooden balconies, though, you have to be a bit more careful, about drainage — like water seeping through, or rot."

Most members of the Green Thumb Club are flower enthusiasts, although some have herb gardens, tomato plants or runner beans.

"My sister-in-law gave me some parsley but I ate it faster than I grew it — I felt like a cannibal so I gave it up," said Ransom.

Some buy plants ready-grown and potted while many grow them from seed or bulb.

In winter, club activity centres around drying and preserving flowers, bottle gardens, terrariums and indoor plants of any sort.

Ransom said the club is conducting a tour of balcony gardens in James Bay on Wednesday, July 24 from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m., and that anyone interested may phone Gladys Towers at 385-6939.

The club is divided into three 12-member "circles" which meet monthly. Full membership meetings are also held once a month.

"These circles make it possible to become friends with each other easier," says Ransom, who added that the club is planning to put out a booklet on balcony gardening.

Cocke Resists Hot Soup Woo

A band of grass roots nutritionists met with Health Minister Dennis Cocke in his office Thursday but despite their efforts to woo him with a cup of hearty homemade vegetable soup, the minister refused to consider their plans for a $300,000 province-wide public nutrition education program.

"Cocke is just not interested in this whole field," said Citizens Association to Save the Environment food and nutrition committee chairman Gwen Mallard, after she and four others met with the minister for one hour. "We received a very poor reception and are very disappointed."

The CASE plan is to train 15 women in practical nutrition and have them go out into the province to instruct groups and homemakers. Funds requested were $600 monthly for each of the 15 for a two-year period.

She said Cocke told them they were trying to move ahead too quickly, "even though Nutrition Canada reports there are serious nutritional deficiencies at all levels in Canada."

"Not only are we concerned about those on lower incomes who cannot afford meat or fish having sufficient protein by using combined vegetable proteins, we also urge the higher-earners to cut back heavy consumption of meat to release grain for broader human consumption," she said.

The delegation submitted a five-page brief including worldwide food consumption statistics — 180 lbs. of red meat per year per individual in North America; 60 lbs. per person annually in Europe and 3.5 lbs. per person in underdeveloped nations.

Mallard said Cocke, has stated publicly that the government intends to back fitness and nutrition programs with the community carrying the ball in operating them.

"We're still trying to find that ball," she said, "but we seem to be up against three factors — orthodoxy, vested interests of the food industry and public ignorance of the co-relation of good food to good health."

... not impressed

Cocke was also asked if he would consider action to rid public schools of machines vending "junk foods."

"He said there was no point in this because the students would go to the corner store and buy the same items," said Mallard.

She also said the minister felt the proposed $600-monthly salaries were too high:

"At today's wage rates? Some of the women would be leaving jobs that pay considerably more. It's all very frustrating — it looks like any program is years away."

By DR. WILLIAM WELCH

There is a great deal of talk in the public-health press about shortness of breath. Many are unduly frightened by what they think is shortness of breath, but really is not. What is often confused with true shortness of breath is in fact only a sudden sense of need to take a deep breath, followed by a feeling that the breath was not satisfactory, not, as it were, nourishing as a proper deep breath should be.

The result is a series of forced deep breaths that may still seem to be somehow unsatisfactory. These deep, sighing respirations may even bring on a sense of faintness, but this kind of breathing is not to be confused with what we doctors mean by shortness of breath.

Anyone who has been caught in a tense or threatening situation—alone in the night perhaps, startled by the footsteps of an intruder—can remember the hardly sensible shallow breathing of fear, at length followed by a deep and exaggerated inhalation.

Something like this, without the footsteps of an intruder, but all the same triggered by some inner anxiety, produces an unnoticed period of shallow breathing of fear, followed at length by a deep, hungry sighing inspiration, which seems to run off without being a really satisfactory breath.

Simple rapid breathing, as when you are upset or find yourself in a hot, humid room, is sometimes also confused with abnormal shortness of breath, but panting in these circumstances is quite normal.

Real shortness of breath is present when you are aware of labored, uncomfortable, gasping respirations, as if you had just run two blocks to catch a bus, when you haven't.

Such breathing is normal enough if you have run for a bus, especially if you are out of condition or if you have undertaken abrupt exertion that you are not accustomed to.

This true shortness of breath under normal circumstances disappears after a few minutes' rest. If it does not, something may be wrong that ought to be looked into by a doctor.

If you are truly short of breath on little or no exertion, there is very likely something wrong and you should see your doctor for a thorough examination.

Sometimes the cause is related to inefficiency of the heartbeat with congestion in the circulation. Sometimes, it may be related to the capacity of the lung tissue to be well ventilated and to pass oxygen into the blood. Sometimes anaemia, with a drop in the blood count, will cause shortness of breath.

True shortness of breath may occur abruptly but more often it develops gradually and one often slows down without being wholly aware of it to accommodate to it. Only when you think back over weeks or months do you realize that you are more "windy" by less exertion than you used to be.

Heavy smokers (you qualify if you smoke a pack or more each day) are particularly subject to shortness of breath because most heavy smokers have some degree of chronic bronchitis. This is evidenced by frequent coughing with production of sputum and a recurrent necessity to clear the throat. Smokers who give up their little white pacifiers usually find that their bronchitis clears up.

The investigation of shortness of breath should never be put off when it occurs with a pain in the chest, an insistent cough, blood-spitting, wheezing or a sudden gain or loss of weight.

$1.1 Million to Fight Firewater

By STEVE KRUEGER

EDMONTON (CP)—It has been more than 100 years since American whisky traders introduced the Canadian Indian to "firewater" but alcohol still remains the No. 1 health and social problem for Canada's native people.

Social workers and politicians have been talking about the Indian's alcohol problem for years but Alberta Indian self-help organizations are spending $1.1 million to do something about it.

Richard M. Anthony, chairman of the Alberta Alcoholism and Drug Abuse Commission (AADAC), said "It sounds like a lot of money but when you equate the loss of life, disruption to the community and the effects on our young children caused by alcohol, it is worth it."

Two of the largest Alberta native detoxification centres—Poundmaker Lodge in Edmonton and the Bonnyville Indian-Metis Rehabilitation Centre, are expanding their facilities.

Eric Shurt, co-ordinator of the Poundmaker Lodge, said one benefit of the new Poundmaker Lodge at the old Indian residence in the Edmonton suburb of St. Albert is that a native counselling-training school can be attached to the rehabilitation centre.

"Through the success of the Poundmaker Lodge, native people have demonstrated that they can and will run their own alcoholism programs," said Mr. Shurt.

"It has to be noted that alcoholism is the single major health problem (for Indians) and I feel that the department of Indian affairs and northern development has fallen short of dealing with the needs and magnitude of the problem."

The new Poundmaker Lodge is being converted from the residence's main buildings at a cost of about $150,000. It should be in operation by this summer.

Mr. Anthony said AADAC has paid Poundmaker Lodge more than $45,000 to keep its alcoholism-rehabilitation training programs in operation since the Lodge opened last September.

The Bonnyville Indian-Metis Rehabilitation Centre has received about $48,000 from AADAC, said Mr. Anthony, and the provincial and federal governments are completing cost-sharing arrangements for the new Bonnyville centre.

"We are aware of and extremely concerned about the effects of alcoholism on Alberta's native and Metis societies and it is encouraging that the native and Metis communities have taken the initiative and have been able to develop these treatment projects," said Mr. Anthony.

In May, the Alberta Native Conference on Alcoholism passed three resolutions dealing with rehabilitation programs.

They called for total cost-sharing between provincial and federal governments and autonomy for each program.

The final resolution urged creation of a combined-native and non-native study group to investigate health services in Alberta and that the group report directly to the federal cabinet.

Mr. Anthony said the preamble to the third resolution "spells out clearly the feeling of the native and Metis people about alcoholism."

It reads:

"In view of the fact that alcoholism among native people is a health problem recognized by the Canadian Medical Association, and that the deaths and problems directly or indirectly associated with alcoholism have been rapidly increasing at a devastating rate among native people, and that the department of health and welfare has been very successful in dealing with the problem, a task force should be established. . . ."

Pain Ignored By Doctors

HULL, England, (Reuter)—Doctors were told today they are "shamefully ignorant" about pain.

"For a profession dedicated to the relief of suffering we know distressingly little about pain," Prof. David Sinclair of Aberdeen University, Scotland, told the British Medical Association's annual scientific conference here.

Many text books still present "a confidently cut-and-dried account" of pain phenomena which is 50 years out of date, he said.

"Whether a given stimulant produces a sensation labelled by the patient as pain depends on many factors, such as his state of mind at the time, his previous experiences, the current input to his nervous system from other sources, his motivation and his age."

Free for the Asking

By HARRIET HART

This summer—thousands of Canadians will be taking an economical camping vacation, many of them for the first time.

The 8-page illustrated brochure "How to pick and pitch a tent" helps you decide which is the right kind of tent for your needs.

Tents are usually made from some sort of cotton canvas such as duck, drill, twill or poplin. Cotton offers excellent protection against even strong wind or rain. When it gets wet, its strength increases by 25 per cent and its threads swell and close its tiny holes even tighter.

Army duck is the most rugged and most durable tenting material, but it is heavier and costlier than other fabrics. Drill is lighter. A good tent drill should weigh at least seven ounces per square yard. Poplin is smooth and light-weight. It wears well and is used in high quality tents.

The brochure offers illustrations and descriptions of basic tent styles. It also discusses specialty tents such as lean-to-shelters, which balloon into good-size living quarters. Advice about the size of tent you should buy according to the number of campers who will use it is also included.

Finally you are told how to pitch a tent. If you have just bought a new one, you are advised to practice putting it up in your backyard before you set out on your trip.

Send your request to: Canadian Cotton Council, 666 Sherbrooke Street West, Suite 307, Montreal 111, Quebec. Please allow at least 2-3 weeks for delivery.

Only Tab Survives

DEAR ABBY: Odd that a minister should call on you with a problem but since I am involved, I can't make an impartial judgment, hence this letter:

Our 20-year-old daughter broke the news to us last night that she is getting married in eight weeks! Then came the following shockers: She doesn't want to be married in our church. She doesn't want me (her father) to perform the marriage ceremony. She doesn't want any of her brothers in the wedding party. The only part she wants me to play is to give her away.

My wife is crushed and said: "All our daughter wants from us is to pick up the tab for the wedding."

She was raised in our church. Should we try to change her mind? — Her Parents

DEAR PARENTS: No. She appears to have rejected most of her earlier religious training, so any attempts to change her mind would probably alienate her further. If your daughter is as anti-establishment as I think she is, the tab won't be much.

DEAR ABBY: How do you ask a neighbor who has a lovely big swimming pool which is seldom used, if you can use it sometime?

These neighbors are gone more than they are home. Their swimming pool is always in excellent condition and it just goes to waste. We have six children who would love to swim in it, and so would we. We would bring our own towels and lunches, and wouldn't leave a trace that anyone was even there. We wouldn't expect to use it when they were home—only when they are gone.

Can you give me a tip on how to ask them? — Neighbors

DEAR NEIGHBORS: Don't ask them. It's possible that they want neither the legal nor moral responsibility they would incur should a swimming pool accident occur in their absence.

120 Belfast Youngsters Get Respite From War

BREWSTER, Minn. (NYT) — The guns won't boom for 11-year-old Lawrence McGlade for the next five weeks. He won't have to be rousted out of bed at midnight because of a bomb in his apartment building, and he needn't worry about getting caught in a crossfire of bullets whenever he steps out-of-doors.

And chances are he might not even have his migraine headaches as often as he used to, but he has brought his medicine along — just in case.

Larry, a pale and slender Roman Catholic youth from Belfast, is one of 120 Irish children (60 Catholics, 60 Protestants) from that Northern Ireland city who are spending part of the summer in what the natives here like to call "God's Country," also known as Minnesota.

The project, sponsored by the Rotary Club of Hibbing, Minn., is designed to provide a summer of peace and quiet for the Irish children, who range from 9 to 11 and were chosen for the visit via lotteries in their schools. Mostly the sons and daughters of Belfast's working class, they have often experienced tragedy firsthand in their country, where more than 1,000 lives have been lost in the last five years.

Nancy Timmerman, a 39-year-old former social worker hired by the Hibbing Rotarians to direct the project, explained that "we want to show them that in this country Protestants and Catholics can live in harmony."

Perhaps, but most of the 120 children have been placed with families of the same religious faith ("That was to ease the worries of the Irish families," Mrs. Timmerman explained), which has resulted in some local criticism of the project.

After arriving in Minnesota, on June 28, the Irish children were scattered with host families all over the state — six are in Wisconsin, four in North Dakota and two in South Dakota — and the only times they were scheduled to mingle with each other was on the airplane to and from Minneapolis.

This prompted Ken Berg, editor of The Mankato (Minn.) Free Press, to wonder in a recent column whether it might have done the children more good if all 120 of them had been put together in some Minnesota resort, with only their weekends spent at nearby homes.

Larry, one of nine children of an unemployed dockworker and a cleaning woman, is staying with the Robert Haberman family on a neat, prosperous looking, 700-acre farm near this tiny Southwestern Minnesota community of 500.

Like all of the host families, The Habermans had been advised not to ask Larry about "the troubles," as the Irish children refer to the internal strife in their country, and also to hide all firearms and to prevent the children from acquiring toy firearms during their visit.

Larry, who speaks in a thick brogue that only the two Haberman children, Tom, 12, and Stacy, 10, seem to understand, said he had never thrown rocks or Molotov cocktails at the British soldiers or otherwise become involved in "the troubles," as many other children have.

But bullets have whizzed over his head as he walked in the street, he said, and he is "nervous" when he has to walk through a Protestant district on his way to his Catholic school.

The Habermans said Larry so far has exhibited none of the disorders that, according to Irish doctors, many of the children of Northern Ireland have suffered, including asthma and anxiety-related complaints of fainting, dizziness, rashes, tiredness and lethargy.

The migraine headaches, Larry said, are probably the result of his being accidentally struck by a police car at the age of 4. "That was before the troubles," he explained.

About 40 miles east of the Haberman farm, on Long Lake, Minn., a blonde, blue-eyed Irish Protestant girl named Sally Wilson, age 12, spends her days swimming and boating with two blonde girls who could pass for her natural sisters.

The girls are Melanie Revne, age 14, and her sister, Melissa, 10, the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Roald Revne, Sally's host parents. Revne is county auditor of Watonwan County and the family lives on a farm near St. James, Minn. Summers are spent at an avocado green cottage on nearby Long Lake.

"We didn't ask for a child of any particular religion," Revne, who is a Lutheran, said the other day on the dock outside his cottage, while the three girls swam nearby. "All we were hoping was that she would not be scared of water, and she certainly isn't."

Revne said that Sally had blended right into the family.

Sally said she has no Catholic friends, just as Larry McGlade said he had no Protestant friends. Both children live in what amounts to religious ghettos, attend sectarian schools, hear their parents and teachers' biased accounts of "the troubles," and never get to mingle with children of the other faith.

Sally and Larry and the other 118 children will return to Belfast on Aug. 12. For the nine-hour flight they will be together. Then it will be back to life as usual.

Workaholics Hung Up On Pedestal

TORONTO (CP) — The affliction "workaholic" isn't listed as such in any psychiatric textbook, but a Carleton University psychiatrist-anthropologist, Dr. Jean-Francois Saucier, says it's a characteristic affliction of the 20th century.

A workaholic is a person who is addicted to the work, just as an alcoholic is hooked on liquor or a drug addict on heroin.

He's a slave to work and his compulsion takes precedence over his health, family and friends.

Society looks down on alcohol and drug addicts for their weakness and because of the hardships they impose on others.

By contrast, the workaholic is praised for his productivity and his contributions to society. Seldom does one hear about the injurious side-effects.

For example, a large proportion of disturbed children and alcoholic and emotionally ill wives come from families where the father or husband is a slave to work.

"A frequent story is that the husband has had no time for his wife," says psychiatrist Sheldon Heath, director of Toronto's Rosehill Institute of Human Relations. "He's kept her emotionally at a distance."

CRAVES FOR WORK

Often the workaholic boss threatens the health and welfare of those unfortunate enough to work for him.

He sets a dizzying pace for others which they are unable to match.

Nelson Bradley, a Chicago psychiatrist who has studied work addiction, said this kind of behavior is characteristic of many workaholics. They like to make themselves feel bigger. They're often reluctant to delegate authority.

The behavior pattern of the work addict conforms to all the established criteria of a full-blown addiction. He has a deep craving for excessive work and suffers psychological withdrawal symptoms if he has no work to do.

At the urging of his wife or doctor, the workaholic might consent to take up a hobby such as golfing, but this, too, becomes an intensive, competitive do-or-die enterprise.

It's difficult to enjoy a care-free vacation with the workaholic going to bed and what he'll be doing during the entire holiday.

DIVORCES COMMON

Retirement for the workaholic is the ultimate horror. His identity and reason for living vanish along with his job. He suffers all the symptoms of withdrawal — restlessness, anxiety, loneliness, depression, fear and irritation.

Dr. John Sawatsky of Toronto, a prominent business consultant, said the work addict's wife and children have to compete with his work for even a modest amount of attention.

"Divorces among work addicts are common," he said. "Like the alcoholic, the workaholic engages in a variety of mental gymnastics to justify his addiction."

Dr. Douglas Warren, a Toronto physician with experience in industrial medicine, said most of the activity which work addicts engage in is often "unnecessary, unproductive, self-manufactured work. He has this compulsion to be busy and look busy. He can't help himself."

The workaholic, says Dr. Gordon Bell, of the Donwood Institute in Toronto, is a person who is more aggressive than most people and who feels uncomfortable with warm human ties. He seems incapable of honestly facing himself.

"Work is used as an escape and distraction. Work addicts are not the kind of people who come to psychiatrists for help. After all, they're usually successful in their work, and from society's point of view, perfect citizens."

285 UP-ISLAND PROPERTIES

DUNCAN — CITY HOME

Beautifully constructed home on an acre, paved lot, fully landscaped, close to town. Is offered for the first time to a purchaser looking for charm and privacy. Willow trees, magnolias, shrubs and plants add to the rare charms in this park-like setting. The 4 bedrooms, full basement, a hide-away, a large deck, a separate 2-car garage. Almost immediate possession is available.

MILL BAY CEDAR HOME

This new listing is fantastic — there is not a home in the area that offers convenience and craftsmanship which this home offers. 3 bedrooms plus second floor and extensive wall-to-wall carpeting. 2 large double vanities, bathrooms, plus a powder room, dream kitchen, laundry off kitchen, abundance of electrical outlets and closets, 1 acre treed lot with year-round stream, beautiful fireplace, rosewood panelling, superb workmanship.

For further information on either of the above, please call MRS. CHERNEFF or DON WINTER at 746-5153 or evenings 745-9314 (Maurice) or 748-9134 (Don).

ACREAGE — EXCLUDED FROM AGRICULTURAL LAND RESERVE

Acreage — excluded from agricultural land reserve.

97 acres — good timber and indications of large gravel deposits. Combination of slope and pleasant. Small creek and only a short distance north of Duncan.

Frantic Fall for Dentists

The 110 dentists in the Victoria area can expect a slower summer but a frantic fall because tens of thousands of their patients are on the verge of insured dental care.

Two giant dental insurance plans — one for an estimated 140,000 woodworkers and dependents and the other for about 110,000 civil servants and dependents — will be in operation soon.

The plan, covering members of the B.C. Government Employees Union, likely to be in effect by Oct. 1, will have a major impact in Victoria with its high population of civil servants.

The plan to cover members of the International Woodworkers of America, part of contracts yet to be approved, will also add to the workload of local dentists, but the real crunch will come in isolated parts of the province where there is already an acute shortage of dentists.

Meanwhile, people who know their dental bills are soon going to be largely covered by insurance, are holding off on visits to their dentist.

Spokesmen for CU and C Health Services Society and the Medical Services Association, the two major carriers for dental insurance plans in B.C., said Thursday the two pending plans are easily of record size.

Which carriers will handle them has yet to be decided.

The spokesmen estimated between 400,000 and 500,000 of B.C.'s two million plus population are now covered by dental plans. Addition of the IWA and BCGEU will jump that total by about 30 per cent.

Dental insurance plans have increased "several fold" in the past two years, one of them said.

Most dental plans cover about 80 per cent of bills. Average claims are running close to $40.

In Victoria, Dr. Hector McDonald, an orthodontist who is president of the Victoria and District Dental Society, said Thursday local dentists are going to be "very much busier" and will have to make an all-out effort to promote preventative care.

But it is in the more remote parts of the

Hydro Raises Power Rates By 20 to 70%

Electricity rate increases ranging from up to 20 per cent for residential customers to about 70 per cent for bulk power users such as pulp and paper mills were announced today by B.C. Hydro.

The power authority claims that the increase, needed to meet rising costs of providing service, will amount to less than $3 per month for 78 per cent of residential customers' bills.

The new residential rates go into effect on and after Aug. 1, though they may not be reflected on bills for most customers until Oct. 1 or later, depending on each customer's billing period.

New rates for virtually all residential customers will be 3.6 cents per kilowatt-hour for the first 300 kwh used, and 1.3 cents per kwh for all additional consumption in the month. Present rates are 3 cents and 1.1 cents respectively.

Minimum monthly cost will go to $2.40 from the present $2.

Hydro's announcement today gave these comparisons of monthly electricity bills (excluding provincial sales tax at the present and new rate):

A small apartment suite without electric space heating or electric water heating, monthly consumption 150 kwh — monthly cost will rise 90 cents from $4.50 to $5.40.

A house with electric water heating but not electric space heating, monthly consumption 1,000 kwh — monthly cost will rise $3.20 from $16.70 to $19.90.

A house with both electric water heating and electric space heating, monthly consumption 3,000 kwh — monthly cost will rise $7.20 from $38.70 to $45.90.

Rates for large industrial customers on rate schedule 1821, which include refineries, cement plants, mines and plywood mills, will be increased by about 50 to 55 per cent in two stages effective Aug. 1, 1975, and April 1, 1976.

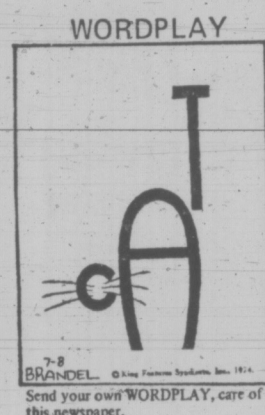

Rates for bulk power users, including pulp and paper mills and electro-chemical plants, will go up about 70 per cent, effective Aug. 1, 1976.

Power rated for Hydro's residential customers were

Pt. Angeles Supertanker Plan Studied

The selection of the Port Angeles area for possible offshore petroleum transfer has that town's mayor Vern Basom elated.

This would entail unloading of supertankers from Alaska close to Victoria.

"Of course," Basom said, "there's always the danger of oil spills, but spills are like car wrecks... life still has to go on."

The Washington State Oceanographic Commission Thursday announced the selection of three sites which are suitable for transfer—two include Port Angeles.

They are from Port Angeles east to Dungeness Bay; Port Angeles west to Clallam Bay and from Grays Harbor north to Pt. Grenville (on the outer Washington state coast.)

There was little praise for the selections in comments by Pat Coburn of the Washington State Coalition against Oil Pollution in Seattle.

"If oil is transferred from large supertankers to small boats, 'It's terrible, that's what it is.'"

"Oil companies have always used the argument that there'll only be a few boats involved. But this is a violation of everything—it'll mean increased traffic and erases all their (oil companies) arguments."

"There'll be more boats involved and their will be more spills," she said, adding the Coalition has stressed the use of pipe systems to transfer the oil from the tankers underwater into the sound.

The sites were chosen on the basis of a $147,000 study conducted by the Seattle engineering firm of Kramer, Chin and Mayo combined with a survey of coastal waters and sea floors by the University of Washington oceanographic department.

Ron Mayo told the commission the area around Port Angeles was particularly attractive because the city's deep water harbor is capable of sheltering supertankers and is protected from storms in the Strait of Juan de Fuca by Ediz Hook, a natural sand spit.

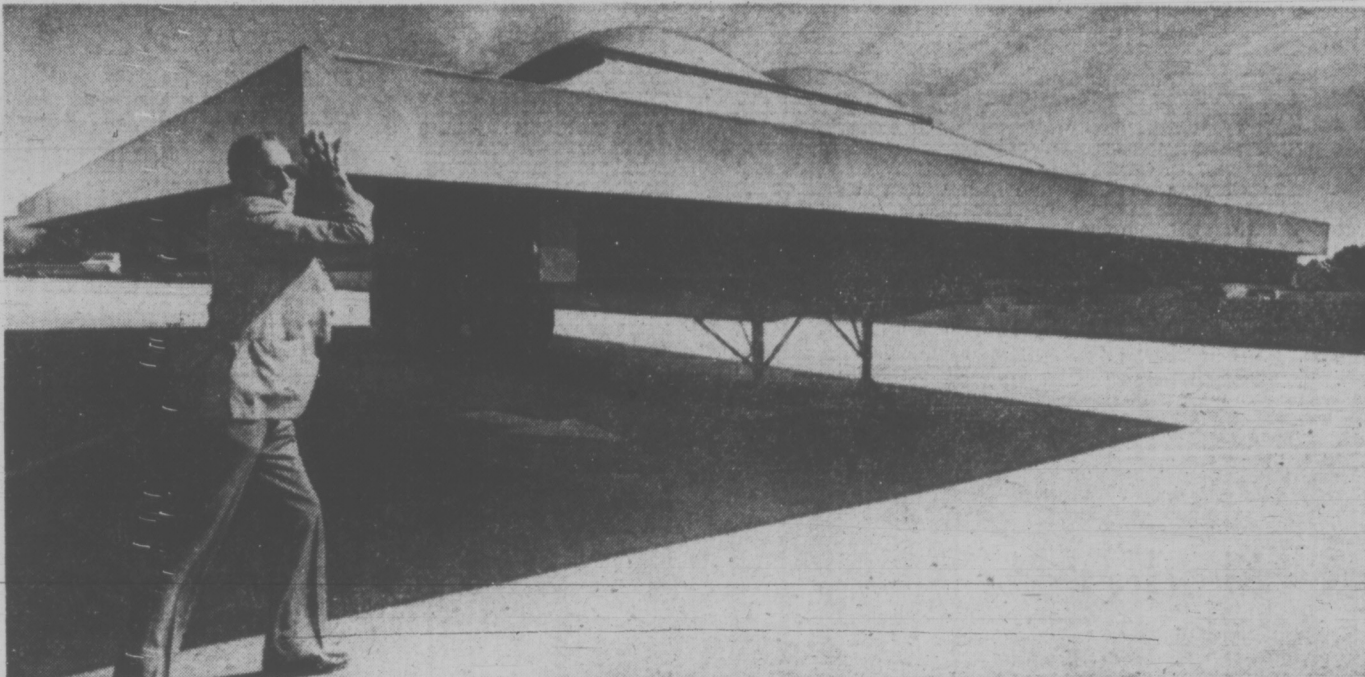

Lincoln Loren, a spokesman for the university study group, said the area near Pt. Grenville would be a feasible site because underwater canyons stretching seaward break up the often fierce wave action occurring along the coast.

The original study included the Washington coast from the mouth of the Columbia to Port Townsend.

"We are trying to answer the question 'How do we keep tankers out of Puget Sound,'" John Umlauf, a commission staff member said.

Umlauf said the commission would not make the decision on where the oil transfer sites should be.

"This study is simply a prelude to future affirmative action," he said. "It requires further study."

Food Cost Probe In Year

It will likely be at least a year before any investigation into food prices is launched in B.C., Agriculture Minister Dave Stupich said today.

The minister said he is committed to a full enquiry into food pricing in the province, but he has other plans to wants to develop in the general area of food costs before the inquiry gets underway.

He would not elaborate on those plans, except to say they would involve an expanded role for the B.C. Advisory Council, a provincial body representing food store chains and consumer groups.

"I feel that producers, generally speaking, are not getting a fair price for the food they produce and I feel that consumers generally are paying too much for the food they consume," said Stupich.

The minister said he is convinced the difference in price levels is a problem and he doesn't "simply want to start an inquiry to confirm or deny this."

"I'm not satisfied with reports that come down and then are dumped and nothing is done with them... like the food prices and review board in Ottawa that has all kinds of information, but is not doing anything with it."

"Once I have a report, I want to move very quickly on it," he said, explaining that the machinery he will develop over the next year will enable the government to act almost immediately on the results of the enquiry.

Stupich said he did not know what form the investigation would take.

A royal commission is one possibility, he agreed, but no discussions have taken place in cabinet yet and it would involve a political decision as well as a legal one.

MERSIN, Turkey — About 30 Turkish assault landing craft left here today, heading in the general direction of Cyprus.

There was no positive indication an attack was imminent.

Reuter correspondent Patrick Massey said he could see armored vehicles on some of the vessels.

Turkish authorities refused to say anything about the mission. In the past few days officials have imposed a blackout on news of military movements.

There is a possibility the landing craft may be moving further west along the coast to take up anchorage in position nearer the Cyprus shore.

There were, however, no other obvious signs of military activity in the vicinity.

Troops remained camped in woods along the coast, guarded by light anti-aircraft guns near the shore.

The departure of the landing craft came as U.S. state undersecretary Joseph Sisco was preparing to fly to Ankara in efforts to find a formula to prevent Turkish intervention.

He now is in Athens holding similar talks with Greek leaders after consultations in London.

Meanwhile, Turkish Premier Bulent Ecevit returned home

MADRID (UPI) — Ailing Generalissimo Francisco Franco has signed a decree transferring his powers temporarily to his designated successor, Prince Juan Carlos, sources close to the government said today.

Indian Hunting Upheld

PENTICTON (CP) — A landmark decision on aboriginal rights was handed down in county court here Wednesday.

Judge A. D. C. Washington ruled that Jacob Kruger and Robert Manuel of the Penticton Indian Band, have the aboriginal right to hunt on their traditional hunting grounds on unoccupied Crown land without a permit and during closed season.

Kruger and Manuel were charged with unlawfully killing big game out of season. They were convicted in Penticton provincial court and the case was appealed to county court.

Judge Washington's decision was hailed by Chief Adam Eneas of the Penticton band as marking the beginning of a new era of justice for native people. He said the case was started by two ordinary Indians who got fed up with the situation and decided to go ahead and hunt without permits. It was not politically motivated, he said.

Bill Wilson, a councillor on the Union of British Columbia Indian Chiefs, which supported the appeal to county court, said the group would back any further action in higher courts but he hoped that would not be necessary and Judge Washington's decision will be accepted.

Nixon Committed 'Enormous Crime'

Times News Services
WASHINGTON — Special counsel John Doar today told the committee considering impeachment of President Nixon "reasonable men acting reasonably would find the president guilty."

Doar, quoted by a member who took notes, told the 13 panel members that "they must consider this enormous crime in the conduct of his office."

Without actually recommending impeachment, Doar made it clear, according to several members, that he thought the inquiry had built a case for impeachment.

He outlined five recommended articles of impeachment, according to committee members.

Representative W. F. Mayne, an Iowa Republican, said that Doar referred specifically to an obstruction of justice charge.

Besides an obstruction of justice charge based on the Watergate break-in, Doar is expected to propose articles charging Nixon with abuse of constitutional powers and contempt of Congress.

Nixon made a last-minute effort Thursday to prove his innocence by offering the committee the edited transcript of part of a taped conversation with H. R. Halde- man which he had previously refused to turn over.

This provoked sharp criticism from committee members, led by Chairman Peter Rodino, who said it showed "There has been an effort to keep from the committee evidence that it should rightfully have had" for its inquiry into whether the president should be impeached.

Rodino said the committee would give "serious consideration" to whether the president's refusal to turn over relevant material should in itself be made an impeachable offence.

The committee, meanwhile, has caught the White House in a new instance where evidence requested as part of its impeachment inquiry has been heavily edited.

The new editing job involved copies of handwritten notes former presidential aide John Ehrlichman took during meetings and conversations with Nixon between June, 1971, and April, 1973.

Both the White House and the special prosecutor's office sent the notes to the impeachment investigators, but the White House version was only about half the size of the other version, furnished by the special prosecutor.

"The Oak Bay British Pub," catering to the middle-aged group, "like an officers' mess where ladies are allowed," offering conservative music for "peaceful citizens" — and closing nightly at 11 p.m.

That's what Gaston and Rita Godbout of 203 Beechwood Ave. want to open in a former store at 204 Oak Bay Ave. and Oak Bay council wants to know how people in the municipality feel about it.

Mrs. Godbout wrote council seeking the necessary municipal approval for a neighborhood pub and aldermen referred the request for committee study Thursday night, at the same time indicating they'd like to hear from the public.

Godbout, a former navy officer now a realtor, gave more details today on what he and his wife have in mind.

"The object is not to make money," he said, but to open "a very British" pub, with its traditional "pleasant atmosphere which I love." He just looks to break even financially.

It would be called the "Oak Bay British Pub" and would have the appropriate decor, including flags.

In her letter to council Mrs. Godbout said the intention is "to cater to a select group of citizens."

"This will be achieved by allowing for a sizable dancing area with music of a conservative nature that will appeal to 'peaceful citizens.'"

"We don't want hippy types," Godbout said today.

The music might be provided by an organ but whatever the source, it will be "nice stuff," he said.

The property has a secluded garden at the back, with a large oak tree, an area where lunches with a European flavor could be served, Mrs. Godbout's letter said.

Godbout said they are thinking in terms of businessmen who would like to meet for something like soup and a sandwich and have a beer with their lunch.

New provincial regulations limit the capacity of neighborhood pubs to no more than 100 patrons and permit up to a quarter of these to be served standing.

Among other general conditions to be met for a licence are that hot food, wrapped sandwiches, snacks, hot beverages, soft drinks, fruit and vegetable juices shall also be available at reasonable prices.

The regulations also limit hours to between 9 a.m. and 11 p.m. with all patrons cleared by 11:30 p.m.

Ald. Douglas Watts said Thursday night he thinks the proposed site is probably the only one worth considering for a neighborhood pub in Oak Bay.

An important factor is how many people could walk to it, he suggested. The idea is not to attract patrons in cars.

INGRID BEGINS NEW FAST

VANCOUVER — A protesting teacher who fasted for two weeks in June on the legislature steps is starting a second fast today on the Vancouver Courthouse steps.

"I'll be there rain or shine," Ingrid Blanchet of West Vancouver said Thursday. "I hope to stay at least as long as I did on the legislature steps."

Mrs. Blanchet is protesting the hiring and firing practices of school boards.

One reason she is choosing Vancouver as the site for her second demonstration is to back a demand for an inquiry into an adverse report made on her when she worked in Vancouver schools, she said.

IN HIGHLANDS

Swim, Fish, Gaze

By HUMPHRY DAVY
Times Staff

A new 1,058-acre park has been created in the highland district by the Capital Regional District.

It is the region's second largest park — surpassed only in size by the 4,000-acre East Sooke Park.

It takes in three highland lakes — Fork, Pease and the city-owned Durrance Lake — and a beach area at McKenzie Bight on Saanich Inlet. The 1,400-foot Mount Work, highest mountain on the Saanich Peninsula, is also included.

The park was completed with the acquisition earlier this month of 33 acres of land on the northwestern side of Fork Lake, near Munns Road.

The remaining lands making up the park were acquired over the past three years.

A 4½-mile trail running the entire length of the park and taking in the lakes was completed earlier in July.

No name has yet been given the park and suggestions are welcomed, park committee chairman Roy Pallister said.

He said an Indian name was suggested in a report by Tony Roberts when he was serving as the board's chief planner. Roberts is now with the B.C. Land Commission.

Pallister hopes the park can be expanded to take in other areas in the highland district.

If you are looking for a park with a wide variety of scenery, plus swimming in fresh or salt water and fishing, this is it.

A starting point for a walk along the picturesque trail is on Corry Road, just off Munns Road. Parking space has been developed there.

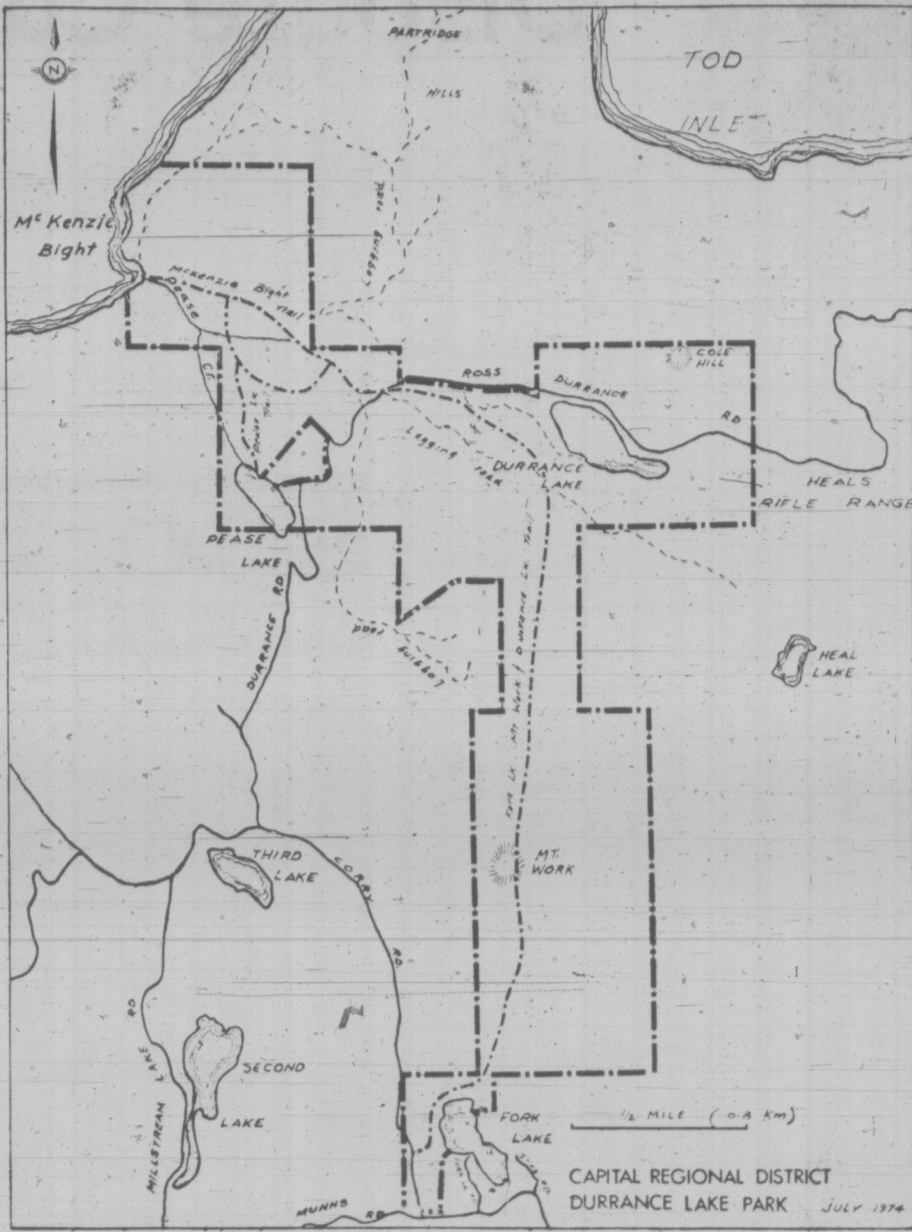

This will take you to Mount Work, along a ridge, to Durrance Lake, McKenzie Bight and Pease Lake.

Another entrance point is just past Durrance Lake. It is marked with a directional sign. This either takes you to Mount Work or in the opposite direction to McKenzie Bight — an attractive beach and picnic area — and around to Pease.

You will have to wade through some mud to swim in Pease. But don't let that deter you. The water is pure and clear.

A map of the new park with its trails is available from the regional district.

Thetis Land Buy Near

The Capital Region Board has almost completed negotiations to buy about 445 acres of land adjacent to Thetis Lake Park at $1,500 per acre, parks committee chairman Earl Pallister said today.

About 225 acres is slated for use as protection for the Thetis Lake watershed and the remaining 200 acres will be put into the housing land bank system in the Highlands area.

The board has recommended that the provincial government buy the land from Thetis Lake Estates Ltd., which owns 505 acres on the park border.

The company will retain 50 acres, probably for future subdivision development.

Under the board's letters patent, the region can only make recommendations to the provincial government that it buy desirable land. The board cannot enter into those purchase agreements on its own.

The board, with the government, has already completed negotiations for about 3,000 acres of land in the Highlands for the land bank system.

Soccer Club Gets Field

By KIT COLLINS
Times Staff

The measuring tape was stretched a bit Thursday to allow the "Cinderellas" of the Greater Victoria soccer world their own: minimum size playing field at Braefoot Park.

At a "measure-in" Thursday the Lakehill Soccer Association huddled with the Vampire Football Club to designate 100 yards by 55 yards of playing field — formerly Vampire's only turf — to the association's 22 soccer teams.

The compromise was a kickback from two-years of discussion between Lakehill and the Saanich parks committee in attempts to get more playing space for the association's 350 soccer players.

Lakehill claimed its "Cinderella" sport had been bypassed again and again during considerations for sports facilities.

But a meeting Wednesday with Ald. Les Pastmore provided soccer spokesman Bob Gillespie, that Saanich couldn't give them the park space used by the Vampires.

"They'd promised us the space twice in the last two years and then Saanich reneged," Gillespie said.

Pastmore was at a loss to understand what all the hassle was about.

"I don't feel they (soccer) should have the practice field (in Braefoot Park); the football club spent money to put lights in over the field and naturally they want to use it," said Pastmore.

But a meeting was scheduled Thursday at the park with both the football and soccer reps, and in the end good sportsmanship won out.

The Vampires agreed to stay on their section for practice and the Lakehill boys won't cross their side of field lines.

Saanich parks superintendent Frank Andrews promised to prepare in conjunction with the school board two additional soccer fields at Braefoot school and next year the soccer association plans to work on plans for a sports complex for their area.

The deal was clinched by a good-old-fashioned soccer-football handshake Thursday, and Gillespie admitted the Lakehill soccer boys were satisfied for this year.

Body Identified

RCMP have now released the name of a man whose decomposed body was discovered Tuesday by passersby near Mulgrave Landing on the west side of Salt Spring Island.

He was Samuel McBeath, 53, of no fixed address. McBeath, a prospector, apparently died of natural causes, an RCMP spokesman said.

He had been seen last on May 26.

Tot Drowns In Boat Basin

A 3½-year-old child drowned Thursday when he became separated from his parents and fell into the water at French Creek boat basin, five miles north of Parksville.

A police spokesman said the body of Troy Coates was found floating in the basin an hour after he had been reported missing.

'Thrown in Dungeon:' Prisoner

A prisoner at Wilkinson Road jail complained in Victoria provincial court this morning he had been "thrown into a dungeon" and had been deprived of his rights to see a lawyer and a doctor.

Dennis Laverly, 23, who is awaiting trial on a charge of possession of a restricted drug, made the charges as he appeared before Judge William Ostler on statutory remand.

He was the fourth person to make a complaint of conditions in the jail.

He said he and others like him who were waiting trial should be considered innocent until proven guilty but had been deprived of their freedom as surely as if they had been convicted.

Prison director S. A. L. Hamblin denied the charges and said Laverly was one of eight prisoners who refused to go back into his cell Wednesday night.

"He and the others had to be removed to a segregated area for the night," Hamblin said in an interview today.

The director rejected that anyone had been deprived of either use of telephone or chance to see a doctor.

"There is a phone jack in their wing and they are allowed to use it anytime," he said.

"Similarly no prisoner is denied a chance to see the doctor who comes twice a week."

Hamblin said men awaiting trial are kept in a separate wing, newly renovated, and are given added amenities not enjoyed by the prison population as a whole. They have television.

They have recreation and, according to demands from the prisoners, Hamblin said he extended lock-up time to 11 p.m. from 10.

He said the men's principle grievance is a contentious one: That as they are innocent until proven guilty authorities have no right to hold them at all.

"They feel also they are being held far too long waiting for their trials to come up... and I agree with them on that point," Hamblin said.

Earlier this week three other men awaiting trial voiced complaints when they appeared in provincial court. One protested the food was "jousy."

Ostler said he would ask the prosecutor to bring all the complaints to the attention of corrections officials.

New Traffic Head Named

James Lindsay Smith, quartermaster in the Victoria police department, has been named an inspector, replacing Insp. Brooke Douglass who is retiring this month.

Smith, 47, who joined the force 25 years ago, will replace Douglass Aug. 1 as head of the traffic division for a month, then assist Chief J. F. Gregory in department administration.

Deputy Chief Ray Maitland, now in charge of administration, will move to operations Sept. 1 and will work out of the detectives division.

Insp. Richard Ward, now head of detectives, will head the traffic section after Sept. 1.

Prisoner Dies From Cancer

Clifford Earle Clark only served nine months of a life sentence for murdering a Saanich woman last fall.

On Thursday the 66-year-old man died in B.C. Penitentiary of cancer.

Clark, of 121 Kamloops, was sentenced Jan. 2 after being found guilty of killing Mrs. Freda Helen Everleigh, 56, of 3755 Seaton.

French Open Drop-In Spot

An outpost of French-Canadian language and culture is operating this summer from a third-storey office at 1318 Broad.

The 10-month-old Centre Socio-Culturel Francais de Victoria has opened a drop-in centre, with the help of a $9,000 federal government grant.

The drop-in centre, open from 9:30 a.m. to 9:30 p.m. daily, is a place for French-speaking tourists and Victoria's francophone community to meet, read or listen to music.

Co-ordinator Jocelyne Gagnon, an ex-Montrealer, said she's had everyone from young backpackers to newly-arrived families at the centre, looking for information or a place to live or even a job.

The centre opened the end of May and will be financed by the grant till Sept. 1, and Gagnon said the society hopes to keep it open after that.

Gagnon is one of seven students hired with the grant money.

One helps her at the drop-in centre, one works at the local tourist bureau helping French-speaking visitors, and our run a program for anglophone children called Adventures in French.

Les Troubadours, as the four call themselves, entertain and teach children from age 5 to 13 song, hobbies and crafts, all in the French language.

Les Troubadours have two two-week programs operating right now, one out of Deep Cove school in North Saanich, and another from Cedar Hill Community Centre.

On July 29 another program begins out of Kinsmen Gorge Park for Esquimalt children.

Le Centre Socio-Culturel, sponsoring group for the drop-in centre and children's program, was formed last fall and now has 300 members.

Activities such as dances and beach parties are being organized to bring them together, Gagnon said.

The drop-in centre can be reached at 383-5335.

Signal Led To Unreported Plane Crash

A Voodoo jet, a Buffalo aircraft, and a Labrador helicopter all were involved in an overnight search for the source of a distress signal picked up by the Rescue Centre in Victoria.

After four hours the signal, from an emergency locator transmitter, was traced to Sonora Island, near Campbell River, where searchers this morning found a small float plane crashed in the bush.

A spokesman said the plane had crash-landed Wednesday and that all six people aboard had walked away and didn't tell anyone about the accident.

Falling Limb Grazes Youth

A 17-year-old youth escaped with minor scrapes when a two-foot-diameter branch fell on him at a construction site at Cook and Park Blvd. shortly before noon today.

Victoria police said a crane working at the site clipped a tree, knocking off the large branch which fell 14 feet and grazed Rand Sangha, 1110 Topaz on the side of the head.

SPILT CEMENT covered Mayfair Shopping Centre parking lot when a truck working on $4 million centre expansion tipped over Thursday. Second Woodward's store is being built north of present store, plus a three-tier parking lot and 10 new stores. Mall will be enclosed and air-conditioned.

Skeelers—a combination of roller and ice hockey

Calling All 'Skeelers' Or What's New in Sport

A short-order day, and now maybe it's "skeeling" that will take the country by storm.

Skeeling, eh? Sure, it's something new. But that's the trend nowadays. There's always something different in sports, or recreation, or keeping loose. A few years back, skateboards were all the craze. Try it, you'll like it. So why not? It was just a board on roller skate wheels, wasn't it? Well, be my guest. Don't. You'll never know what you've missed.

Now "skeelers". The word has a ring to it. But oh, oh. Here's the catch. Skeelers belong to the rollerskate family too. With a difference.

Skeelers are like ice skates in design, except there are three wheels where the blade should be, and they are in tandem, and not in pairs, as roller skates are. And they are very popular as well, especially in Europe. Actually they are an English invention which has caught on with great success in the Soviet Union and other European countries. Now they are in Canada.

They can be used, as roller skates, on normal surfaces such as asphalt, tile or wood, and obviously are designed with hockey in mind. Apparently there's no trick to being able to manoeuvre and shift as with regular ice skates, or roller skates and if — how do you stop? — is a good question, the answer doesn't come with a pair of skeelers. You have to find out for yourself.

Some have, obviously, because a "skeeler hockey league" has already been formed in Toronto.

It's under the jurisdiction of the "Big Brothers", and everyone knows what a Big Brother is. No? Well, Big Brothers are men who devote several hours a week to fatherless boys, and make themselves responsible for getting boys to sports, or games, and supply the ancillary benefits of coaching, officiating and direction as well.

The overall plan, of course, is to have a Skeeler League right across the country. For a start, however, I suppose basements, garages and curbed streets will suffice. And the equipment hang-up for this new sport isn't much of a problem either.

Any old hockey gear will do. But forget the puck. All that's needed is a tennis ball, and that should save wear and tear on the walls, eh dad? Is there any skeeling here? I don't know. But it sounds like fun. After all, street roller hockey used to be a barrel of laughs. And this is just another form of the old razzamataz, isn't it?

Riders Ride High; Stamps Swing Low

By The Canadian Press

Ottawa Rough Riders and Calgary Stampede of the Canadian Football League went in opposite directions Thursday night.

The Eastern Football Conference Riders defeated Winnipeg Blue Bombers 27-16 before 12,424 fans in Ottawa, while the Stampede were edged 15-14 by Edmonton Eskimos in a Western Football Conference exhibition game in Calgary.

Quarterback Rick Cassata of Ottawa threw touchdown passes to Tim Foley, Art Green and Hugh Oldham. Kicker Gerry Organ chipped in with two singles, two converts and a 23-yard field goal.

The Bombers rallied in the last minute of play with two touchdowns on passes by rookie quarterback Ralph Brock to Dave Bailey and Gord Patterson.

Walt McKee converted one of the touchdowns and gave the Bombers their first points when he kicked a 48-yard field goal in the third quarter.

Edmonton's only touchdown, midway through the fourth quarter, came on a 27-yard pass from Tom Wilkinson to rookie Canadian flanker Stuart Lang.

Gene Thomas and Gerry Shaw scored touchdowns for the Stampede and Larry Robinson converted both.

The Lions also announced the retirement of veteran place-kicking specialist Ted Gjerula.

Gjerula, a Canadian from Powell River, and the Lions' all-time leading scorer, will remain in Vancouver to work in his sporting goods business.

Ivan Macmillan replaced Gjerula as the team's place kicker midway through the 1973 season.

Leos Lose Musso

VANCOUVER — B.C. Lions' hopes for the 1974 football season suffered a blow Thursday, just one week before the start of the season, when it was learned that star running back Johnny Musso would have to undergo surgery on his injured knee. He has a torn cartilage.

Musso will be out of action for the Lions' first six games at least.

Club after recording two victories each on Thursday.

win over Lorraine MacKenzie of Vancouver in the semi-finals.

Mrs. Moore had Miss Shaw down by four holes after the first few holes but birdies on the 11th and 13th and a par on the 12th left the Victoria women's champion only one down. They halved the 14th, Miss Shaw tied the match on the 15th and took the lead on the next hole.

The two, who will be teammates in interprovincial play, halved the 17th and Miss Shaw closed the match out on the 18th.

Dispute Continues

Times Staff

Reg Midgley, manager of Western Speedway, desperately needed a new script Thursday night after Gary Kershaw won the fourth race in the International Drivers Challenge series for unlimited stock cars.

Terry Forsyth provided it, but by then all of the 2,468 fans had gone home.

Forsyth finished second to Kershaw for the second night in a row and after the race lodged a protest.

Why, he wanted to know, was Kershaw permitted to extract himself from a multi-car pileup on lap 10 of the 100-lap "A" main event, then pull into the pits under a yellow caution flag without being placed at the back of the 18-car pack on the restart?

It was an excellent question because Forsyth was the only man in the field of 18 that Kershaw didn't lap. If the protest was upheld, Forsyth would be declared winner of the race and receive $800 instead of $400 in second-place money.

Then there was all that lap money — $5 for the leader of each lap. Kershaw collected $440 of it by taking the lead on lap 13 after officials placed him sixth on the restart.

Forsyth risked $50 in protest fees to get the right answer.

He didn't.

Officials ruled that Kershaw was entitled to hold his position because he did not stop in the pits for repairs, a no-no under a caution flag.

In that case, Forsyth countered, why was he placed at the back of the pack on a restart following a third-lap spin-out by Louie York of Tacoma? Forsyth and Randy Cheadle of Burlington, Wash., also spun, Forsyth completing the lap rear-end first. By then, Forsyth claimed, the yellow and red flags had gone continues tonight at Skagit Speedway in Mount Vernon, Wash., and Sunday at Portland Speedway.

The victory was Kershaw's ninth main event in a row at Western and if he can survive the protest, he will have picked up just over $2,000 in two nights of IDC racing here. He pocketed $800 Wednesday and could end up collecting more than $1,200 for Thursday's drive.

A third Victoria driver, Ross Surgenor, finished third Thursday and maintained his ton Racing Association series.

Two Island drivers, Roy Smith of Victoria and Ray Pottinger of Nanaimo, have entered. They'll be up against Ross Forbes of Bothell, Wash., Strawberry Cup winner the last two years; Don McLeod of Tacoma, who knocked Smith out of the points lead last weekend, and Cliff Spalding of Seattle, third behind Smith in the points derby. Time trials are at 7 p.m., racing at 8.

IDC Points Leaders

1. Ross Surgenor, Victoria, 471; 2. Terry Forsyth, Victoria, 439; 3. Roy Haslam, Victoria, 410; 4. Lonnie Stark, Port Angeles, 399; 5. Leon Fox, Bremerton, Wash., 368; 6. Don Kingsley, Tacoma, 281; 7. Gary Kershaw, Victoria, and Louie York, Tacoma (tied), 268; 8. Al Mullett, Bellingham, 259; 9. Randy Cheadle, Burlington, Wash., 247.

THURSDAY'S RESULTS

"A" Main Event — 1. Gary Kershaw, Victoria; 2. Terry Forsyth, Victoria; 3. Ross Surgenor, Victoria; 4. Al Mullett, Bellingham; 5. Roy Haslam, Victoria; 6. Lonnie Stark, Port Angeles; 7. Randy Cheadle, Burlington, Wash.; 8. Leon Fox, Bremerton, Wash.; 9. Tony Johnson, Victoria; 10. Billy Webber, Port Angeles; 11. Ron Smith, Boise, Idaho; 12. John Cuzner, Victoria; 13. Rick O'Dell, Victoria; 14. Louie York, Tacoma; 15. Monty English, Port Angeles; 16. Bill Price, Victoria; 17. Mike Barleau, Victoria; 18. John Cuzner, Surrey.

"B" main: 1. Louie York, Tacoma; 2. Chuck Geska, Ana Cortes, Wash.; 3. Bill Smith, Victoria; 4. Don Kingsley, Tacoma; 5. Ed Turgeon, Grand Prairie, Alta.

"A" trophy dash: 1. Rick O'Dell, Victoria; 2. Gary Kershaw; 3. Ross Surgenor; 4. Al Mullett.

"B" trophy dash: 1. Bill Smith, Victoria; 2. Chuck Geska; 3. Joe Mustell, Victoria; 4. Louie York.

up and he should have been given back his original position.

Officials didn't give him a satisfactory answer to that one, but by then it was nearly 1 o'clock this morning so they simply disallowed the protest.

Forsyth plans to continue his argument, however, and pursue money has been held up pending the final outcome.

Hopefully, the issue will be resolved by the conclusion of the IDC series, which con-IDC points lead. He now has 471 with Forsyth second at 439. Roy Haslam of Victoria, fifth Thursday, is third in points with 410.

Kershaw moved into a seventh-place tie in the IDC driver standings with York. Both have 268 points but Kershaw does not plan to run at Skagit or Portland.

Panasiuk Aims High

CALGARY — Bob Panasiuk of Windsor, Ont., tore apart the par-71 Willow-Park golf course Thursday in the first round of the 1974 Canadian Professional Golfers Association championship and admitted he is looking ahead to the Canadian Open next week.

"For the first time I feel I am capable of winning the open," said Panasiuk, 32, Canada's golfer of the year in 1973.

He shot a record 64, seven under par, and came within an inch of sinking two other putts that would have made the course record he set even more astonishing.

He collected six birdies on the front nine and three coming home. He gave credit to his control from the tee. "I drove super."

Panasiuk's performance erased a course record of 65

set in 1966 by Wilt Homenuik of Winnipeg and equalled Wednesday by Ben Kern of London, Ont.

But while Panasiuk was looking ahead to the open, there were some sidelining glances cast at West Coast challengers here.

Despite his brilliant round, Panasiuk enjoyed only a two-stroke lead over Victoria's John Morgan and Al Kennedy of Richmond. Both came in with five-under-par 66s and were among the 25 players who broke par under perfect weather conditions.

Another Victorian, Dick Silverberg of Glen Meadows also broke par, scoring 35-49.

Morgan told reporters he achieved his strong 66 despite a feeling of weariness that he says could be caused by mononucleosis.

The young Victoria pro, representing Uplands, had mononucleosis previously.

"I feel the same way now but I want to keep playing."

Toros Do It Again —Sign Second Czech

By The Canadian Press

Toronto Toros of the World Hockey Association are reported to have recruited a second member of the Czechoslovakian national hockey team.

Toros' general manager Buck Houle said Thursday that Richard Farda, a 28-year-old centre, has agreed to terms but may not arrive in Toronto until September.

It was reported earlier Thursday that Vaclav Nedomansky, 30, had agreed to join the WHA team. Houle confirmed Nedomansky was in Toronto and that he was "very interested" in having the Czech star join the Toros.

In addition to Nedomansky, one of Europe's leading hockey players, the Toros recently obtained Frank Mahovlich of Montreal Canadiens and Paul Henderson of Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League.

In Toronto, The Globe and Mail says Farda has agreed to a salary offer from the Toros of $50,000 a year for three years.

The paper says Nedomansky has been guaranteed a five-year contract for about $125,000 a year, plus a signing bonus between $50,000 and $75,000.

The immigration department in Ottawa said Nedomansky and his family, including his wife, Vera, and 3½-year-old son Vaclav, have sufficient credentials to live in Canada and were given a visa in Berne, Switzerland. They were accorded landed-immigrant status on arrival in Montreal.

The defection of the two Czech stars was apparently arranged by an underground route involving a Toronto agent, Edward Svoboda.

Harold Ballard, owner of Toronto Maple Leafs of the NHL, said:

"Two weeks ago Svoboda phoned me and told me Nedomansky and Farda were available. He asked me if I was interested. I said yes. Svoboda said he would phone me when he got back from Switzerland. I was still waiting for him to call when I heard the Toros had Nedomansky looked up."

Ballard said Svoboda's interest in Nedomansky hinged on a large fee from the Toros. "I hear he got $70,000 as the recruiter."

Owners Offer $12.5M Package

WASHINGTON (AP) — Representatives of the National Football League owners and striking players meet again at the bargaining table today.

The owners Thursday offered a total contract proposal, which John Thompson, executive director of the NFL Management Council, called the "largest money package ever offered in sports."

Bill Curry, union president, then issued a statement in which he said the council's proposal "is not a serious response to our demands."

Thompson said the owners' offer, which would run to Sept. 15, 1978, would be worth almost $12.5 million in the areas of preseason salaries, pensions, insurance and Pro Bowl pay.

Under the proposal, players choosing to play out their options will do so at full salary, compared to the present level of 90 per cent. It also calls for an additional sum per year equal to 10 per cent of a players' base salary to be paid during the preseason period in equal weekly installments beginning the day on which a club's veterans are scheduled to report. This is subject to a minimum increase of $3,000 for veterans and a maximum salary of $10,000.

Minimum salary of $16,000 including preseason for veterans and $14,000 for rookies also is offered.

Third Time Lucky for Dale?

VANCOUVER — At least, this time, they both made it to the final.

Friendly rivals Dale Shaw of Glen Meadows and Marilyn Palmer of the host club face each other again today in the 36-hole final of the B.C. Women's Close golf championship at Marine Drive Golf Club after recording two victories each on Thursday.

Miss Palmer, the defending champion, has beaten Miss Shaw in the semi-final round of the last two Close tournaments.

Miss Shaw won her quarter-final match with a final-nine comeback to top Gail Moore of Vancouver, 2-up, and went on to record an easier 5 and 3 win over Lorraine MacKenzie of Vancouver in the semi-finals.

Mrs. Moore had Miss Shaw down by four holes after the first few holes but birdies on the 11th and 13th and a par on the 12th left the Victoria women's champion only one down. They halved the 14th, Miss Shaw tied the match on the 15th and took the lead on the next hole.

The two, who will be teammates in interprovincial play, halved the 17th and Miss Shaw closed the match out on the 18th.

Frantic Fall for Dentists

By DON VIPOND
Times Staff

The 110 dentists in the Victoria area can expect a slower summer but a frantic fall because tens of thousands of their patients are on the verge of insured dental care.

Two giant dental insurance plans — one for an estimated 140,000 woodworkers and dependents, and the other for about 110,000 civil servants and dependents — will be in operation soon.

The plan, covering members of the B.C. Government Employees Union, likely to be in effect by Oct. 1, will have a major impact in Victoria with its high population of civil servants.

The plan to cover members of the International Woodworkers of America, part of contracts yet to be approved, will also add to the workload of local dentists, but the real crunch will come in isolated parts of the province where there is already an acute shortage of dentists.

Meanwhile, people who know their dental bills are soon going to be largely covered by insurance, are holding off on visits to their dentist.

Spokesmen for CU and C Health Services Society and the Medical Services Association, the two major carriers for dental insurance plans in B.C., said Thursday the two pending plans are easily of record size.

Which carriers will handle them has yet to be decided.

The spokesmen estimated between 400,000 and 500,000 of B.C.'s two million plus population are now covered by dental plans. Addition of the IWA and BCGEU will jump that total by about 30 per cent.

Dental insurance plans have increased "several fold" in the past two years, one of them said.

In Victoria, Dr. Hector McDonald, an orthodontist who is president of the Victoria and District Dental Society, said Thursday local dentists are going to be "very much busier" and will have to make an all-out effort to promote preventative care.

But it is in the more remote parts of the

Pt. Angeles Supertanker Plan Studied

Food Cost Probe In Year

It will likely be at least a year before any investigation into food prices is launched in B.C., Agriculture Minister Dave Stupich said today.

The minister said he is committed to a full enquiry into food pricing in the province, but he has other plans to want to develop in the general area of food costs before the inquiry gets underway.

He would not elaborate on those plans, except to say they would involve an expanded role for the B.C. Advisory Council, a provincial body representing food store chains and consumer groups.

"I feel that producers, generally speaking, are not getting a fair price for the food they produce and I feel that consumers generally are paying too much for the food they consume," said Stupich.

The minister said he is convinced the difference in price levels is a problem and he doesn't "simply want to start an inquiry to confirm or deny this."

"I'm not satisfied with reports that come down and then are dumped and nothing is done with them... like the food prices and review board in Ottawa that has all kinds of information, but is not doing anything with it."

"Once I have a report, I want to move very quickly on it," he said, explaining that the machinery he will develop over the next year will enable the government to act almost immediately on the results of the enquiry.

Stupich said he did not know what form the investigation would take.

A royal commission is one possibility, he agreed, but no discussions have taken place in cabinet yet and it would involve a political decision as well as a legal one.

The selection of the Port Angeles area for possible offshore petroleum transfer has that town's mayor Vern Basom elated.

This would entail unloading of supertankers from Alaska close to Victoria.

"Of course," Basom said, "there's always the danger of oil spills, but spills are like car wrecks... life still has to go on."

The Washington State Oceanographic Commission Thursday announced the selection of three sites which are suitable for transfer — two include Port Angeles.

They are from Port Angeles east to Dungeness Bay; Port Angeles west to Clallam Bay and from Grays Harbor north to Pt. Grenville (on the outer Washington state coast.)

There was little praise for the selections in comments by Pat Cohn of the Washington State Coalition Against Oil Pollution in Seattle.

"If oil is transferred from large supertankers to small boats, it's terrible, that's what it is."

"Oil companies have always used the argument that there'll only be a few boats involved. But this is a violation of everything; it'll mean increased traffic and erases all their (oil companies) arguments."

"There'll be more boats involved and there will be more spills," she said, adding the Coalition has stressed the use of pipe systems to transfer the oil from the tankers underwater into the sound.

The sites were chosen on the basis of a $147,000 study conducted by the Seattle engineering firm of Kramer, Chin and Mayo combined with a survey of coastal waters and sea floors by the University of Washington oceanographic department.

Ron Mayo told the commission the area around Port Angeles was particularly attractive because the city's deep water harbor is capable of sheltering supertankers and is protected from storms in the Strait of Juan de Fuca by Ediz Hook, a natural sandspit.

Lincoln Loren, a spokesman for the university study group, said the area near Pt. Grenville would be a feasible site because underwater canyons stretching seaward break up the often fierce wave action occurring along the coast.

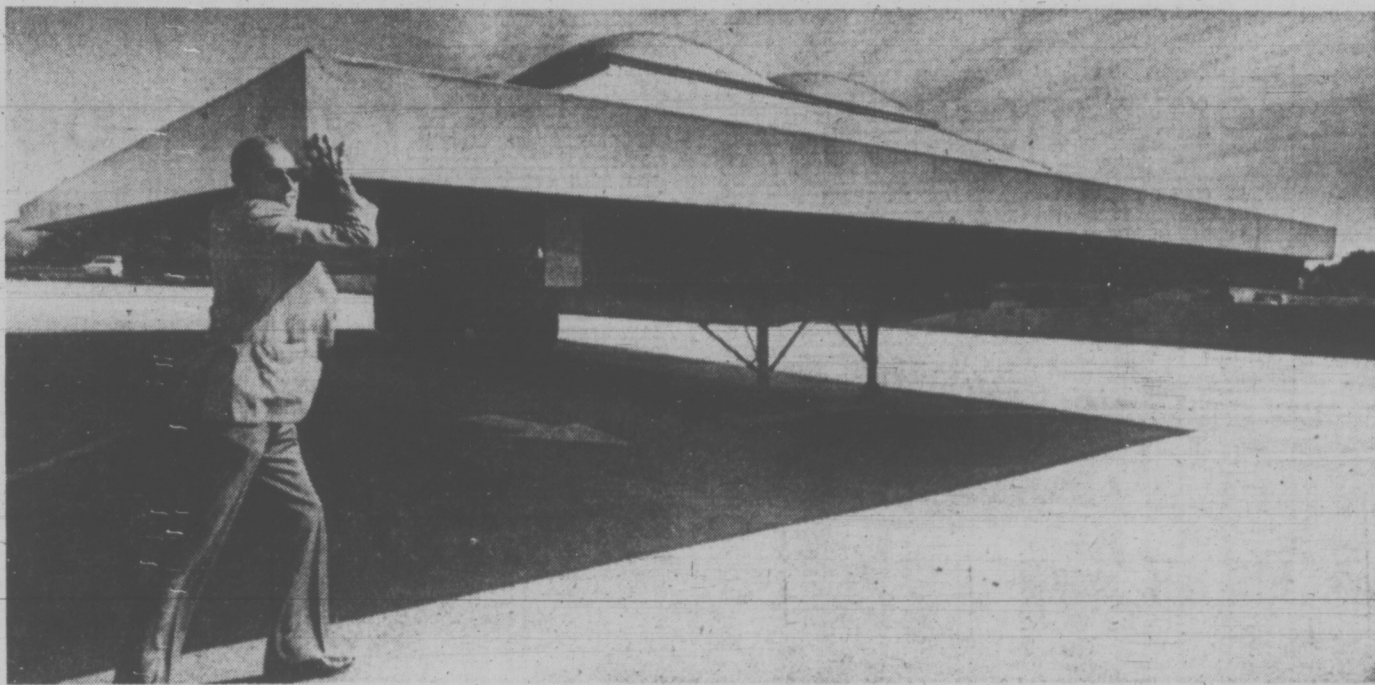

The original study included the Washington coast from the mouth of the Columbia to Port Townsend.

"We are trying to answer the question 'How do we keep tankers out of Puget Sound,'" John Umlauf, a commission staff member said.

Umlauf said the commission would not make the decision on where the oil transfer sites should be.

"This study is simply a prelude to future affirmative action," he said. "It requires further study."

Nixon Committed 'Enormous Crime'

WASHINGTON — Special counsel John Doar today told the committee considering impeachment of President Nixon "reasonable men acting reasonably would find the president guilty."

Doar, quoted by a member who took notes, told the 38 panel members that "they must consider this enormous crime in the conduct of his office."

Without actually recommending impeachment, Doar made it clear, according to several members, that he thought the inquiry had built a case for impeachment.

He outlined five recommended articles of impeachment, according to committee members.

Representative Wiley Mayne, an Iowa Republican, said that Doar referred specifically to an obstruction of justice charge.

Besides an obstruction of justice charge based on the Watergate break-in, Doar is expected to propose articles charging Nixon with abuse of constitutional powers and contempt of Congress.

Nixon made a last-minute effort Thursday to prove his innocence by offering the committee the edited transcript of part of a taped conversation with H. R. Haldean which he had previously refused to turn over.

This provoked sharp criticism from committee members, led by Chairman Peter Rodino, who said it showed "There has been an effort to keep from the committee evidence that it should rightfully have had" for its inquiry into whether the president should be impeached.

Rodino said the committee would give "serious consideration" to whether the president's refusal to turn over relevant material should in itself be made an impeachable offence.

The committee, meanwhile, has caught the White House in a new instance where evidence requested as part of its impeachment inquiry has been heavily edited.

The new editing job involved copies of handwritten notes former presidential aide John Ehrlichman took during meetings and conversations with Nixon between June, 1971, and April, 1973.

Both the White House and the special prosecutor's office sent the notes to the impeachment investigators, but the White House version was only about half the size of the other version, furnished by the special prosecutor.

MERSIN, Turkey — About 30 Turkish assault landing craft left here today, heading in the general direction of Cyprus.

There was no positive indication an attack was imminent.

Reuter correspondent Patrick Masey said he could see armored vehicles on some of the vessels.

Turkish authorities refused to say anything about the mission. In the past few days officials have imposed a black-out on news of military movements.

There is a possibility the landing craft may be moving further west along the coast to take up anchorage in position nearer the Cyprus shore.

Troops remained camped in woods along the coast, guarded by light anti-aircraft guns near the shore.

The departure of the landing craft came as U.S. state undersecretary Joseph Sisco was preparing to fly to Ankara in efforts to find a formula to prevent Turkish intervention.

He now is in Athens holding similar talks with Greek leaders after consultations in London.

Indian Hunting Upheld

PENTICTON (CP) — A landmark decision on aboriginal rights was handed down in county court here Wednesday.

Judge A. D. C. Washington ruled that Jacob Kruger and Robert Manuel of the Pentiction Indian Band, have the aboriginal right to hunt on their traditional hunting grounds on unoccupied Crown land without a permit and during closed season.

Kruger and Manuel were charged with unlawfully killing big game out of season. They were convicted in Pentiction provincial court and the case was appealed to county court.

Judge Washington's decision was hailed by Chief Adam Eneas of the Pentiction band as marking the beginning of a new era of justice for native people. He said the case was started by two ordinary Indians who got fed up with the situation and decided to go ahead and hunt without permits. It was not politically motivated, he said.

Bill Wilson, a councillor on the Union of British Columbia Indian Chiefs, which supported the appeal to county court, said the group would back any further action in higher courts but he hoped that would not be necessary and Judge Washington's decision will be accepted.

Electricity rate increases ranging from up to 20 per cent for residential customers to about 70 per cent for bulk power users such as pulp and paper mills were announced today by B.C. Hydro.

The power authority claims that the increase, needed to meet rising costs of providing service, will amount to less than $3 per month for 78 per cent of residential customers' bills.

The new residential rates go into effect on and after Aug. 1, though they may not be reflected on bills for most customers until Oct. 1 of later, depending on each customer's billing period.

New rates for virtually all residential customers will be 3.6 cents per kilowatt-hour for the first 300 kwh used, and 1.3 cents per kwh for all additional consumption in the month. Present rates are 3 cents and 1.1 cents respectively.

Minimum monthly cost will go to $2.40 from the present $2.

Hydro's announcement today gave these comparisons of monthly electricity bills (excluding provincial sales tax at the present and new rate):

A small apartment suite without electric space heating or electric water heating, monthly consumption 150 kwh — monthly cost will rise 90 cents from $4.50 to $5.40.

A house with electric water heating but not electric space heating, monthly consumption 1,000 kwh — monthly cost will rise $3.20 from $16.70 to $19.90.

A house with both electric water heating and electric space heating, monthly consumption 3,000 kwh — monthly cost will rise $7.20 from $38.70 to $45.90.

Rates for large industrial customers on rate schedule 1821, which include refineries, cement plants, mines and plywood mills, will be increased by about 50 to 55 per cent in two stages effective Aug. 1, 1975, and April 1, 1976.

Rates for bulk power users, including pulp and paper mills and electro-chemical plants, will go up about 70 per cent, effective Aug. 1, 1976.

Power rated for Hydro's residential customers were

A Very British Pub...

By DON VIPOND
Times Staff

The Oak Bay British Pub, catering to the middle-aged group, "like an officers' mess where ladies are allowed," offering conservative music for "peaceful citizens" — and closing nightly at 11 p.m.

That's what Gaston and Rita Godbout of 203 Beechwood Ave. want to open in a former store at 2024 Oak Bay Ave. and Oak Bay council wants to know how people in the municipality feel about it.

Mrs. Godbout wrote council seeking the necessary municipal approval for a neighborhood pub and aldermen referred the request for committee study Thursday night, at the same time indicating they'd like to hear from the public.

Godbout, a former navy officer now a realtor, gave more details today on what he and his wife have in mind.

"The object is not to make money," he said, but to open "a very British" pub, with its traditional "pleasant atmosphere which I love." He just looks to break even financially.

It would be called the "Oak Bay British Pub" and would have the appropriate decor, including flags.

In her letter to council Mrs. Godbout said the intention is "to cater to a select group of citizens."

"This will be achieved by allowing for a sizable dancing area with music of a conservative nature that will appeal to 'peaceful citizens'."

"We don't want hippy types," Godbout said today.

The music might be provided by an organ but whatever the source, it will be "nice stuff," he said.

The property has a secluded garden at the back, with a large oak tree, an area where lunches with a European flavour could be served, Mrs. Godbout's letter said.

Godbout said they are thinking in terms of businessmen who would like to meet for something like soup and a sandwich and have a beer with their lunch.

New provincial regulations limit the capacity of neighborhood pubs to no more than 100 patrons and permit up to a quarter of these to be served standing.

Among other general conditions to be met for a licence are that hot food, wrapped sandwiches, snacks, hot beverages, soft drinks, fruit and vegetable juices shall also be available at reasonable prices.

The regulations also limit hours to between 9 a.m. and 11 p.m. with all patrons cleared by 11:30 p.m.

Ald. Douglas Watts said Thursday night he thinks the proposed site is probably the only one worth considering for a neighborhood pub in Oak Bay.

INGRID BEGINS NEW FAST

VANCOUVER — A protesting teacher who fasted for two weeks in June on the legislature steps is starting a second fast today on the Vancouver Courthouse steps.

"I'll be there rain or shine," Ingrid Blanchet of West Vancouver said Thursday. "I hope to stay at least as long as I did on the legislature steps."

Mrs. Blanchet is protesting the hiring and firing practices of school boards.

One reason she is choosing Vancouver as the site for her second demonstration is to back a demand for an inquiry into an adverse report made on her when she worked in Vancouver schools, she said.

Movies

Gentle Giant (xx), on 13 at 10. Youngsters will enjoy this 1968 pilot that led to the TV series of the same name about a boy's friendship with a bear cub, starring Dennis Weaver and Vera Miles.

War Devils (xx), on 13 at 1. Routine Second World War drama about an American captured by Germans in the Tunisian desert, filmed in 1970 and starring Guy Madison and John Ireland.

Crash Dive (xx), on 4 at 2. A good cast (Tyrone Power, Dana Andrews and Anne Baxter) is the only redeeming feature in this otherwise routine 1943 war story of a submarine in the North Atlantic and its two officers who love the same girl.

The Enemy Below (xxx), on 7 at 2. Excellent photography highlights this better-than-average Second World War drama about an American destroyer and a German U-boat playing cat-and-mouse in the Atlantic ocean. Good performances are turned in by Robert Mitchum and Curt Jurgens.

Susannah of the Mounties

(xx), on 11 at 2. A 1939 drama starring Shirley Temple as a darling of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

Adventures of Don Juan (xx), on 13 at 3. Errol Flynn and Viveca Lindfors star in this 1948 swashbuckler about the legendary lover who defends Queen Margaret.

Beast from 20,000 Fathoms (x), on 5 at 3:30. 1953 sci-fi nonsense about a gigantic prehistoric monster wrecking havoc in New York City.

I'm No Angel (xxx), on 11 at 4. An outrageously funny 1933 tale about a carnival girl's rise to fame, starring Mae West at her flamboyant and ribald best. Cary Grant and Edward Arnold co-star.

Mousey, on 4 at 8:30. No rating available on this 1974 made-for-TV suspense drama about a seemingly meek biology teacher who is obsessed with wrecking vengeance on his ex-wife. An excellent cast features Kirk Douglas and Jean Seberg.

$ (xxx), on 5 and 8 at 9. Warren Beatty and Goldie Hawn star in this exciting 1971 comedy crime-drama about a security expert and a prostitute who rob a bank in Hamburg, West Germany—not the whole bank—just three safe-deposit boxes filled with criminal's stolen money.

GOLDIE HAWN

... on 5 and 8 at 9 p.m.

The film is highlighted by an excellent chase sequence and a fine jazz score, written by Quincy Jones.

Island of the Lost (xx), on 13 at 9. A 1967 adventure drama starring Richard Green, about an anthropologist and his family who are shipwrecked on an uncharted island.

The Maverick Queen (xxx), on 11 at 10. Barbara Stanwyck and Barry Sullivan star in this better-than-average 1956 western tale, adapted from the Zane Grey action tale about a bandit lady who falls for an undercover detective.

Giant from the Unknown (x), on 13 at 11. A silly 1958 thriller about a giant lizard rumbling through a California town.

$ (xxx), on 6 at 11:15. (See earlier for details.)

Forbidden Games (xxxx), on 5 at 11:45. French director René Clément's 1952 Oscar-winning drama about the effect of war on two small children. Many comic touches are supplied to this poignant story, but the film contains one of the most shattering dramatic climaxes ever filmed. Recommended.

Harper (xxx), on 2 at 11:40. An excellent cast (Paul Newman, Lauren Bacall, Julie Harris, Shelley Winters, Robert Wagner and Arthur Hill) highlights this entertaining 1966 mystery about a cynical private eye investigating the disappearance of a millionaire.

Help! (xxx), on 4 at 11:45. This 1965 comedy was the Beatles' second venture into feature-length films, and this one features Ringo as the unwitting target of a mad scitist and murderous Indian cultist.

The Sweet Ride (xx), on 7 at midnight. A sleazy 1968 melodrama about the loves of a mad girl who hangs around too many surfers and tennis bums for her own good, starring Jacqueline Bisset, Michael Sarrazin and Tony Franciosa. Worth watching only for the beautiful Miss

Alternatives for Washington, on 9 at 10. Live coverage of the Seattle-area session of Gov. Dan Evans' state-wide long-range growth and development. (6 hrs.)

Greatest Sports Legends, on 5 at 2:30. A profile of Jim Taylor, one of the most powerful runners ever to play pro football. (30 mins.)

Inner Space, on 5 at 5:30. William Shatner is the narrator of this six-part series about undersea exploration with a team of scuba divers and photographers. (30 mins.)

Shake, Rock and Roll, on 8 at 7. Return of the music series showcasing the golden age of rock and roll with host Bobby Curtola. (30 mins.)

Hollywood Television Theatre, on 9 at 8:30. A repeat telecast of Young Marrieds at Play, a drama about unexpected marital tensions that arise between two young couples who are spending the evening together over a game of Monopoly. (60 mins.)

Drama Special, on 9 at 9:30. Emmy-winning playwright Loring Mandel wrote, The Coming Asunder of Jimmy Bright, a drama about a young social worker's struggles against an impossible caseload and the bureaucracy of the welfare system. (90 mins.)

Miss Universe Pageant, on 7 and 12 at 10. Bob Barker and Helen O'Connell co-host the 23rd annual festivities, filmed this year in Manila, the Philippines before one of television's largest audiences—an estimated 350 million people—viewing the event live and on tape in 27 countries. This year's queen will be crowned by the Philippines' now Miss Universe 1973. (2 hrs.)

Bisset and the great scenery at Colli's Malibu Beach.

Lisa (xx), on 12 at midnight. Stephen Boyd and Dolores Hart star in this predictable 1962 drama about a conscientious Dutch policeman who tries to help a refugee rescue Palestine. (It may be interesting to note that Miss Hart made only a couple more Hollywood films and then entered a convent to become a nun.)

Dead Run, on 8 at 12:30. No rating available on this 1967 French-made crime-drama about a small-time pickpocket who accidentally steals some important papers and is pursued by both the police and gangsters. Cast includes George C. Scott, Peter Lawford and Ira von Furstenberg.

The Far Horizons (xx), on 8 at 2:20. Excellent photography highlights this 1953 Hollywood version of the historical Lewis and Clark expedition, starring Charlton Heston, Fred MacMurray and Donna Reed.

Movies

The Private Affairs of Bel Amil (xx), on 13 at 2. A well-acted by over-long 1947 drama adapted from the Guy de Maupassant story of a man who used women to climb to the top of Parisian society. Cast includes George Saunders, Angela Lansbury and Ann Dvorak.

Mr. Inside-Mr. Outside, on 6 at 3:30 and 8 at 4. No rating available on this 1973 TV crime-drama about two New York policemen bucking the system to solve a crime, starring Tony Lo Bianco and Hal Linden.

When Worlds Collide (xx), on 11 at 2:30. Oscar-winning special effects highlight this otherwise routine 1951 science-fiction drama about the race to build a rocketship to leave earth before it collides with another planet.

Sebastian (xxx), on 5 at 3:30. A fast-paced 1968 English-made espionage adventure starring Dirk Bogarde as a bachelor in charge of an all-female decoding branch of British Intelligence. An excellent supporting cast includes Susannah York, Lilli Palmer, John Gielgud and Nigel Davenport.

The Roots of Heaven (xxx), on 7 at 3:30. Errol Flynn, Trevor Howard, Orson Welles and Juliette Greco star in this ambitious, interesting 1958 film based on Romain Gary's prize-winning novel about a group of adventurers, opportunists and one idealist who join forces in an effort to protect the African elephant threatened with destruction and eventual extinction by ivory hunters.

The Love Lottery (xx), on 12 at 3:30. A contrived 1954 English-made satire of the Hollywood star system with a movie idol as the uneasy prize of a lottery, starring David Niven and Peggy Cummins.

Wheel of Fortune (xx), on 11 at 4. John Wayne portrays a young lawyer who discovers his best friend's strange death was murder, not suicide, in this routine 1941 adventure drama that co-stars Frances Dee and Ward Bond.

Crime School (xx), on 13 at 4. Warden Humphrey Bogart reforms the 'Dead End Kids' in this tired old 1938 melodrama.

Calling Northside 777 (xxxx), on 13 at 6. An exciting, fast-paced 1947 story about a newspaperman who proves a man innocent by probing an eleven-year-old case, highlighted by the fine performances of James on 2 and 6 at 9 p.m.

Stewart, Lee J. Cobb and Richard Conte.

Project X (x), on 4 at 8:30. An involved 1968 science-fiction tale with too much dialogue and not enough plot, starring Christopher George and Monte Markham.

Cry Danger (xxx), on 13 at 8:30. Dick Powell and Rhonda Fleming star in this well-directed 1951 melodrama about an ex-convict attempting to prove he was innocent and falsely imprisoned.

The Rowdyman (xxx), on 2 and 6 at 9. Canadian actor Gordon Pinsent wrote the script and stars in this 1973 drama set in Newfoundland, about a carefree bachelor whose immaturity provokes a tragic accident. One of the few Canadian-made films to be shown on television, it's worth watching.

The Big Show (xx), on 12 at 9. Top-notch acts from Germany's world-famous Krone Circus highlight this otherwise hashed-up circus drama re-made from House of Strangers and Broken Lance — and not an improvement on either. Filmed in 1961 and starring Esther Williams, Cliff Robertson and Robert Vaughn.

The Blackboard Jungle (xxxx), on 4 at 11:30. Superb direction and acting highlights this 1955 drama based on Evan Hunter's best-selling novel about the terror a young teacher encounters in his job as a teacher in a New York vocational school. Acting honors are shared by Glenn Ford as the teacher, Sidney Poitier as a problem pupil who shows some signs of sensitivity and Vic Morrow, as a knife-wielding delinquent. One of the more honest American films.

The Learning Tree (xxx), on 7 at 11:30. If you like The Waltons, you'll enjoy this wistful story of boyhood and the black experience in 1920s Kansas. Gordon Parks produced, directed, did the score and adapted this 1969 drama from his autobiographical novel.

Swingin' Summer (x), on 12 at 11:30. Raquel Welch would probably rather forget she co-starred in this 1965 comedy about pop music and youthful romance at a California resort.

Dead Run, on 6 at 11:45. No rating available on this French-made 1967 crime-drama about a small-time pickpocket who accidentally steals some important papers and is pursued by both the police and gangsters. Cast includes George Geret, Peter Lawford and Ira von Furstenberg.

Sweet, Sweet Rachel (xx), on 5 at midnight. Some familiar TV faces (Stephanie Powers, Pat Hingle and Louise Latham) star in this 1971 mystery combining ESP and murder.

The Far Horizons (xx), on 6 at 1:50. Charlton Heston, Fred MacMurray and Donna Reed star in this 1955 Hollywood account of the historical Lewis and Clark Expedition, with the stress on the romance between Clark and an Indian girl.

Legacy, on 5 at 1:50. Host Alexander Scourby traces the development of Holland's cultural history through 300 years of painting, including masterpieces by Rembrandt, Van Gogh and Mondrian. (60 mins.)

Sunday Best, on 2 and 6 at 4. Time Machine, a history of photography that examines early pictures, the development of cameras, photojournalism and continuing experiments in color technique. Among prominent photographers interviewed are Irving Penn, Jacques LaRique and Paul Strant. (60 mins.)

CBS New Retrospective, on 7 and 12 at 6. Luigi Barzini's best-seller The Italians, served as the basis for this Emmy-winning essay, first telecast in 1967. The program's central theme, says Barzini who narrates the essay, "is that for a number of ancient reasons, the Italian lives life as a show... we enjoy playing to an audience." (60 mins.)

National Geographic, on 4 at 6:30. Grizzly!, examines the work of Frank and John Craighead, pioneers in grizzly-bear research. (60 mins.)

Evening at Pops, on 9 at 8. Arthur Fiedler conducts the Boston Pops to the exciting sight and sound of the Jose Molina Spanish dance troupe (who performed recently here in Victoria). (60 mins.)

McMillan and Wife, on 5 at 8:30. A reunion of Mac's college football team turns into a deadly game when someone starts killing the team members in numerical order — and the commissioner's number is coming up fast. Rock Hudson and Susan Saint James star with a supporting cast that includes Buddy Hackett and ex-footballer Rosey Grier. (90 mins.)

Masterpiece Theatre, on 9 at 9. English automotive pioneers Mr. Rolls and Mr. Royce are the Edwardians profiled in this week's biographical drama. (90 mins.)

NBC News Presents, on 5 at 10. America's biggest medical killer is heart disease, which claims more than a million lives each year. Tonight's report, Heart Attack, may improve your chances of avoiding one as it examines new techniques for early diagnosis, risk factors such as smoking, overweight and hypertension, and rehabilitation. (60 mins.)

Russian-German War, on 8 at 10. The Killing Ground, second of a three-part series on the Eastern Front of the Second World War. (60 mins.)

The Edwardians Profile Rolls-Royce

Masterpiece Theatre presents the story of Charles Rolls and Frederick Royce, founders of the Rolls-Royce automotive dynasty, on The Edwardians, Sunday, July 21 and Friday, July 26 at 9:00 p.m. on Channel 9.

The autobiographical drama Mr. Rolls and Mr. Royce focuses on the period between 1902 and 1910 when Rolls, the son of an English Lord, and Royce, owner of a small electrical shop in Manchester, worked to develop the famed silver ghost. The silver ghost by Rolls-Royce made automotive history and the enthusiasm generated by this engineering triumph propelled Britain into the automotive age.

In 1902, Rolls, an automotive dealer, was spending much of his time repairing faulty vehicles and Royce was grumbling about the appalling workmanship on the new car he had recently acquired. Their meeting, in a hotel dining room in Manchester, marked the beginning of a disparate partnership. Royce was an inveterate worker while Rolls was a racing driver, a balloonist, and a dedicated aviator. There was inevitable friction as these two men struggled against financial difficulties to build the silver ghost. Finally, the first silver ghost was produced and achieved amazing trial results. By this time Rolls had quarreled with Royce and resigned from the firm to devote his energy to airplanes.

THE SILVER GHOST RIDES AGAIN—Michael Jayston (left) as Mr. Royce and Robert Powell as Mr. Rolls examine a model of their famous Silver Ghost in this scene from Masterpiece Theatre's The Edwardians, to be telecast on Sunday at 9 p.m. on Channel 9. Rolls-Royce Ltd. lent their 1907 Silver Ghost, valued at $250,000, to the BBC for the filming of this production.

Rolls was killed in 1910, the first English airman to die while flying in England. At his funeral Lady Llangattock, his heir, consoles Royce by saying, "The affairs of Rolls-Royce Limited will remain unaffected."

Rolls-Royce Ltd. lent their 1907 silver ghost, probably the most valuable car in the world, to the BBC for the filming of Mr. Rolls and Mr. Royce. It is estimated that the car which can still travel at around 35 m.p.h., is worth at least $250,000.

The silver ghost, which is licensed and roadworthy, was driven through rain and mud during scenes in Mr. Rolls and Mr. Royce. A small desk-size model of the silverghost from the Royal Automobile Club, which is also used in the film, was insured for $5,000 and closely guarded. Other antique cars in the production include a Decauville, a light-20 Rolls Royce, and a De Dion-Quadracycle.

JOSE MOLINA AND THE BAILES ESPANOLES—You may have seen them in Victoria recently and the opportunity will repeat itself on television as Arthur Fiedler and the Boston Pops welcome this Spanish dance troupe to Evening at Pops on Sunday at 8 p.m. on Channel 9. Molina and his company perform one selection from each of the three major areas of Spanish dancing—classical, folk dance and flamenco.

B.C. Generous To Public TV

Dr. Richard J. Meyer, General Manager of Channel 9, announced that the public television station has reached its projected goal of $350,000 in viewer memberships for the fiscal year ending June 30. The amount reached was $100,000 more than the previous year.

He said, "It is very heartwarming to know that the Channel 9 viewing audience, in two-thirds of Washington State and southern British Columbia, will give generously when faced with the challenge of meeting a specific financial goal.

"The $350,000 raised this year is the direct result of the four pledge weeks Channel 9 broadcast: Birthday Week, in December; Public Television Awareness Week, in February; Funny Film Festival, in April and The Greta Garbo-Lon Chaney Film Festival in June.

"There are now more than 20,000 members (donors of $15 or more a year) of Channel 9 and about 25,000 persons have made donations of all sizes to the station.

Movies

Gun Battle of Monterey (xx), on 13 at noon. A 1957 western about an outlaw who seeks revenge on the partner who betrayed him, starring Sterling Hayden and Ted de Corsia.

Special Delivery (xx), on 6 and 8 at 12:45. Joseph Cotten and Eva Bartok star in this mildly amusing 1955 comedy about the problems that beset a German Embassy when a baby is left on its doorstep.

Blowing Wild (xx), on 11 at 1. Romance and greed on the oil fields of Mexico sets the theme for this 1953 adventure starring Gary Cooper, Barbara Stanwyck and Ruth Roman.

The Immortal Sergeant (xx), on 13 at 1:30. A routine Second World War drama about a lost patrol in the African campaign starring Henry Fonda as a young corporal who must assume command when all the ranking officers are killed. Filmed in 1943 and co-starring Maureen OHara and Thomas Mitchell.

The Brides of Fu Manchu (xx), on 5 at 3:30. British horror star Christopher Lee portrays the Oriental archvillain plotting to take over the world in this 1966 thriller.

Sherlock Holmes and the Deadly Necklace (xx), on 7 at 3:30. A 1964 German-made mystery that has Holmes and Watson search for a necklace, stolen from a Pharaoh's tomb, starring Christopher Lee, Thorley Walters and Senta Berger.

Blue Hawaii (xx), on 12 at 7. Routine 1961 Elvis Presley musical enhanced by the lush background of the Hawaiian Islands.

A Tree Grows in Brooklyn (xxx), on 5 at 8. An excellent 1974 made-for-TV adaptation of the award-winning book by Betty Smith about an impoverished family in a 1912 New York tenement. Oscar winner Cliff Robertson is very good in the role of the charming alcoholic father and Diane Baker is equally fine as the strong-willed wife who must support the family.

Smiles of a Summer Night (xxxx), on 9 at 8. Ingmar Bergman's witty 1955 comedy about house guests at a country estate in 19th-century Sweden who indulge in various romantic escapades. The direction and cast are flawless.

Youngblood Hawke (xx), on 11 at 8. A poor script and bad direction hampers this 1964 film adaptation of Herman Wouk's best-seller about the rise of a Kentucky truck driver who becomes a novelist and gets caught up in the web of a big city publishing world. Genevieve Page overacts to the point of distraction and James Franciscus is wooden throughout.

Heaven Can Wait (xxx), on 13 at 8. An entertaining off-beat 1943 comedy about a late 19th century lover trying to explain to the Devil why he thinks he belongs in Hades, starring Charles Coburn, Don Ameche and Gene Tierney.

8 Card Stud (xx), on 4 at 9. Dean Martin, Robert Mitchum and Inger Stevens star in this 1968 western who dunit about an unknown killer methodically eliminating former members of a lynch mob.

Twice in a Lifetime (xx), on 5 at 9:30. A 1974 proposed series pilot about a retired Navy man who tried to start his own salvage business but encounters strong opposition in the form of an unscrupulous yard foreman, determined to retain control of the docks. Ernest Borgnine fits the role of the scruffy old salt and a competent supporting cast includes Della Reese (in a non-singing role), Slim Pickens and Arte Johnson.

The Falling Man, on 13 at 11. No rating available on this 1968 crime-drama about an ex-cop out to get those who framed him and ruined his career, starring Keenan Wynn and Henry Silva.

File It Under Fear, on 4 at 11:30. A made-for-TV mystery set in a rural town rocked by a series of murders that occur in the library, starring Maureen Lipman, Richard O'Callaghan, James Group and Colin Flisher.

The Girl He Left Behind (xx), on 12 at 11:30. A lightweight 1956 comedy about a young man who is drafted into the peacetime army, starring Tab Hunter, Natalie Wood and Jim Backus.

Swingin' Summer (x), on 7 at 11:45. Raquel Welch would probably rather forget she co-starred in this silly 1965 comedy about pop music and youthful romance at a California resort.

They Came from Beyond Space (x), on 2 at midnight. 1967 English-made science-fiction thriller.

Seven Against the Sun, on 6 and 8 at midnight. No rating available on the 1965 South African-made drama about that country's army battling Italian forces on Kenya's north frontier in 1941. Gert Van Den Bergh and Brian O'Shaughnessy star.

The Third Girl From the Left

Tuesday Movie of the Week on Channel 4 at 8:30 p.m. presents the contemporary film drama, The Third Girl from the Left, starring Kim Novak (above) in a rare TV appearance. She portrays an aging chorus dancer whose life suddenly begins to fall apart when her job is threatened and a long-term affair with a fast-talking comic (played by Tony Curtis) is jeopardized by a much younger man who becomes infatuated with her.

Six-Million Man Runaway Success

By LAWRENCE LAURENT

On land or in the water, running or swimming, his cruising speed is 60 miles per hour. He can pole vault 30 feet. Minor feats include breaking chains, smashing the bulkhead of a steel ship and smashing down doors. And why not?

He is The Six Million Dollar Man, product of bionics, which is a combination of biology and cybernetics.

As surprising as the capabilities are of The Six Million Dollar Man the ratings statistics the show has achieved since it became part of the weekly schedule last January are even more satisfactory. It has consistently been among the top 20 programs in the A. C. Nielsen Co.'s popularity parade, usually ranging somewhere between 8th most popular and 17th.

Another measure of success can be found in those weeks when ABC-TV decided to preempt the action-adventure series for a special. One week in March, for example, the network substituted a Jacques Cousteau special for The Six Million Dollar Man and, as a result, the audience dropped more than 9 per cent. In April a starladen Alan King comedy special replaced the regular program, and again the audience declined.

All of which indicates that a fine bit of casting came when Lee Majors was designated to play Steve Austin, the former astronaut and test pilot who crashed and was reassembled by space age scientists into a kind of superman.

The ratings success also indicated the wisdom of placing the program in the Friday night schedule.

In Los Angeles, where 90 per cent of all television programming is produced, Friday night is referred to as "the death trap" for a series. More Friday night programs are cancelled, year after year, than the programs of any other night. We shall, for example, start a new season in September with the following Friday night programs no longer available: The Brady Bunch, Toma, Dirty Sally, Lotsa Luck, The Girl With Something Extra, The Brian Keith Show and The Dean Martin Comedy Hour.

The failure, rate on Fridays is usually attributed to the changed leisure habits of the young marrieds in the United States. This is the component of the audience that most advertisers desire and often demand with messages aimed particularly at the woman between the ages of 18 to 49. These persons, at least in the minds of advertising men, are the most desirable customers, the persons who do the shopping and the ones with the most money to spend.

As Lester H. Brown wrote in Television — The Business Behind the Box, "The problem night is Friday, because of the sharp decline in the desirable mature viewers and the increase in the number of children and no older people before the set during the later hours. It is, of course, a going-out night for young adults and teen-agers and a baby-sitter night for television."

The Six Million Dollar Man appeals strongly to the very young, because Steve Austin is the space-age version of "Superman." But, with a difference. Steven Austin does have a decided advantage over assorted villains, but, unlike Superman, he is vulnerable.

Lee Majors, who has been growing as an actor, has added subtle, ironic touches that were missing in his simpler heroes of The Big Valley and The Men From Shilo, he's now a full-fledged television star, and with a few more years of The Six Million Dollar Man he should be worth almost as much money as the character he is portraying.

Movies

The Razor's Edge (xxx), on 13 at noon. An ambitious, but somewhat tedious 1946 adaptation of the Somerset Maugham novel about a quest for spiritual peace by a First World War flier, starring Tyrone Power and Gene Tierney.

The Mob (xxx), on 6 and 12 at 12:45. A well-made 1951 gangster film about a policeman who joins the "mob" in order to get to the big boys, highlighted by excellent direction and fine performances by Broderick Crawford and Ernest Borgnine.

Retreat, Hell! (xx), on 11 at 1. If war films are your thing, then you'll enjoy this rousing 1952 account of the exploits of a heroic marine battalion in Korea, starring Frank Lovejoy.

The Interns (xx), on 7 at 3:30. (Part 1.) A mélange of medical clichés best describes son innocent of a criminal charge, starring James Sloyan, Sarah Cunningham and Andy Robinson. This film is a pilot for a proposed TV series.

Forever Amber (xx), on 13 at 8. An elaborate, over-long 1947 movie adaptation of the best-seller by Kathleen Winsor about a 17th-century barmaid who becomes a member of the court of Charles II, starring Linda Darnell, Cornel Wilde and Richard Greene.

Die! Die! My Darling (xx), on 7 at 9:30. A standard shocker, highlighted by a great performance by Tallulah Bankhead as a demented woman who keeps a young American girl prisoner because she was the fiancée of her dead son. Thriller fans should give this 1965 film a passing shudder.

The Third Man (xxxx), on 12 at 9:30. English director Carol Reed's 1949 thriller masterpiece about an American writer in Vienna who discovers his old friend may not be dead after all, but the head of a vicious black market organization. Written by Graham Greene and highlighted by a flawless cast that includes Joseph Cotten, Orson Welles and Trevor Howard. Don't miss this one.

King and Country (xxxx), on 13 at 11. A brutal 1964 British-made study of the injustices of war about a sensitive private placed on trial for desertion during the First World War. Brilliantly directed by Joseph Losey and featuring a fine cast that includes Dirk Bogarde, Tom Courtenay and Leo McKern. Recommended.

Summertime, on 12 at 11:30. No rating available on this 1971 drama about the moral dilemma of a young college dropout opposed to serving in Vietnam. A bit dated today, but the cast includes two talented actors, Michael Douglas (Streets of San Francisco) and Brenda Vaccaro (Midnight Cowboy).

The Corrupt Ones (xx), on 7 at 11:45. An exotic but predictable 1969 drama about four adventurers seeking clues to an ancient Chinese treasure. Filmed in Macao and Hong Kong, and starring Robert Stack, Nancy Kwan and Elke Sommer.

The Other Man (xx), on 6 and 8 at midnight. Joan Hackett, Ray Thinnies, Arthur Hill and Tammy Grimes star in this 1970 TV movie about a neglected wife drawn into an illicit affair that leads to murder.

Sing and Swing (x), on 2 at 12:05. A 1963 English-made musical about an aspiring rock group, notable only for an early film appearance by British star David Hemmings (Blow-Up).

State Secret (xxxx), on 6 and 8 at 2:05. An excellent 1950 English-made suspense thriller set in a mythical Iron Curtain country about a noted surgeon tricked into spying. A fine cast includes Douglas Fairbanks Jr., Jack Hawkins and Glynis Johns.

Dick Cavett Special

Premier ballet dancer Rudolf Nureyev, termed by most critics as "the greatest classic dancer of our time," is the sole guest for 90 minutes on The Dick Cavett Show, a Wide World Special presentation to be seen on Thursday at 11:30 on Channel 4.

Siberia: A Profile

Siberia — vast, remote, silent and unwelcoming. The very name has, for years, conjured up visions of a gloomy wasteland. But Siberia is changing and it is this new image that is viewed on The National Geographic Society Special: Siberia: The Endless Horizon, to be retelecast on Channel 8, Thursday, July 25, 7:00-8:00 p.m.

Siberia occupies more than one tenth of the earth's total solid surface, yet for generations it has been guarded by an impenetrable circle of cold. But now this land, hitherto thought of as an unknown frontier east of the Urals, is no longer dormant, but alive and vibrant.

For the first time, in this CTV Special, cameras from the Western world will be exploring this remote land, focusing mainly on the young Russians who are opening up the territory and developing its assets. Siberia is proving to have a hoard of natural wealth locked in its frozen earth and hardy young adventurers are flocking to the area's two growing cities, Vladivostok and Irkutsk, to search out the surrounding resources. The landscape is rapidly becoming dotted with industrial sites, power plants and transportation facilities.

But Siberia's vastness has not been completely conquered. Remote trappers and herdsman can still ply their lonely trades undisturbed.

Siberia: The Endless Horizon is a fascinating study of what was once an enigmatic part of the Asian continent, receiving only the world's unwanted, but is now rapidly catching up to the 20th century.

NATIONAL GEOGRAPHIC SOCIETY SPECIAL — Siberia: The Endless Horizon. Siberia, so long regarded as an impenetrable wasteland of ice, is now being opened up by hardy young adventurers, eager to benefit from an untapped hoard of natural resources. Watch this National Geographic special to be telecast on Thursday at 7 p.m. on Channel 8.

3:30. No rating available on this offbeat 1966 story about a neurotic American heiress who has an affair with a mute, starring Lynda Day and Christopher George.

The Interns (xx), on 7 at 3:30. Conclusion of the medical soap opera aired yesterday, same time and channel. (See Thursday movies for details.)

Around the World in 80

Days (xxxx), on 7 at 8. The 1965 Oscar-winning extravaganza, produced by master showman, the late Mike Todd, from the Jules Verne novel. The film recounts the adventures of Phileas Fogg, who, in 1872, bets he can circle the globe in 80 days. Victorian satire sets the pace for this delightful comedy starring David Niven, Shirley MacLaine and Robert Newton with a record number of cameo appearances by virtually every major star in Hollywood at that time. Recommended for the whole family.

OSS 117 - Double Agent, on 11 at 8. No rating available on this 1968 European-made crime-drama starring John Gavin as a secret agent battling an assassination bureau in the Middle East.

My Gal Sal (xxx), on 13 at 8. An entertaining Gay Nineties musical about a song writer's love for a music star, filmed in 1942 and starring Victor Mature, Rita Hayworth and Carole Landis.
